HARDING, CHECKED BY LEWIS'S STAND, MAY FORCE PARLEY

Reorganization of Coal Industry and Regulating Legislation Are Also Hinted.

LUNCHEON MEETING FAILS

Lewis Tells President Miners Are Firm in Demand for National Conference Only.

HOOVER AFTER OPERATORS

If They Also Continue Unyielding, Then the Government Must Act, Washington Believes.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The first definite move by the Government to bring about an immediate settlement of the coal strike was taken today when John L. Lewis, President of the United Mine Workers of America, and Secretary of Labor Davis had luncheon at the White House and later discussed the strike problems with President Harding for an hour and a half.

After the conference Mr. Lewis was asked if a termination of the strike had been hastened by the developments, and he replied: "I wouldn't say so." He added that no definite plans were decided upon. He was firm in a declaration that the miners would refuse to confer with the operators except on a national basis, and said that he had "explained to the President the utter futility of district conferences" which form the basis of the position taken by the operators.

Mr. Lewis told correspondents that the United Mine Workers were prepared to remain out indefinitely; that the pinch of the coal shortage already was being felt, and that the nation was facing a situation where the railroads would be unable to handle the coal required for over-Winter supplies if a speedy settlement was not reached, a situation which, he felt, would undoubtedly involve suffering and industrial stagnation.

Secretary Davis said merely that he was prepared to "report progress." He said at first that he would have a formal statement to make; later that he would have nothing to say at this time to supplement what Mr. Lewis had said.

As they were leaving Secretary of Commerce Hoover, who has been carrying on negotiations with the coal operators on behalf of the Administration, approached the Executive offices. When Mr. Hoover left the White House forty minutes later he refused to comment at all upon the situation.

There was no comment from the President. It is said that Mr. Hoover had been in touch with some of the coal operators during the day in order to obtain their views and that he would hold other conferences to determine whether anything favorable to a speedy settlement without direct governmental intervention still could be worked out.

There was nothing definite today to indicate that either side to the controversy had weakened in its stand. If the miners persist in refusing to get about the conference table except upon a basis of national bargaining, and the operators refuse to withdraw from their position that they will meet with the miners only at State or district conferences, it is the feeling here tonight that the point will have been reached where the Government, if it is to continue its efforts, must step in and contend that public opinion and public interest demand that operators and miners submit their grievances to a commission to be named by the President, and abide by the result.

Hint of Regulating Legislation.

If forced into this position, it is the belief here that the Government will not limit its action to seeking a temporary settlement of the difficulties, but will submit a program for reorganization of the coal industry to follow the settlement of the strike and present legislation containing the Government's ideas.

Strength was given to this by reports that Representative Bland of the House Labor Committee had been in touch daily with the activities of the Cabinet officials and that there had been serious discussion of the details of a bill to be submitted shortly to Congress. One report was to the effect that such legislation would bring the coal industry under Government regulation, the general principles involved being along the lines of the Transportation act of 1920.

It is known that a commission under the direction of Secretary Hoover has been going deeply into the problems of the coal industry for many months and has prepared a report. This commission has considered the evils of the seasonal feature of the industry and the waste due to overdevelopment.

These evils also were discussed at the conference at the White House today which Mr. Lewis and Secretary Davis attended. Mr. Lewis made this known in a formal statement in which he said:

"The Secretary of Labor and myself had luncheon with the President, followed by a discussion of one and a half hours relating to the general problem of the bituminous mine industry, and the present strike situation. We discussed the problems of overdevelopment in the mining industry, with its excess number of mining operations and excess number of men employed, the intermittency and inadequacy of employment of mine workers, and various questions affecting the stabilization of the industry.

"With relation to the present strike, we considered the matter of a joint conference of representative operators and miners, and the merits of district joint conferences as related to the usual pro-

Mellon Asks Ruling on Sale Of Liquor on Vessels at Sea

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Secretary Mellon has formally requested Attorney General Daugherty for a ruling as to the legality of the sale of liquor on Shipping Board vessels outside the three mile limit, it was stated today at the Treasury.

It has been officially held by counsel for the prohibition enforcement unit that the Treasury regulations, as now drawn, do not prohibit such sales, but the ruling when made will definitely determine the question.

Request for the ruling, it was said, was made at the urging of Prohibition Commissioner Haynes and an early reply from Mr. Daugherty was sought in order to settle finally the controversy precipitated by Adolphus Busch 3d, in connection with the Shipping Board's practice of operating bars at sea.

HIRSH AND WIFE BOTH DENY SHE SHOT HIM

But Prosecutor Says He Will Ask Indictment of Reine Davies's Guest.

ONLY FEW DRINKS AT PARTY

Not True That "Great Quantity of Liquor" Was Served, Actress's Attorney Asserts.

Charged with having shot her husband, Oscar Hirsh, electrical contractor, early Sunday morning after they had left a lawn party held by Miss Reine Davies, film actress, at her Freeport, L. I., home, Mrs. Hazel Hirsh was arraigned before Police Judge Albin N. Johnson yesterday. After an unsuccessful effort had been made to have the charge of felonious assault dismissed, her bail of $25,000 was continued, and Assistant District Attorney Elvin Edwards announced that he would ask an indictment against Mrs. Hirsh on Thursday.

Last night, Frederick E. Goldsmith, attorney for Miss Davies, issued a statement for her saying that it was "absolutely false and untrue that a great quantity of liquor was consumed by the guests" at the lawn fete. The attorney understood that a "few drinks were served," but he denied that anybody had been under the influence of intoxicants. He reiterated the denial that Miss Marion Davies was at the party. Mr. Goldsmith said that Miss Davies, asleep when the shooting occurred, learned later that the affray took place on the Davies lawn and that Hirsh, immediately after having been wounded, had been taken into the parlor of the Davies bungalow.

The attorney also disclosed as present at the party Miss Ethel Davies, and her brother-in-law, George B. Van Cleve, and his wife. The Hirshes, the statement reported, had been invited to the party at the suggestion of Mrs. Leo Carillo, wife of the actor, who is a neighbor.

Asked Dismissal of Charge.

George Morton Levy of Scudder & Levy, who appeared on behalf of Mrs. Hirsh when she was arraigned, moved for dismissal of the charge. The Assistant District Attorney, opposing the motion, said: "I will be able to show that this is a clear case of assault in the first degree." Judge Johnson then adjourned the hearing until Thursday. First degree assault carries a penalty of from five to ten years.

After leaving the courtroom Mr. Edwards took occasion to deny reports that he had found a witness who would testify that Mrs. Hirsh shot when she found her husband talking to a motion picture actress at the lawn party. He declared that both Miss Reine Davies and her father, Magistrate Bernard N. Douras, had greatly aided him in the case, adding that he deplored any effort to link the shooting to the party.

When she left the courtroom Mrs. Hirsh went home and refused to see reporters. Later, her attorney issued this statement for her:

"I have been asked to make a statement for the press. In my condition at this time I do not wish to say anything other than this: It is silly for any one to think that I would do anything to harm my husband. Our relations have been too close. My husband knows that I was not responsible in any way for his being shot, and knows that I did everything possible to avoid his being shot, by trying to save him. I do not care to go into other matters, as that seems to be the sole matter of interest to the public at this time.

"Mr. Hirsh is back from the hos-

NAVY CREW FIRST AT POUGHKEEPSIE; SETS NEW RECORD

CORNELL JUNIORS TRIUMPH

Syracuse Takes Freshman Race—Thousands Watch Twenty-fifth Annual Regatta on Hudson.

Special to The New York Times.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 26.—Driven through the silent waters of the Hudson by a boatful of future Admirals, seven of them ready to take up their duties as ensigns, the slim shell of the Naval Academy crew was once more the first to cross the finish line today at the end of a Poughkeepsie varsity race that will long live in rowing memory.

While thousands cheered and whistles blew and pennants fluttered, Coach Glendon's super-oarsmen from the Severn duplicated their victory of a year ago by winning the twenty-fifth annual regatta of the Intercollegiate Rowing Association. They demonstrated their superiority over five other crews that strove to match them in power, in stamina and in oarsmanship. They won in a manner that left little doubt as to their right to be classed as one of the greatest crews of all time.

The Navy's time, made under excellent conditions of water and weather and under the pressure of an ever-present menace, was 13 minutes, 33 and 3-5 seconds, more than half a minute under the course record of 14 minutes, 7 seconds for the distance made by practically the same eight last year. So fast and furious was the pace from the time that Referee Julian W. Curtiss gave the men the word until the finish line was reached that every one of the six contenders crossed the line ahead of the mark made a year ago.

Washington In Second.

In second place, not quite a full length behind, came those tireless wonders from the Pacific Coast, the men from the University of Washington. It was these travelers from the Far West who lasted out the gruelling struggle long enough to give Glendon's men a last challenge, after Cornell and Syracuse had died off—a challenge that was accepted and met in the true spirit of a navy man, and a challenge that brought forth one of the greatest exhibitions of brute, last-mile strength that has ever been seen on these waters.

Cornell, killed off by the energy-consuming pace of the first two miles, but rowing with the heritage of tradition behind her, was nosed out for third place by the ponderous Syracuse eight, the margin being only four feet, with the Orange bow lapping the Washington rudder.

In the rear, lengths back, came Columbia and Pennsylvania, neither of them serious contenders after the first half mile. A great sprint at the finish put the New Yorkers out ahead of the Red and Blue by nearly a length.

One other record went by the boards in the brilliant series of races. A superb Cornell junior varsity eight traveled over the two-mile distance in 9 minutes 43 3-5 seconds, breaking the former record made by the 1915 Red and White by 14 3-5 seconds and winning by 1¾ lengths. Columbia's junior eight was second, with Syracuse third, and the two Pennsylvania crews, the regular junior boat and the 150-pound aggregation, fourth and fifth respectively. The Syracusans were a length back of the Morningside oarsmen, while the two Quaker eights were, in turn, a length behind the Orange shell.

Syracuse's freshman eight, considered all along the class of the yearling crews, overshadowed its three rivals in the freshman race, winning by a good length in 9 minutes 30 1-5 seconds, 8 3-5 seconds behind the record made by Cornell in 1909. Coach Hoyle's Cornellians managed to gain second place over the Columbia youngsters by the narrow margin of four feet, and Pennsylvania was again in the rear, half a length back of the Blue and White.

Cole, at 99, Revisits The Senate Chamber

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Ex-United States Senator Cornelius Cole of California, who quit the upper house of Congress fifty-nine years ago, was a guest on the floor of the Senate today. Mr. Cole will celebrate his 100th anniversary on Sept. 17.

He met all the Senators on both sides of the aisle, recalled to them anecdotes of famous Senators now gone, regretted prohibition, refused to enthuse over votes for women, and then settled back and listened to his successor, Senator Shortridge, plead for a duty on Turkish tobacco that is grown in California.

Mr. Cole will remain in Washington until the end of the week before starting his long return journey to his home in Los Angeles.

Marconi Shows Deep Interest in Tube Being Developed at Schenectady.

MAKES BIG SAVING IN SPACE

It Would Scrap Alternators and Room 10 Feet Square Could Be Sending Plant.

Special to The New York Times.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., June 26.—Senator Marconi, inventor of the first system of wireless communication, saw in the works of the General Electric Company here today a little tube about eighteen inches long and about two inches in diameter which radio experts think will revolutionize long distance radio communication and cause the scrapping of millions of dollars worth of equipment in wireless stations all over the world.

This small contrivance of glass and wires, or some further development of it, is expected to take the place of alternators of several hundred times its size, so that the long distance radio transmission plan of a short time hence may be much smaller and more compact. It will also be virtually noiseless, except for the dynamos generating the power, as the clattering apparatus which now hurls the electric wave into the ether will be gone forever.

It opens up a further possibility. If power for the operation of a trans-Atlantic wireless transmission station is wired into this tube from some distant point a set hurling messages across thousands of miles of ocean, or around the world, may be placed in a room no larger than ten feet square.

Marconi was deeply interested in the advancement made in the development of this new apparatus in the research laboratory of the General Electric Company by Dr. Irving Langmuir because he had previously predicted that the next revolutionary step in radio would be the perfection of a tube of this kind. He and his engineers of the Marconi companies in Europe have been working on the problem and have made great advancement, and it is believed that matching of the work of the two sets of investigators may solve the next great problem before the commercial radio companies.

By this apparatus now being developed by Dr. Langmuir, who is praised by Marconi as one of the great scientists in radio, direct current is poured into the tube through a complicated wire system and high frequency current is generated, which flashes its signals through the ether in electric waves that travel with the speed of light to distant stations.

Would Replace Alexanderson Alternator.

It will take the place of the Alexanderson alternator, a large apparatus designed by Dr. Alexanderson, now chief engineer of the Radio Corporation of America, who was for many years an engineer at the General Electric Company. The tube is an advancement over the Alexanderson alternator just as that was an advancement over the old Goldsmith alternator, which was designed in Germany, and over the first sparks sets designed by Marconi for cross-ocean radio transmission.

Dr. Langmuir's tube is 50 kilowatts and develops 12 horsepower within its narrow walls of glass. He has been working on the new tube for several months.

After he met Dr. Charles P. Steinmetz, the Chief Consulting Engineer of the General Electric Company, Senator Marconi went immediately to the research laboratory with Dr. Langmuir and the Director of the laboratory, Dr. W. R. Whitney, to begin his study of the new tube. One or two minor exhibits were shown to him first when the gaze of the inventor of the first system of wireless communication fell upon the tube and the rest of the morning was spent with it.

After Dr. Langmuir had explained briefly the working of the tube Marconi's party went to a small laboratory on an upper floor of the building where one of the new high frequency generator tubes had been connected with an apparatus carrying about 15,000 volts of electricity in direct current.

A small blue flame shot through the tube without creating any noise, but releasing the electrical impulse that may be hurled thousands of miles. This darting blue flame in waves of clear gases takes the place of the immense alternator now in all wireless plants and the long metal arms which now create the electrical wave with great noise and sparkling. The broken impulse from the great electrical generators behind the tube is shot along to the antennae noiselessly in the dots and dashes of the international code through a tiny space not much larger than a stick of dynamite, but infinitely more powerful.

MEXICO CITY, June 26.—A. Bruce Bielaski, ex-Chief of the Bureau of Investigation of the United States Department of Justice, who was kidnapped near Cuernavaca on Saturday, is still held prisoner, but Manuel Barcena, a Mexican lawyer, who was taken prisoner at the same time, has been released and arrived tonight in Mexico City. The holding of Bielaski has caused fear here for his life.

Up to ten minutes to 11 o'clock tonight no word of the release of Bielaski had been received, although telegrams this afternoon from Cuernavaca reported he would surely be released from captivity not later than 6 o'clock tonight. Bielaski's wife and friends are still waiting to hear of his liberation. The latest word, received at 5 o'clock tonight, was not to worry, but nothing definite has been heard. The ransom has been delivered, but delay in the return of Bielaski has not been explained.

Telegrams from Cuernavaca say Barcena was released by the bandits with orders to go to Cuernavaca and return to the bandit camp with the 10,000 pesos demanded as ransom. According to later telegrams, the ransom was left at the spot selected by the bandits but the release of Bielaski still was uncertain.

Barcena stated that the band which made the capture were unlike the natives of the State of Morelos and were armed with sawed-off shotguns, a weapon uncommon to the natives.

Barcena, through a representative, F. Monteverde, stated that a strong suspicion exists that there was a combination between certain opponents in a law suit and the radicals located the Cuernavaca to make the capture. This theory is not supported by the release of Barcena and the holding of Bielaski prisoner.

Proof that the arrangements to release Bielaski are not progressing favorably is found in the fact that $5,000 in gold was sent to a hotel in Cuernavaca on Sunday, the entire sum demanded by the kidnappers, yet Erby Swift, representative of his New York oil company, arrived in Cuernavaca early this morning carrying $10,000 to be used as ransom if necessary. Although telegrams from Cuernavaca stated that Bielaski would be released this evening, another friend left hurriedly this evening for Cuernavaca carrying still more money, indicating that the telegrams concerning a release were too optimistic.

President Obregon has ordered Colonel Goldbaum Padilla, a staff officer, to Cuernavaca to get in touch with the local authorities, using the authority of the presidential staff is necessary. General Jesus M. Garza has ordered the suspension of all troop movements until the release of Bielaski is assured.

Private information from Cuernavaca states that the local authorities are making a cleanup of all known foreign radicals. Several well-known leaders managed to escape and now are in hiding.

The general opinion in Cuernavaca is that radicals headed the kidnapping. Bielaski's movements being well known since his arrival in Mexico City. The proposed trip to the caves had been discussed openly at the Hotel Reges several days, so that the radicals had a full knowledge of the proposed movements of Bielaski.

Friends of the kidnapped man are seriously worried this evening over the new turn given the case by the release of Barcena. Government troops are being sent from Mexico City for towns in the State of Morelos and from the State of Guerrero. No movement, however, has been noticed in Cuernaca, where the forces are marking time until convinced of the safety of the kidnapped man.

CUERNAVACA, Mexico, June 26.—The money demanded by the kidnappers of A. Bruce Bielaski has been sent to the spot designated by the bandits, and the next few hours are expected to tell whether the outrage upon the American is the work of a band operating only for loot or the culmination of a conspiracy of vengeance on the part of an American-led group of radicals.

The sending of the $5,000 in an attempt to effect Bielaski's release followed a day of activity on the part of the Mexican Government and several diplomatic interchanges between Washington and Mexico City. One of the first steps taken by the Mexican Government was the issuance of an order that any foreigners found connected with the kidnapping, as well as any natives, were to be executed immediately.

Orders to Federal troops in the State of Morelos to proceed against the bandits were held up when it was shown that such action might endanger Bielaski and his companion, Manuel Barcena, a Mexican attorney, captured with

IRELAND WARNED, MUST STOP DISORDER OR BRITAIN WILL AGAIN BE FREE TO ACT; LLOYD GEORGE POLICY UPHELD, 342 TO 75

Copyright, 1922, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 26.—A lively interlude in the House of Lords this evening was provoked by Lord Midleton's protest against a statement in Saturday's Morning Post from Dublin. This declared that a vast bulk of Southern Irishmen, from the Midletonian Anti-Partitionists to Rory O'Connor's Republicans, went about their business on Friday as if the empire's greatest soldier had been a blind beggar run over by a cab, adding that "the whole race is steeped today in the infamous doctrine that killing is no murder when the victim is an Orangeman or a Loyalist."

Lord Midleton said he and Lord Desart had failed to procure a withdrawal of the paragraph or an apology from those responsible for the imputation. He and his friends deeply resented the imputation put upon them in a way quite unworthy of a responsible journal.

The Lord Chancellor, stepping aside from the woolsack, agreed that the paragraph was astonishing. He had witnessed a constantly growing license in the press during the last fifteen years, he said, but never an outrage so gross. He understood Lord Bathurst, husband of the proprietress of The Morning Post, accepted some responsibility in the matter, but the only attitude that should be assumed was one of sackcloth and ashes for what amounted to a vile insult on respected members of the House.

This strong language was loudly cheered. Earl Bathurst put in an explanatory speech, and said at the outset that if what was stated in the paragraph was found to be untrue an apology would be inserted.

He declared that Lord Midleton, trembling with excitement, had called on Lady Bathurst and said that if the writer had been Lord Bathurst he would in certain circumstances have shot him.

Lord Midleton interrupted with a correction:

"What I said was that if the certain circumstances had been those of 100 years ago I would have called him out and shot him."

Lord Bathurst rejoined that that showed the state of excitement under which Lord Midleton was laboring. He added his disbelief that the paragraph brought any personal charge against Lord Midleton or his friends.

The discussion was closed by the Earl of Crewe expressing disappointment at the attitude taken by Lord Bathurst on this painful occasion.

Declares Editor Is as Good as Nominated—Hopes to See Murphy This Week.

William R. Hearst, it was learned yesterday, has abandoned his plan to return to Europe to resume his interrupted tour. William J. Conners, manager of his pre-convention campaign for the Democratic nomination for Governor, in making this announcement yesterday added that there was no political reason to keep Mr. Hearst home just now.

"It's practically all over; he is as good as nominated right now," said Mr. Conners, with an optimism he invariably has reflected of late.

Mr. Hearst is going to California and is expected to remain there for three or four weeks, according to Mr. Conners. He said Mr. Hearst had important business interests requiring his attention on the Pacific Coast.

United States Senator Hiram Johnson is having the fight of his political career out there to win a renomination to the United States Senate. His connection with the Hearst-ruled Hylan Administration, as counsel in the fight to have the Transit Commission act declared unconstitutional, is one of the issues against him. Defeat for Senator Johnson in California, as some politicians see it, would affect Hearst's chances in this State, while on the other hand a victory for Senator Johnson with the aid of the Hearst newspapers and Hearst's personal influence in his home State would be an aid to Mr. Hearst in his aspirations to land the Governorship as a stepping stone to the Presidency.

"Hearst will be back in plenty of time for the convention," said Mr. Conners. "There is no reason why he should be BERLIN, June 26.—The deadly earnestness of the Wirth Government, "in defense of the Republic," exemplified by the fact that the police have been stimulated to make scores of arrests in all parts of Germany on suspicion of complicity in the murder of Foreign Minister Rathenau or of membership in a secret murder organization, the so-called "Organization C," also known as the "Organization Concil." This organization is said to have been formed by ex-Naval Captain Ehrhardt, Commander of the Ehrhardt Brigade, which captured Berlin at the outbreak of the Kapp counter-revolution. In Berlin, eleven arrests of members of this band have taken place.

The most interesting arrest, however, is that of former First Lieutenant Karl Tillessen in Flensburg as he was about to cross the Danish border. He is an older brother of the Lieutenant Tillessen who was suspected of being one of Finance Minister Erzberger's murderers and who fled from Germany, being last heard of in Hungary.

In Dresden General Mercker, the former commander of a Reichswehr division, who figured prominently during the German National Assembly's deliberations at Weimar relative to the signing of the Versailles Treaty, was arrested yesterday but released after interrogation of the State attorney.

TWO SLAYERS LONDONERS

House Startled by the Statement That Neither of Them Had Any Direct Ties With Ireland.

Copyright, 1922, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 26.—By a vote of 342 against 75, the House of Commons tonight signified its approval of the main lines of the Government's policy in regard to Ireland and in particular exonerated Home Secretary Shortt from blame in connection with the assassination of Sir Henry Wilson.

The vote was not reached until 11 o'clock tonight, after a day which had been marked by an extraordinary public tribute to the murdered Field Marshal, whose remains were laid to rest in St. Paul's Cathedral, and by debates in both Houses of Parliament which will stand out in the annals of Great Britain as a conspicuous instance of wise and patient statesmanship.

The debate in the House of Commons began with an extended statement by Winston Churchill in which he strongly stated the Government's intention to demand that the Provisional Government, now that a majority of the Irish people had clearly shown their support of the treaty, should rule Ireland, and in particular should suppress the rebellious faction of the Irish Republican army. The present situation, he said, was a violation of the treaty and could not be allowed to continue. If the Free State Government did not begin to carry out the terms of the treaty, the British Government would be free to denounce the treaty and resume a free hand in dealing with Ireland.

The Colonial Secretary further stated the Government's intention to support Ulster to the limit in her defense against southern irregulars. The Belfast Government could not be broken down by violence. He revealed that 50,000 stands of arms had been sent to Ulster.

For the beginning of the series of outrages in Ulster the Secretary put the blame on the Irish Republican Army organization there. It was now proposed to use imperial troops to form a barrier between the two parts of Ireland.

Accused Men Both Londoners.

One of the features of the debate was a declaration by Mr. Shortt which was regarded as sensational. He said that neither of the men charged with the murder of Sir Henry Wilson had anything to do with Ireland at all; they were both Londoners, both ex-soldiers, both living at home with their parents, and there was no evidence they had ever been in Ireland in their lives. The War Office authorities were satisfied that the revolvers they carried did not form part of the arms handed over to the Provisional Government.

This statement was made at a late stage of the proceedings in the Commons, which had begun with questions to various Ministers on particular aspects of Wilson's assassination and broadened out into a general discussion of the Irish situation when Winston Churchill made the statement which he had withheld pending South of Ireland elections.

That the Government could be defeated on a question of its general policy toward the complex problem of Ireland was an assumption beyond credibility, but there was always the possibility that the House of Commons might demand a scapegoat in the person of the Home Secretary. Shortt's tenure of office has been precarious for some time past. He is stated for a Judgeship and parliamentarians don't like politicians who are going out of politics. His existence as Home Secretary hung by a thread. It was not thought in the lobbies at Westminster tonight that he personally had done anything to assist his own cause, but Lloyd George and other members of the Government made it clear they were going to sink or swim with him, and Shortt remains for the

Lloyd George Praises Wilson.

Lloyd George spoke for the Government following Secretary Shortt's defense. He began by paying a warm tribute to the memory of Field Marshal Wilson, whose death had sent a thrill of horror and indignation throughout the civilized world. There was no man in the House who had greater opportunities to judge of his great gifts and qualities than he (Lloyd George) had. During the most trying periods of the war he saw him every day and sometimes almost all day. At a time when the days seemed charged with great possibilities of peril and great opportunities, Sir Henry's courage, devotion, imagination and resource rendered inestimable service to his country. There could be no greater loss to this empire and as one who was proud to have been associated with him at a great moment in the life of the empire he would like

Army Flier Conquers Balky Plane Aloft; Crowd Thrilled by Sky Battle for Life

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., June 26.—Hundreds in the vicinity of Back River and Middle River this afternoon watched an Army pilot fighting for his life 3,000 feet in the air in a biplane, the motor of which had gone dead.

The battle of the lone man in the big plane, as he strove to avoid crashing to earth, gave the spectators thrill after thrill. Every one who watched was aware of the struggle in the sky because of the way the craft acted. With the hum of the failed motor missing, the fight went on in silence.

That in the end the flier landed safely army aviators who reached the scene a short while afterward regard as little less than miraculous.

Major J. H. Perie of the Air Service at the Aberdeen Proving Grounds is the man who won against a death that was very near. He was carrying communications from the commandant at Aberdeen to headquarters of the Third Army Corps Area, and was headed for Logan Field.

Unmoved by his narrow escape, he left the plane as soon as assistance arrived and went on to deliver the communication with which he had started.

The engine stopped suddenly. The plane was seen to waver. It headed into the wind. Then those who watched were horrified to see it start down in a nose drive, plummeting in a straight line.

When it had swooped within 1,500 feet of the ground, the Major managed to force its nose upward. It began an ascent on a sharp angle, almost recovering it former height. Under the impetus thus gained the craft glided smoothly downward at first. Then it again started a nose dive. This time it came within 300 feet of the earth before the pilot again conquered and thrust its nose upward.

Then, in a second glide, the plane came gently down at a long, easy angle, disappearing above the tree tops. Two airplanes, each with a pilot and a mechanic, came along flying low. They caught signals given by those on the ground and landed near by.

A new engine will be taken to the plane from Aberdeen, so that it can fly back to the base.

LONDON, June 25.—The fact that what was to have been the final attempt to reach the summit of Mount Everest had been frustrated by the breaking of the monsoon was announced by the President of the Royal Geographical Society at a meeting tonight.

The climbers, he said, were on June 8 to have made their greatest effort; for the previous trials had been more in the nature of reconnaissances. "But we know," he added, regretfully, "that the monsoon broke on June 5, and we fear this will have definitely frustrated any further efforts."

The President went on to say that the expedition, in spite of terrible weather, had already accomplished much. Its members reached an altitude of 26,800 feet without oxygen and of 27,300 feet with its aid. They ascertained that the mountain itself and the highest points reached were, in Mallory's words, "not difficult," and Finch and Bruce were able to proceed along the north face without ropes. Mallory was convinced, too, that with favorable weather the pioneers could have carried the camp to 28,000 feet, and so brought the climbers within reach of the summit.

The experience gained this year, according to the President, also showed that skilled mountaineers could take the unskilled to the highest altitudes. Geoffrey Bruce had never climbed a snow and ice mountain before, yet under Finch's skilled leadership he was able to reach a height of 27,800 feet, and the Sherpa porters, though practically untrained to snow and ice work, were able to carry loads up to 25,000 feet, some of them making the journey four times.

The expedition, he said, had at a bound brought the record up from 24,000 to 27,300 feet, and thus but only 1,700 feet to be climbed before the crowning summit was reached.

LONDON, June 26 (Associated Press).—Mount Everest has again baffled the best efforts of man.

The Calcutta correspondent of The Daily Telegraph today confirms previous reports that Brig. Gen. C. G. Bruce, head of the present expedition, has been forced to the conclusion that persistence in the effort to scale the peak would result in useless tragedy.

General Bruce was most reluctant to abandon further attempts, but the condition in which the two last climbing parties returned, the advice of his medical officers and the certainty of worse weather conditions daily forced him to a decision, says the writer.

Our Great Glasses Urged All Outfitters to use the MANUAL OF PRAYERS.—Advt.

to add his humble tribute to the grandeur of his services to his country. Sir Henry Wilson was a great soldier, a great patriot and a great Irishman. His gifts and his qualities were the brilliant qualities of that race.

"I have been taunted tonight," said the Premier, "because the Government is not prepared to follow Sir Henry Wilson's advice in political matters. No man has been condemned more often than I because I followed his advice. Three times have I stood at this box to defend the Government in a period of political crisis occasioned by following his advice on military matters, and a good deal of criticism of us because we could not follow his views in political matters comes from those who criticized us very severely because we followed his advice on military matters." [Ministerial cheers.]

This was a very vital question of political policy for the empire, continued the Prime Minister, and Mr. Bonar Law had said truly that the vote was a vote upon the policy of the treaty, and as such the Government would regard it. Honorable members had said that in negotiating that treaty the Government was pursuing a policy it repudiated twelve months ago. That was not in accordance with the facts." While they were pursuing an aggressive policy, he had stated repeatedly that the Government was prepared to negotiate with any one who represented the people of Ireland. A member here interjected a remark: "Murderers or otherwise."

Lloyd George went on to say that the exceptions he made were that Ireland must remain inside the empire, there must be acceptance of the Crown and Ulster must not be forced in against her will.

Wilson Wanted 100,000 Men for Ireland.

Those were the three conditions to be laid down in each case—the conditions by which the Government stood at this hour. Their policy was not altered in the slightest respect, and he submitted that the negotiations and treaty were justified whatever befell. First, he would ask the House to consider the alternative with which they were faced when the negotiations commenced. That was a practical consideration because they might have to face it. They were advised then to carry out a policy of repression effectively it was essential they should raise another 100,000 men. Their adviser was Sir Henry Wilson, who was Chief of Staff at the moment. The Secretary for War discussed with Sir Henry the number that would be needed and the methods whereby they should be raised.

Was 100,000 men an unreasonable figure? In Ulster at the present moment, which only contained one-fifth of the area of Ireland with two-thirds of the population behind the Government, there were 60,000 men engaged in maintaining law and order and in repressing rebellion in that area. There was a good deal of reason to hope that that would be accomplished in a short time, but only after an overwhelming display of force. Over an area five times as large as Ulster, with a population nineteenths of which was hostile, in the remotest and wildest parts of Ireland, 100,000 men would not be too many.

And then the case would have to be made to recruit in a population tired of war. Would they have been thoroughly convinced and have responded to the call? There was no doubt that at the time opinion was divided. There were protests against the policy of repression and those protests were growing.

It was necessary to make it clear to public opinion that there was another alternative, therefore they made a proposal which was accepted and negotiations followed. The Premier said he gathered that Bonar Law was not sanguine that the treaty would be carried out. He, Lloyd George, admitted to making any prediction about Ireland. He hesitated to say that the luck of Ireland had turned and that good was going to come. All he said was that if the occupation of the country had to be done, it must be done, but they would do it with advantages in their favor which they did not possess when the negotiations for the treaty began.

If the treaty was broken by those who signed it on behalf of Ireland, there would be this advantage, that the Government of the whole of Ireland would not rest on the British Government's shoulders. Even if the treaty were a failure, the fact that the Government had made a proposal, that it had been accepted and that the failure was attributable to no breach of faith on the Government's part—more than that, they had been patient, it might be said, they had been indulgent, they had been accused even of weakness—even though the treaty had been trampled on by Irishmen themselves when the Government was willing to do their best to carry it out—these facts would be an invaluable source of strength to the Government in the time to come. [Cheers.]

What was the position now? If the treaty with Ireland was broken the whole civilized world would say "England is blameless." [Cheers]. He was not willing to accept the theory that the treaty had been a failure [cheers]. There was bound to be a certain amount of dislocation during the transitional period and that would mean disorder, especially in Ireland, where the population had an inherited antagonism to authority and Government and where these were men not one of whom had had any experience in government because it was the tragedy of Ireland that, owing to the fact that the population was hostile to the Government, no popular leader would accept office under the Crown.

"I do not wish to lecture the provisional Government," continued Lloyd George, "but I must frankly say I have been disappointed with the way in which they are gripping their problem. I fully realize their difficulty. We are prepared as a Government to make allowances for them. They could have afforded more protection for life and property. There is no justification for what they are allowing at their own doors in Dublin where some 800 or 400 young men are holding the courts of justice and are permitted to run a sort of sham Government in the name of the Republic. This has been going on for nearly two months. It is not justifiable. So long as it lasts it lowers the authority of the provisional Government and the influence it is necessary it should maintain. Without using any language of menace, it is essential it should be brought to an end and quickly. [Cheers.]

The Treaty Is Flouted.

"This is a flouting, a defiance of the treaty. These men proclaim themselves to be Republicans. The treaty accepts the monarchy. We have communicated our views to the Provisional Government on this matter. I would rather that the Government acted upon their own initiative than that it should at all appear they had acted on compulsion. If necessary we shall lay that communication upon the table of the House, but I hope it will not be necessary.

"The provisional Government have now the authority of the Irish people behind them. What they fail to do now is a real test of whether they are fit to govern. By that test the treaty must stand or fall. I do not wish to withhold from the House what a serious position might depend upon that. Ireland is within the empire. Ireland acknowledges the Crown and the independence of Britain. Those three are the fundamental parts of the policy of this country. Ireland must show its capacity to discharge the elementary duties of a Government in protecting life and property. Those are essentials, which we are prepared to take any necessary steps to vindicate.

"But for the moment I would only make this appeal to the House: That the natural horror and indignation which is felt at the dastardly crime should not prevent us from preserving the calm which has always characterized Britain.

"The world is watching what this country is doing with anxious eyes. No one is watching it with greater trepidation and anxiety than our greatest friends who believe in Britain. The great statesman who is our friend and the happiest to be here at the present moment, France, is watching what England is doing. England is just like any other man. If England keeps her head she is the same England that has always displayed calm composure, judgment and firmness in moments when many would have been swept away by panic.

"I am not asking the House to sanction a policy of indefinite acquiescence in defiance of the treaty, quite the reverse. While we are pressing the North to deal impartially between all Irishmen we are making an appeal upon the South addressed in every particular to the treaty its members signed. If we fail it will be for the people to take action and find the men who will discharge their duty in respect as in all others. Fairlessly the House listened with the keenest anxiety to the Prime Minister's closing sentences, and loud murmurs of approval ran round as he sat down.

Churchill's Speech.

The House was crowded when Mr. Churchill rose to speak.

Mr. Churchill said:

"There are two issues before us this afternoon, different in scale, but both of great interest. There is the important series of questions connected with the means which have been and which ought to have been taken to protect individuals in this country against assassination by the Irish murder gang now operating which have been brought to our notice by the hateful crime committed a few days ago. Then there is the much larger issue, the main topic for our discussion, namely, what is the general position in which our Irish policy stands at the present moment having regard to the new circumstances created in Ireland and in this country since I spoke on the eve of Whitsuntide recess."

Mr. Churchill reminded the House how the treaty was repudiated by de Valera and a large number of his followers and only carried through the Dail after prolonged wrangling by seven votes, although the Irish people by every means expressed their agreement with the treaty.

"Such," he said, "was the situation when I became responsible as Chairman of the Cabinet committee for the general direction of Irish policy. The first great object to which we devoted ourselves was to procure for the Irish people as speedily as possible a free election at which they could express the views we believed they had and which events have shown they do hold. We pressed upon the Provisional Government the importance and urgency of the election which could alone give them the status of a national administration and enable them to govern with native authority.

"De Valera, knowing himself to be in a small minority, set to work to obstruct, delay and, if possible, prevent such an election. For this purpose he had recourse to the so-called Irish Republican Army, an association of persons for the purpose of organizing attacks upon Crown forces, ranging from individual murder to considerable ambuscades. It is not and was not at any time capable of any serious action according to the rules of war. Nevertheless it contained a considerable number of men perfectly ready to suffer for what they considered to be their cause. This so-called army was divided in opinion, but was the only organization at the disposal of the Provisional Government for the maintenance of peace and order, and the Provisional Government was led into a series of weak and unsatisfactory compromises.

"Mr. de Valera was able by his influences over the military Republican section of that force to destroy the capacity of the Provisional Government to hold a free election. The Provisional Government was consequently forced to agree to postpone the election for three months relying on de Valera's promise that the election should then be free; that in the meanwhile the army should act unitedly under the Provisional Government and should not interfere in the election nor oppose by force any Government returned at that election. His Majesty's Government was forced to acquiesce, but de Valera proceeded to break this promise and to cheat his fellow-countrymen, and, naturally, in a country where all authority had fallen into utter disrepute [die-hard cheers], many other people even more irresponsible than de Valera sprang forward to assert themselves and claim a glorious name.

"De Valera and his friends did everything to discredit the Provisional Government, to create disorder through the country and embroil Southern Ireland with Ulster. For these purposes the mutinous irregular portion of the Irish Republican Army were always available and around them gathered the predatory and criminal elements which exist in every society and take the lead in time of revolution.

Trouble Stirred Up in Ulster.

"Two so-called divisions of the Irish Republican Army were located in Ulster and were most improperly maintained as organizations in spite of the truce treaty and the rapid and steady evacuation of the British army from Southern Ireland. Whether the Provisional Government had the inclination to disperse these unlawful organizations in Ulster or not I cannot tell.

"But if they had that inclination I am sure they had not the power. The Ulster Government saw itself confronted with the existence of an active conspiracy in its midst, the object of which was to make the task of maintaining a separate Government impossible while from over the border serious raids occurred and the threat of raids was continued.

"It would be idle to pretend that the hostile attitude and action of the mutinous Irish Republican army within Northern Ireland and on its borders were not readily met in an equally combative and bellicose spirit by the Protestant Orangemen of the North. [Cries of "No!"] Every outrage committed by the Irish Republican army or by the Catholic elements was repaid with bloody interest ["Hear! Hear!"] and provocative reprisals and counter reprisals soon built up a ghastly story on both sides in which no doubt Catholics, being numerically weaker, have got the worst of it and have suffered about double as many casualties as the Protestants. No doubt if either side would stop for a month tranquility would be restored and justice would overtake the guilty, but we have never been able to obtain sufficient breathing space. There has always been an overlapping of atrocity and outrage which started the hideous process over again.

"However, I do not hesitate to say that the prime and continuing cause of all the horrors which have taken place in Belfast is the organization of these two divisions of the Irish Republican Army in northern territory ["Hear! Hear!"] and the continuous efforts made by the extreme party in the South to break down the northern Government and to force Ulster against her will to come under the rule of Dublin.

"I have tried to hold an even balance and I wish to make it perfectly clear that the position which the Government has adopted has never undergone any change or modification, and will not undergo, in principle, any change or modification. In our view the northern Government has to be supported effectively and at all costs against any attempt to coerce them into submission to the South. [Cheers.]

"It was natural, no doubt, that Sinn Fein extremists, having seen the success which has attended their attacks on British authority in the twenty-six counties and thinking it a very easy matter by the continuance of those same methods to break down what was much the smaller and apparently a much weaker organization of government in the North, they thought that having penetrated the mighty British empire and forced it to make accommodation with them that it would be an easy matter to make the position of the separate Ulster Government impossible, and by shooting public men and burning buildings and creating a continuous terror so to weary out and impoverish the Government and citizens of the North that for the sake of a quiet life they would be willing to submit themselves to Sinn Fein rule.

No More Yielding to Sinn Fein.

"I have always endeavored to make it perfectly clear that they will never succeed in this policy. [Cheers.] For reasons of high state policy involving the position of the whole British empire to its relation to the rest of the world we decided to give Irishmen in the twenty-six counties an opportunity of showing what they could do to make an ordered state. In this we were not actuated, as is ignorantly supposed in many parts of Ireland, by want of material power and by want of courage and tenacity. We were actuated by a sincere and earnest desire to end the historic quarrel between the two islands and to free our own good name from the reproach of being perpetually engaged in the coercion of a small people. [Cheers.]

"But in the north the position is quite different. There a large majority of the people are bitterly opposed to the Sinn Feiners and ardently proclaim their loyalty and affection for this country, its monarchy, its institutions and its empire. [Cheers.] Even if they were deserted by Britain they would fight desperately and rightly to preserve their freedom. [Cheers.] But they will not be deserted by Britain. On the contrary, they will be aided, helped and strengthened with money, arms and men to any extent that may be necessary to enable them to maintain their security and political rights and independence.

"We, therefore, steadily strengthened the organization of their police force and we have supplied them in increasing quantities with all the arms and material they may require to make a powerful force for the defense in any eventuality of their hearths and homes. His Majesty's Government has supplied to the Government of Northern Ireland upward of 50,000 stands of arms and all the equipment necessary for a defense force organized on that scale.

"Ulster is now fully equipped and Southern Ireland has had its opportunity of expressing its will at a general election. There will be no excuse in Ulster now that the Northern Government has been strengthened and is effectually supported for acts of lawless reprisal against the Catholic population in their midst. I rejoice to see that during the last few weeks Sir James Craig's government has evidently gained a much more effective control of the situation. We could not have greater proof of that than that the horrible event which has just occurred in this country and the murders of six or seven Protestants outside Belfast and further shooting of Unionists in Belfast during the last forty-eight hours have not been attended by any violent outrage on the part of the overwhelmingly Protestant population. The impression I have gathered from all the information placed at my disposal is that they are steadily breaking down, wearing down and quelling both murder and incendiarism. As this process continues they will be more and more able to prevent the vile reprisals upon innocent Catholics.

"If this assertion is oversanguine, then they will be given whatever further aid is necessary to enable them to make their authority absolutely effective throughout the six counties, no matter what attacks are directed against them or how many persons on either side suffer in the process.

"A triple agreement has now been reached between the British Government, the provisional government and the Government of Northern Ireland by which a neutral zone some four or five miles wide is to be established in the Pettigoe and Belleek districts. Within this zone no person is to be officially armed and an unarmed police of a local character is to be established for local purposes, and the maintenance of order throughout the district is to be exclusively confined to the imperial troops. Imperial troops will be stationed as a shield between the two hostile and mutually exclusive forces of the Irish Republican army and the Ulster special police. Any person in that district found using arms would have no recognition or protection from any government whatever and would be liable to be shot by troops on the mere fact being established.

"The experiment may fail because of the pressure of larger external events, but if it failed then it will be necessary for the imperial forces to draw a military line between Northern and Southern Ireland, not in lieu along the tortuous county boundaries, but along the line of the canals and railways which run through Donegal and Ballyshannon. We shall endeavor to stand between the antagonists and prevent the loss of life and destruction of property, and by so doing make it absolutely clear that any attempt on the part of Southern Ireland to break into the territory of Northern Ireland would be met and repulsed by the imperial forces. [Cheers.]

Ulster to Be Protected.

"The greedy and criminal design of breaking down the Northern Government has got to die in the hearts of those in whom it flourishes, whatever may be the cost to individuals or to the Government. [Cheers.] The Sinn Fein Party has got to realize once and for all that they will never win except by her own free will and thatthe more they kick against the pricks the worse it will be for them."

Mr. Churchill then described the policy thus outlined as one of the main foundations of the Government's policy and declared that signs now evident that prominent persons were likely to be exposed to serious danger would not cause the ministers to deviate in the slightest degree from their resolved course. Special protection for ministers, he explained, had been withdrawn last January after the Dail had ratified the treaty in accordance with recommendation made by Sir Basil Thomson a few weeks before.

There were few things England could be prouder of, Mr. Churchill declared, than its long immunity from political assassinations, and he continued:

"Having regard to the fact that there has been no case of assassination of any prominent public man in England for generations it is to my mind monstrous to make the tragic event and dastardly outrage of Thursday the ground for an attack upon the police authorities or upon the Home Secretary. [Government cheers.] I admit that a week or fortnight ago I recognized that the course of events in Ireland might make it necessary to resume the precautions in force six months previously. Therefore we have begun to protect various persons, some ministers and some private and unofficial persons and in some cases quite humble persons. I also am engaged to be informed by the Northern Government as to the movements of certain persons about whom, when they visited this country, anxiety was felt. No warning came from the Northern Government about the position of the late Field Marshal Sir Henry Wilson, but we have been confronted with a shocking and abominable crime and forces of the state will now be much more fully employed in the future than they have been in the past. We must continue to show that assassinations will not change the course of British policy and that in this robust and manly country murderers will be caught and delivered up to justice." Cheers.

The speaker then paid tribute to the memory of Sir Henry Wilson, recalling that at the time of the Agadir crisis, Wilson made a forecast of the plan of the German invasion of France and Belgium, which was afterwards vindicated in every detail.

"If the French staff," he said, "had acted in accordance with those views the whole of the disasters in the early part of the war might have been avoided and the sum total of human loss enormously abridged."

Reverting to the Irish situation, Mr. Churchill said he knew Sir James Craig and the upright men associated with him would do their duty to prevent unlawful reprisals, however great the provocation, and to protect the Catholic minority in their midst.

Now that the elections had been held in Southern Ireland there was no excuse whatever for the Provisional Government failing to discharge their duty not merely in the letter but in the spirit of the treaty. His Majesty's Government had been ignoring many improprieties and ambiguites and qualifications in order to secure for the Irish people an unprejudiced expression of their views. They had overlooked much in a Government weak and embarrassed and unsupported but that period was over. The Irish people had pronounced, it was clear, that any candidate who stood for the treaty received strong or overwhelming support. The Irish people seemed to single out particularly for their reprobation the ferocious Countess Markiewicz and the renegade Erskine Childers. The results could be summed up as follows: "You have given us our freedom, we wish to give you our friendship. You will help us towards a united Ireland, we will help you towards a united empire."

"That," said Mr. Churchill, "is the road along which we march and along which we are going to march. Do not let us be drawn from it. I should not be dealing honestly and fully with this subject if I left on the mind an impression that all that is required are patience and compromise. No firmness is needed as much as patience. The Constitution satisfactorily conformed to the treaty but there is no room for the slightest diminution of the imperial and constitutional safeguards and stipulations which it contains. The mere paper affirmations, however important, unaccompanied by any effective effort to bring them into action, will not be sufficient. Mere denunciation of murder, however heartfelt, unaccompanied by the apprehension of a single murderer, cannot be accepted.

Dublin Government Must Restore Order.

"His Majesty's Government do not feel, after these elections have clearly shown what are the wishes of the Irish people, that we can continue to tolerate many gross lapses from the spirit of the treaty which we have put up with and acquiesced in during the last six months. Hitherto we have been dealing with a weak Government and have been anxious to do nothing to compromise the clear expression of Irish opinion. But now that the Provisional Government is greatly strengthened, it is its duty to give effect to the treaty in letter and spirit without delay.

"The presence in Dublin, in violent occupation of the Four Courts, of a band of men styling themselves the headquarters of the Republican Executive is a gross breach and defiance of the treaty. From this nest of anarchy and treason, not only to the British Crown but to the Irish people, murderous outrages are stimulated and encouraged and also probably in Great Britain for this organization is kept in being with branches in Ulster, Scotland and England—the declared purpose of which is the wrecking of the treaty by the vilest process which human degradation can conceive.

"The time has come," said Churchill in conclusion, "when it is not unfair, premature or impatient for us to make to this strengthened Irish Government and the new Irish Parliament a request in express terms that this sort of thing must come to an end. If it does not come to an end, if through weakness, want of courage or some other even less creditable reason, if it is not brought to an end, and a speedy end, then it is my duty to say on behalf of his Majesty's Government that we shall regard the treaty as having been formally violated [cheers]; that we shall take no steps to carry out or legalise its further stages and that we shall resume full liberty of action in any direction that may seem proper to any extent that may be necessary to safeguard the interests and rights that are entrusted to our care."

Churchill Faces Fire of Questions.

After Churchill's statement, Sir Frederick Banbury opened the general debate by moving a reduction of the salary of the Chief Secretary for Ireland by £2,000 as a vote of censure on the Government. Banbury was very bitter in his criticism, and declared the Government ought to have carried out Sir Henry Wilson's policy in regard to Ireland.

Colonel Gretton was more moderate in his speech, but equally severe in criticism of the Government's inaction. Sir J. M. McNaghten, a new member for Londonderry, asserted that terrorism was being carried on in Ireland by the same persons with the same means as those who had found their latest victim in London.

Ronald McNeill hailed Churchill's statement that the Irish Republican Army was the cause of all the trouble in the north as a valuable one, but the Government should have seen that a firm administration was set up in Southern Ireland before they withdrew. McNeill described the conversation he had last week with Sir Henry Wilson. Hearing that the Field Marshal was going to Glasgow, McNeill remarked: "They might have a shot at you there." Sir Henry replied: "They might miss me." "They might hit you," retorted McNeill. Sir Henry paused and then whimsically observed: "Yes; they might hit me, but it would be much nicer to be shot by them than to shake hands with them."

George Barnes made an appeal to calm reason and against inflaming public opinion, and he agreed with Mr. Asquith that Englishmen must have patience. Bonar Law described Churchill's speech as one of the best he had ever made. He urged that the House and country should not allow the death of Field Marshal Wilson, a great soldier and lovable man, to be used to inflame passion.

"For some months, he said, he had been very anxious about the position in Ireland and very uncertain whether the Government were dealing with it in the right way. If he could have foreseen what the position would be today he did not know whether he would have voted for the treaty. He understood the Government meant to govern, but they had not. Before the treaty went through Parliament, he considered it was broken not merely in letter, but in the whole spirit by the de Valera party. It was assumed that those who signed the treaty would act on it. There was no murder in Ulster until those who were dissatisfied with the treaty began outrages. The occupation of the Four Courts by those who were planning outrages was intolerable. They must say to the Provisional Government, 'You must stop this or there is war [Cheers].'"

He believed the Government meant to see this through, but if they did not he should be against them.

Bonar Law's insistence on the restoration of law and order in Ireland was listened to with marked sympathy by the House.

House in Mourning.

Before Mr. Churchill made his statement reviewing the Irish situation as a whole a great number of questions on particular points had been put by various M. P.'s. In both Houses of Parliament there was a general recognition of the burial day of Sir Henry Wilson. Everybody of every party was in mourning black and at an early hour in the afternoon it was predicted that the chastening effect of sorrow would tend to soften the asperities of debate which might otherwise well be a heated one.

During question time the recapitulation by Mr. Churchill of the murders in Southern Ireland since the signing of the treaty was received with indignation and demands were made for further pressure on the provisional Government to bring the murderers to justice. Mr. Churchill counselled patience.

"If the provisional Government do nothing is the Colonial Secretary going to sit still and also do nothing?" angrily asked Sir F. Banbury, and Ronald McNeill acidly inquired if the Colonial Secretary had determined any period at which his patience would break down.

Churchill was still unruffled by the taunt and he quietly replied:

"I have fixed in my own mind certain tests both of circumstances and time which will determine the moment when a change of policy is necessary."

Churchill made a few concise words in expressing his opinion of the statement issued from Irish Republican Army Headquarters at the Four Courts, Dublin, refusing to condemn such actions as the murder of Sir Henry Wilson, to which Mr. Pennefather called the Colonial Secretary's attention.

"I have read with disgust the disgraceful statement," he said.

Home Secretary Shortt was questioned about the police protection given to Sir Henry Wilson, and he made it clear that a special officer was placed at the War Office for protection of the chief of the General Staff, and that when Wilson resigned from that post police protection for Ministers had ceased. There was no policeman on short beat near Sir Henry's house like there was near Lord Carson's, because there was no reason to suppose he was in danger.

The Home Secretary told Mr. Ormsby-Gore that in the raids at the week-end nothing was found revealing the existence of an organised plot against any specific person.

Die-Hards Denounce Premier.

After Bonar Law sat down the debate was carried on by a number of Ulster sympathisers. Sir Samuel Hoare, speaking of the treatment of the Protestant minority in the South of Ireland, said that the greatest condemnation of the Bolshevist Government of Russia was that hundreds of thousands of Russian subjects were compelled to live outside Russia. "Let us not have the same thing happening with a minority in Ireland," he said. Week by week men and women were being driven out of their homes in Ireland.

Gideon Murray said the Government's policy of vacillation and surrender had helped to create a deplorable state in Ireland which culminated in the tragedy of last Thursday. The country would not be satisfied with Home Secretary Shortt being thrown to the wolves. On the contrary, it would demand that the Prime Minister, "the Prince of quick-change artists, the man who shook hands with murderers, lunched with Bolsheviki who were double-dyed murderers, a man who by his follies, weakness and shiftiness had cost the country Ireland and was breaking up the empire—he was the man who should be thrown to the wolves, with all his Government."

Colonel Archer Shee directed his criticisms chiefly against the Home Secretary and called for his resignation.

Major Jameson said the Government would have the country behind it in demanding that Ireland now in has been given its chance, should set its house in order.

Mr. Pennefather held that the experiment which was being made in Ireland to placate foreign nations was being continued at expense of British wives.

Shortt Defends Secret Service.

Secretary Shortt followed Mr. Pennefather. He defended Scotland Yard and claimed that the Secret Service was more efficient today than two months ago. On Oct. 8 Sir Basil Thomson, then Chief of the Secret Service, advised that if the Irish negotiations did not break down protection of public men might be reduced. Protection was withdrawn and for five months there was no untoward incident. The Secret Service advised that robberies of arms and incendiarism might be expected, but the Government was advised there would be no organized murder in this country, and he did not believe it had ever been intended. He could find no trace of special warning with regard to Sir Henry Wilson, but lots of anonymous letters reached the authorities.

It had been stated that the police authorities in Northern Ireland had news of a plot to assassinate Wilson and communicated it to him. He had no knowledge of it and wired the Home Secretary of Northern Ireland for confirmation or denial. The reply was that the heads of the police in Ulster had no special information of a plot to assassinate Wilson.

He took precautions to protect him on his visits: the Home Office never ignored warnings. It was obvious Sir Henry's life was in danger in Ireland but not in this country. It was cruel to suggest negligence on the part of the Secret Service.

The two men concerned in Sir Henry's death had no connection so far as could be ascertained with the Sinn Fein. They were Londoners and ex-soldiers and their relatives lived in London. The pistols used were no part of the arms handed to the Provisional Government in Ireland, according to the War Office experts.

GLOOM IN PREMIER'S SPEECH.

Lobbies See Hint of Resignation—Ultimatum to Ireland.

LONDON, June 26 (Associated Press).—Opinions expressed in the lobbies of the House after the debate tonight turned on the fact that the Prime Minister's speech was more gloomy than usual and his reluctance to make any confident prediction as to the course of events, and also that the debate had centred less on the murder of Field Marshal Wilson than on the fate of the treaty.

Mr. Churchill's speech was interpreted as indicating that what amounts to an ultimatum had been sent to the Provisional Government, and it was generally supposed that the test of the Provisional Government's good faith would be whether it would be able to expel the dissidents from the four courts.

The cryptic sentence at the end of the Premier's speech seemed to suggest that the Government would resign if it failed to secure the adhesion of the South to the treaty. But it was also admitted that the sentence was capable of another interpretation.

BELFAST VICTIM DIES.

More Fires and a Bomb Attack in Ulster Capital.

CORONER'S VERDICT OF 'WILLFUL MURDER'

Witnesses Describe Shooting of Wilson—Jury Praises Police and Civilians for Capture.

LONDON, June 26.—A verdict of willful murder against James Connolly and James O'Brien was returned by a Coroner's jury at Westminster Court which today investigated the assassination of Field Marshal Wilson. The jury was guarded by the police while being driven to the Wilson house, in Eaton Place, to view the body, and a considerable number of detectives were on duty in and around the Court House.

Various witnesses, whose identity was veiled under numerical designations, gave evidence as to the shooting. A taxi driver stated he drove Field Marshal Wilson from Charing Cross to the Travelers' Club and then to his home. Just after Sir Henry got out of the cab there was a bang, and the witness saw Sir Henry flinch his shoulder.

"I saw a man with a revolver in his hand standing in the road," said the witness. "He was three yards from the Field Marshal. I actually saw him fire the second and third shots. The second and third shots went quickly, and the Field Marshal fell face downward on the pavement. I did not see a second man. The first man seemed to stand perfectly still as he fired the second and third shots."

A maid employed by Sir Henry Wilson said that between 20 and 25 minutes past 2 o'clock on the day of the tragedy she was in the kitchen when she heard a bang. She jumped on to the kitchen table and through the window saw Sir Henry lying on the pavement. She rushed outside and found him on his back in the centre of the pavement.

Coroner—Was his sword drawn?

"Yes, sir," replied the witness, bursting into tears.

"Was it lying by his side?"

"Yes."

"Had he got his hand on it?"

"No, sir."

The girl was very much affected as she continued her evidence.

"'I am exclaimed, 'Oh, Sir Henry!'" she said, "and he tried to speak to me, but was unable to do so. Her Ladyship then came out and Sir Henry was carried into the study, where he died."

Other witnesses, both civilians and police, described how the two men were followed and finally arrested.

Dr. Henry Weir gave the result of the examination of the body made by Dr. Pillsbury. There were, he said, eight bullet wounds and an abrasion caused by a bullet. Two wounds were caused by one bullet. The wounds on either side of the chest were the cause of death. Detective Inspector Burton, questioned by the Coroner about the revolvers, said they had been examined by the War Office, whose report had not yet been received. Both weapons were service revolvers and bore the Government mark.

After paying tribute to Sir Henry Wilson as a "truly great man and brilliant soldier" the Coroner in his address to the jury said the facts seemed to be indisputable. The men gave Sir Henry no warning. "He was shot when his back was turned as brave and fearless men are shot by assassins. The pursuit seems to me to be a very fine and inspiring thing.

"In this terrible tragedy," continued the Coroner speaking with emotion, "law abiding Englishmen who saw the murderers firing revolvers in the street took their lives in their hands and gave chase. there was something very fine about the persistent way in which these casual men in the street stuck to these armed ruffians. The conduct of the police was beyond all praise, for they were unarmed. No praise could be too high and no admiration too great for the way in which these brave police officers have maintained the noble traditions of their force."

The jury expressed their admiration of the police and civilians who assisted in the capture and the Coroner said he would forward their remarks to the Garnegie Fund.

LONDON, June 28 (Associated Press).—J. H. MacDonnell, solicitor for the prisoners, Connolly and O'Brien, appeared in the courtroom at today's inquest, and told the Coroner he had advised the accused not to attend today's proceedings.

A divisional Inspector of Police testified he had visited the prisoners at the police station and informed them he would charge them with the willful murder of Field Marshal Wilson. Neither man, he said, made any answer to the charge.

The Coroner heard Cecil William Wilson, a retired Major, who testified that he had viewed the body and identified it as that of his brother.

Mr. Wilson said that the Field Marshal in the last few months had not mentioned his life being in danger. The witness expressed the belief that the two prisoners charged with slaying James Connolly and James O'Brien had come from Ireland within the last ten days.

The Coroner committed Connolly and O'Brien for trial at the next session of the Central Criminal Court.

LONDON, June 26.—The remains of Field Marshal Sir Henry Wilson lie in the crypt of St. Paul's Cathedral alongside those of Wellington, Wolseley and Roberts, Irishmen all.

Nothing that military pomp or religious ceremonial could supply was lacking in the last ceremonial with which the murdered man was laid to rest. Escorted by 3,000 guardsmen with Field Marshals Haig, Robertson, Horne, Methuen and Grenfell and Lord Beatty representing the navy, and other distinguished officers acting as pall bearers, Field Marshal Wilson's coffin was borne on a gun carriage through three miles of streets crowded with mourning citizens.

Marshal Foch, General Nivelle and other officers of the allied armies walked behind the coffin and then came a single carriage in which sat Lady Wilson, the widow, and Mrs. James Wilson, the aged mother of the Field Marshal. Other relatives followed on foot, and then came the charger of the late Field Marshal, riderless.

The long procession which followed included representatives of the Army Council, the Board of Admiralty, members of the Air Council, foreign military attaches and a detachment of the Royal Ulster Constabulary.

Every yard of the long route was lined by spectators who mourned for the Irishman done to death by other Irishmen.

In St. Paul's Cathedral were gathered the Prime Minister and Cabinet of Great Britain and between 3,000 and 4,000 people representative of the leaders in every walk of life. The Duke of Connaught was there on behalf of the King.

To the boom of distant guns and roll of muffled drums the coffin was carried to a bier under the dome. Six tall candles burned around it. At its foot were laid cushions bearing the murdered Field Marshal's baton, medals and orders, while on the coffin itself were the Union Jack, Sir Henry's plumed hat and sword and a wreath from Lady Wilson. The family and chief mourners sat to the left while to the right were distinguished army officers and the Diplomatic Corps, among whom were Ambassador Harvey, attended by Col. S. Albert, U. S. A., and Captain Hussey, U. S. N. Premier Lloyd George, Mr. Chamberlain, Lord Balfour and the rest of the Cabinet were seated near by, and the rest of the space under the dome was filled by naval and military officers in brilliant uniforms.

The service itself was beautiful in its simplicity. The twenty-third psalm "The Lord is My Shepherd," to a chant by Barnby, a few verses from the regular funeral service lesson and then the anthem "If We Believe That Jesus Died" spoke its message of comfort.

The clergy came from the choir to the head of the grave for the committal prayers and when the body had been lowered to the crypt another beautiful anthem was sung "I Heard a Voice From Heaven." Then after a few prayers and after the congregation had joined in the familiar hymn with its many wartime memories, "O God Our Help in Ages Past," the Archbishop of Canterbury pronounced the blessing from the chancel steps and as the last notes of Stainer's "Seventold Amen" died away the Irish Guards' Band played the Dead March from "Saul." Then far away from the end of the cathedral came the bugle call of the Royal Ulster Rifles of which the late Field Marshal was Colonel in last post and reveille.

Memorial Service in Belfast.

BELFAST, June 26.—Sir James Craig, the Ulster Premier, and the Ulster members of the London and Belfast Parliaments, attended a memorial service for the late Field Marshal Wilson in Belfast Cathedral today. Bishop Grierson officiated. The police took elaborate precautions in connection with the ceremonial.

A vast crowd gathered in the vicinity of the Cathedral, its numbers swollen by workers from the shipyards, which closed down for the day as a token of respect to the late Field Marshal.

Bishop Grierson paid tribute to the martyred soldier, saying his assassination proved that all moral sense had left not an inconsiderable part of the population. He wondered if Great Britain had lost her old honor and had ceased to have a sense of shame.

"Field Marshal Wilson," he said, "identified himself passionately with the cause of the empire and of Ulster, and he was slain by the enemies of both. It is time for the Central Government to realize the eternal fact that unless the moral law is enforced nought but anarchy awaits us."

After the last post was sounded by buglers the whole congregation sang the British national anthem, and the service concluded with the sounding of the reveille.

DUBLIN, June 26.—A large body of irregulars this afternoon held up the motor engineering establishment of Messrs. Ferguson in lower Bagnot Street and took possession of ten or eleven motor cars.

Later a good deal of commotion was caused by the arrival of two armored cars from General Headquarters at Beggars Bush with a body of regular I. R. A. They surrounded the building and held up the raiders, who surrendered thereupon.

The Beggars Bush forces made prisoners of the officers in charge of the irregular force, but released the men.

WANTS PROGRAM CHANGED

Intimates Delegation Has Come to Hear What Others Have to Offer—Denies Lenin Is Incapacitated.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Copyright, 1922, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, June 26.—Like the proverbial bull in the china shop and looking the part, M. Litvinoff, head of the Russian delegation, breezed into the fragile Hague conference today, bowled over Foreign Minister Van Karnebeek's plea for secrecy, broke all rules about talking politics, refused to accept the powers' plans for the program of conference work and announced that Russia, standing on her May 11 memorandum, had come to hear what the other nations had to offer in the way of credits for Moscow.

Two hours after arriving he went to the Peace Palace and laid down a decree that the plan of talking about Russia's debts and private property before discussing credits would not do and that credits must be discussed first because if there were not going to be any credits it was useless to talk about the rest.

As for the plan of dividing up into subcommissions as the Non-Russian Commission did, Litvinoff announced that the Russians would remain one delegation ready to meet any number of opposing commissions, but always together.

Denies Lenin Is Paralyzed.

The Russian Chairman declared to be lies the stories about Lenin being paralyzed and said he expected the Russian chief to be back on the job in one or two months. He stated that for six months Lenin had been more or less in retirement.

Litvinoff's train pulled into Scheveningen station at 1 o'clock, having been shunted from the main line at The Hague. No official of the Dutch Government met him, only two policemen, who directed him and his score of assistants to the Orange Hotel, across the way, and in accompanying him objected to his walking on the grass.

The Russians were shown into a wing of the hotel shut off from the rest, and as soon as they had entered a corps of uniformed police took stand before the door.

In response to a request Litvinoff sent word immediately that he would receive journalists, but the police barred the way, refusing entrance. Marcel Cachin, the French Communist Deputy, was called into service as go-between, with the result that Litvinoff announced he would see the journalists at 5 o'clock. While at the Peace Palace he notified the other leaders that no gag was to be placed on him, and when 5 o'clock came the journalists, after having their credentials examined by the Dutch plain clothes police, were admitted into the Orange Hotel to be received by the Russian leader.

Talks on Many Subjects.

M. Litvinoff then delivered himself of a lecture of which M. Rakovsky might have been envious. He talked about everything, from Lenin's health to disarmament. He had had letters from Lenin three days before leaving Moscow and had personal knowledge that nothing serious was the matter. Rest was all the Premier required, he said.

He took pains to deny reports that Joffe and Rakovsky had been at The Hague negotiating secret agreements. Joffe, he said, was in Petrograd and Rakovsky in the Ukraine.

Launching into a discussion of The Hague conference, Litvinoff said there had been no change in the Russian attitude since Genoa and that The Hague was a continuation of Genoa. He recalled that the Russians at Genoa had consented to drop counter-claims of 50,000,000,000 gold rubles if they got credits.

"That is our proposition now," he said. "At Genoa the Governments said they could not let us have money because it must come from private sources. Well, we expect to meet private sources here. We expect to meet here representatives of financial groups who will advance credits to us. On the question of credits hinges our whole attitude. We do not wish enormous amounts of cash, although we could use some; we want mostly credits. But although we do not insist that these credits come from Government—we are not particular where they come from—we do insist that they be credits to our Government, to be used by our Government."

In reply to a question, Litvinoff said the Russians acted on their May 11th note, as it was as a result of this note that The Hague conference was called.

He said he had asked that the order of work laid out be reversed so that credits would be discussed first.

"If the question of credits for the Russian Government is solved," he said, "we can discuss other matters, such as debts and private property. Unless credits are arranged it is absolutely no use discussing these other questions, for we will stand on our counter-claims, which outbalance any claims against us. If we get credits we will make concessions, otherwise we will not. If the governments wish to arrange with us, it is up to them to find credits."

A questioner said: "Many persons think the matter of private property should be discussed first and then, that settled, the matter of credits be taken up."

Litvinoff replied: "We think differently."

Asked what he thought of the views of the other delegations that this was not a political conference, he answered: "Call it what you like, it makes no difference. There are certain matters to be adjusted. We have not come here to preach, we are here to do business, if that is what the others want to do."

Reviews New Laws in Russia.

Litvinoff next reviewed the new laws and decrees in Russia affecting the matters at issue. He said contract rights were now regulated by law and that the system of barristers had been restored. But more important, he said, a new decree recognized the ownership of private property in future in the form of factories and machinery, though not in land. The benefits of this law were available to Russians and the nationals of all Governments which had agreements with the Soviet Government, or individuals who made separate direct agreements with Moscow. Oil, he stated, remained the property of the State.

The new law was not retroactive and does not bind Moscow to give up property already nationalized.

Turning then to the political aspect of the conference Litvinoff said the Russian Government was in better and stronger position than at the time of the Genoa meeting. The famine danger had been overcome. There were big crops this year, no lack of food and perhaps Russia would be able to export wheat. The attitude of the population in supporting the Government in the trial of the Social Revolutionaries, he said, showed it was more firmly in the saddle and consequently able to be firmer in its foreign relations.

Just to show he was obeying Foreign Minister Van Karnebeek's decree against propaganda, M. Litvinoff reviewed the Soviet disarmament offer at Genoa and told how Moscow had invited the Baltic States and Poland to a disarmament conference. Russia, he said, wished Europe's armies cut 50 per cent. and was always ready to co-operate to that end.

The Russian delegation now consists of Litvinoff, Krestinsky and Sokolnikoff. Krassin and Ravovsky are expected to arrive next week.

Tonight the other delegations are wiring their Governments for instructions in view of Litvinoff's attitude, and the Russian and other leaders will meet tomorrow, the meeting today between M. Litvinoff and M. Patyn, head of the non-Russian committee not having led to any decision.

COMMUNISTS HOLD MEETING.

French and English Delegates Attend Conference at Amsterdam.

THE HAGUE, June 26.—The Dutch Government's fear of an outbreak of Bolshevist propaganda, especially preceding the coming elections in Holland, is being realized, and the Communists, who up to the present had been able to do little in the way of international propaganda in Holland, are having their innings at present.

The arrival of the Russian delegation at The Hague today was preceded yesterday by a large meeting of Communists at Amsterdam on the occasion of The Hague conference, as announced on hand bills. The Dutch Communist member of Parliament Wynkoop spoke of difficulties that prevented the American, Belgian, British-Indian and Czechoslovak delegates from attending the the meeting. Marcel Cachin, the French Communist editor of Humanité, and MacManus, President of the British Communist Party, were both able to attend, however, and made long speeches, which were enthusiastically greeted.

The Dutch Communist van Ravensteyn stated that Russia had returned from Genoa with untorn banner, and that Genoa showed capitalism doomed to death.

Wynkoop, Ravensteyn, Cahin and MacManus received today the Bolshevist delegation at the Hotel Ornage, Scheveningen, which, however, was carefully guarded against all intruders.

SAYS SOVIET MAY LAST ANOTHER TEN YEARS

'Ten Points' on Russia by European Investigator Distributed at the Hague.

THE HAGUE, June 26.—The Associated Press has obtained, with permission to publish, a copy of a private report on Russia which will be distributed to the chiefs of the delegations from non-Russian countries. This report embodies the views of a prominent and competent European observer of liberal tendencies, who recently came from Russia after making a thorough investigation of the political conditions there.

The report contains ten paragraphs, remarkable for their brevity. The name of the investigator is withheld by agreement. The "ten points" follow:

First—Barring unforeseen events, the Soviet régime is not near collapse. Their most ardent adversaries, the Socialists, think they may continue in power for another ten years.

Second—The economic exhaustion of Russia is complete, and admitted by the Soviets. All power of purchase has disappeared.

Third—The Soviets are divided among themselves, and internal struggles have begun.

Fourth—Hatred of the old régime is general among the people.

Fifth—Blockade and foreign military aggression have maintained the Soviets in power, but resumption of contact with Europe will destroy them and accelerate their evolution in the direction of conservatism.

Sixth—The Soviets recognize without hesitation that only the foreigner can reconstruct Russia.

Seventh—For the moment the intransigeant faction of the Soviets triumphs.

Eighth—Litvinoff does not arrive with conciliatory intentions.

Ninth—The Russian Socialists would adhere immediately to Sovietism if they could obtain the right to vote, the secret vote and liberty of speech and the press. But the Socialists are inclined to refuse the franchise to the bourgeoisie.

Tenth—The blockade and foreign military interventions have developed very powerful nationalism and xenophobia in Russia.

RATHENAU EXACTED GOOD FAITH PLEDGE

TOLD SHERRILL OF STAND

Obtained France's Approval Before Becoming Foreign Minister—Communists Taunt Poincare.

PARIS, June 26 (Associated Press).—Dr. Walter Rathenau, the assassinated German Foreign Minister, before consenting to enter the Wirth Cabinet demanded and received a written declaration from the Government that it would fulfill the London reparations agreement of May 5, 1921, Charles H. Sherrill, recently appointed American member of the International Olympic Committee and former American Minister to Argentina, told The Associated Press today.

Mr. Sherrill, who was in Berlin at the time Dr. Rathenau accepted Cabinet membership, added that Rathenau said that if this agreement were not carried out he would resign and publish the Government's undertaking. This document, Mr. Sherrill said, will doubtless be found among Rathenau's papers.

In relating an experience with Dr. Rathenau just before he entered the Wirth Cabinet, Mr. Sherrill said:

"I visited Germany late in May of last year, while writing a book on the Prime Ministers and Presidents. Thanks to Max Warburg of Hamburg, who accompanied me to Berlin to introduce me to certain leading Germans, I met Chancellor Wirth and Dr. Rosen, the then Minister of Foreign Affairs, and also Hugo Stinnes. All the Government officials were agreed that the Wirth Ministry could not ensure to carry out the terms of the treaty of reparations just signed in London on May 5 unless it was strengthened by the inclusion of some outstanding representative of what Americans call big business, some successful figure in the world of commerce, well known outside as well as within Germany."

Rathenau Asked for His View.

Mr. Sherrill said that, much to his surprise, he received a telephone call from Dr. Rathenau asking him to call upon him and he did so.

"Dr. Rathenau, upon my arrival," he said, "further surprised me by saying that he had been invited to enter the Wirth Cabinet as Minister of Reconstruction, and he desired to consult with some one who was not a Berliner whose opinion he would not therefore know in advance. He had heard of me through Herr Warburg as an average American interested in political affairs. So he wanted my outsider's opinion upon so serious a step as relinquishing the leadership of the General Electric Trust of Germany for political life.

"Naturally, I replied that, knowing nothing of German politics, it would be foolhardy to venture an opinion.

"Nevertheless, when he pressed for a reply, I pointed out that one thing was clear even to casual stranger from America: that his father's name was as well known in Chicago and New York as in Berlin, as meaning the certain fulfillment of business agreements regardless of consequences, and therefore he should not risk his father's good name unless he was convinced that the Ministry he was about to enter intended to fulfill the May 5 agreement with the Allies as surely as his father would have fulfilled any contract he had signed.

"Dr. Rathenau seemed to be much affected by this, and strode several times up and down the room repeating aloud: 'My father's name; my father's name!'

Announced Terms to Wirth.

"Suddenly he stopped in front of me and said:

"'I will accept the post. But first I will go to the Ministry of Justice and make them give me in writing a statement that the Government intends to carry out the May 5 London agreement. Then, if later on they decide otherwise, I shall resign and publish that statement.'

"We went together in his motor car to the Ministry of Justice. He went in and sent me on in the car to the Adlon Hotel, where the news ticker soon announced that he had accepted the portfolio in the Wirth Cabinet.

"It is an intense satisfaction to me to pay this tribute to so stanch a supporter of the written word, to the high character of the man who took with him into political life that honesty of purpose, learned in the higher levels of business, without which business will not succeed and Governments ought not to succeed."

France Endorsed Rathenau

"Clouds are gathering over Europe, and I can quite well understand why the United States is disinclined to mix in European politics," said a high French official today in discussing the assassination of Dr. Rathenau. This official declared that the Monarchists of Germany had not disarmed, but were evidently determined to go to any lengths to prevent the German Republic from fulfilling its promises.

The French Government, in reply to an inquiry on the part of Dr. Rathenau before he entered the Berlin Cabinet as to whether he would be looked upon favorably in Paris as the German Foreign Minister, said "yes," it was disclosed this afternoon by this Government official. The statement was made in answer to Chancellor Wirth's declaration in the Reichstag that the French Government had failed to support the Republican régime in Germany.

It is understood that the present Premier attributes the death of Dr. Rathenau to a plot having for its object the defeat of all plans for the execution of the treaty, and particularly to obstruct the action of the Committee on Guarantees, which, under an agreement with the Reparation Commission, went to Berlin last week to assume control of the revenues and expenditures of the Reich.

The French press continues to be absorbed by the Rathenau assassination, interpreting it in the general terms that Germany is an unceasing menace to France and to the peace of Europe, unwilling to acknowledge defeat or to pay her just dues to the victors.

There are frequent references to Friday's speech in the Chamber of Deputies by former Minister of War Lefevre, who said in the debate on the army service bill that Germany was preparing for new aggressions against France, which was now not supported by the United States and possibly not by her other former allies.

Communist Deputies in Uproar.

The Radical Royalist, Leon Daudet, in L'Action Francaise, announces a "third Franco-German war," qualifying this by saying that only an immediate and decisive move in Germany can prevent it.

Accusing the Communist Deputies in the French Chamber of inciting a plot to assassinate Premier Poincaré, and demanding that a law be passed immediately authorizing the Minister of Justice to place the most violent members of the Communist Party under arrest, Daudet caused an uproar in the Chamber this afternoon. The debate developed into invectives against the Premier from the Communist benches, in which the cry "Poincaré means war!" was flung at him by Deputy Ernest Laffont.

Springing from his seat and pointing a warning finger at Laffont, Premier Poincaré shouted indignantly:

"Do you take the responsibility for that remark?"

Laffont retorted something about "explaining the charge before public opinion."

The incident arose from the refusal of the Communist Deputies to vote an appropriation of 35,000 francs for France's representation at the wedding of King Alexander of Jugoslavia on June 8.

Poincare Roused by Taunts.

Georges Levy, a Communist, said that his party refused to vote for the appropriation because of the "white terror," to which he said the Communists were subjected in Jugoslavia.

Premier Poincaré explained that the constitutional King was a friend of France and was not responsible for the acts of his Government.

André Derchon, another Communist, interrupted by saying:

"As you were not responsible while you were President of the republic, you wash your hands of all that happened?"

Pale and laboring under intense emotion, Premier Poincaré replied:

"You Communists will never be able to wipe the stains off yours!"

At this point M. Daudet, waving a pamphlet printed in German in which it was said that the assassination of Poincaré was openly demanded, and quoting articles in the newspapers Humanité and L'Oeuvre, intervened when the visual effect upon Communists when a Royalist speaks in the Chamber. Pandemonium broke loose, but the Premier could be heard above the din saying:

"You Communists will soon see how I take my responsibilities if you overstep your limits."

The Jugoslavian appropriation was then voted, 517 to 62.

The police protection of Premier Poincaré's private house has been doubled.

LLOYD GEORGE CONDOLES.

Tells Wirth That Rathenau Risked Hate for Germany's Good.

LONDON, June 26 (Associated Press).—Prime Minister Lloyd George's message to Chancellor Wirth in connection with the assassination of Dr. Rathenau was made public today. It reads:

"I have learned with deep regret of Dr. Rathenau's death. I wish to express my sorrow for the abominable crime which has deprived the German people of one of its most distinguished representatives. The whole world must honor those who take risks of public hate, as he did, from devotion to his country's good."

The Berlin correspondent of The Westminster Gazette forecasts the resignation of Dr. Gessler as Minister of Defense following the Monarchist demonstrations on the part of the Reichswehr, of which he was charge. The writer declares that only doubt of the dependability of the Reichswehr prevented an immediate declaration of martial law.

Accounts of the assassination of Dr. Rathenau fill the chief columns of the London newspapers today. The political significance of the crime is stressed in the editorial columns, and serious inferences are drawn. It is regarded as certain that the German Government will be seriously embarrassed by the loss of its able Foreign Minister, while the evidence of a conspiracy against the republic is considered to afford ground for grave apprehension as to future events in Europe.

SAYS KAISER COULD NOT GO.

Dutch Minister Declares Fears of Escape Are Baseless.

LONDON, June 26.—Apprehension exists in Holland that former Kaiser Wilhelm will attempt to slip away from Doorn and re-enter Germany in the event of a royalist rising following the assassination of Foreign Minister Rathenau, according to the correspondent of The Daily Mail at The Hague.

The writer, however, quotes J. B. Kan, Secretary of the Dutch Home Office, as saying that such apprehension is groundless.

"We have no evidence that the Kaiser has any such intention," he said, "and the surveillance maintained around him is so close that it would be impossible for him to get away even if he wished."

BRITAIN WOULD ADMIT GERMANY TO LEAGUE

But Lloyd George Tells Cecil the Question Primarily Concerns Germany Herself.

LONDON, June 26 (Associated Press).—Asked by Lord Robert Cecil in the House of Commons this afternoon whether he could state the Government's attitude toward the admission of Germany to membership in the League of Nations, Prime Minister Lloyd George replied that Great Britain would be willing to support a proposal for Germany's admission.

In answer to Lord Robert's question, the Prime Minister said:

"This is not a question which concerns Great Britain alone; it primarily concerns Germany herself. So far as His Majesty's Government is concerned, we would support a proposal to admit Germany to the League."

REPORTS LENIN DUMB AS WELL AS PARALYZED

Probably Won't Recover, Says French Correspondent, Who Tells of Blood Clot on the Brain.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 26.—The correspondent of L'Intransigeant reports from Moscow that Lenin is suffering from a bloodclot on the brain. He is completely paralyzed and dumb and probably will not recover. His physicians declare that it is necessary for him to leave Russia immediately.

The correspondent also says that nominations to membership in the proposed triumvirate will not be made by the Council of High Commissioners, but by the Communist Party. The indications are for a new shift to the left. Tretsky will not be elected because he is too "Bonapartist." Communists declare that if he were not a Jew he would long ago have attempted a military coup d'état.

ARMY OFFICERS HELD IN BERLIN MURDER

By CYRIL BROWN.

Captain Hoffmann in Munich at the request of the Berlin police authorities. Hoffmann is suspected of being one of the moving spirits in the secret murder organization.

A report was current today that the Rathenau murderers had fled the country by airplane. The police, however, are working on the theory that the murderers are still in Germany.

All officials of the political police have been recalled from vacations to Berlin. The political police were organized tonight in three sections, specializing entirely on the Rathenau case, following literally hundreds of "clues," mostly bad, supplied by the public, but also working on their own theory that the murder was committed by two young ex-officers belonging to an anti-Semitic, monarchist secret organization.

The Berlin criminal police, spurred to a supreme effort, have been working fast and thoroughly and there is a belief that the murderers will be apprehended in the next twenty-four hours.

The first State funeral since Bismarck's will be held for Dr. Rathenau tomorrow. The body was transferred to the Reichstag this evening, where floral tributes are piling high. The artistic direction of the State funeral has been placed in the hands of the "National Art Guardian," Dr. Redlich. Elaborate funeral ceremonies in the Reichstag will begin at noon tomorrow.

At noon, too, workers throughout Germany will begin a sympathetic general strike until Wednesday morning. From 2 to 2:10 o'clock all railroad, telegraph, telephone and mail service throughout Germany will be at a standstill. The Boerse will be closed tomorrow.

The Reichswehr will stage a funeral parade as if for a dead Major General, the highest honor the army can show to a State official.

As illustrating the depths of political depravity on the part of some Germans today, Dr. Rathenau's aged mother has been overwhelmed with a flood of postal cards and letters of the vilest and most abusive character, as well as exposed to numerous telephone calls of the same tenor. There is a widespread and intense anti-Semitic sentiment in all parts of Germany which openly condones and even hails Rathenau's murder.

Anonymous Letters Scanned.

BERLIN, June 26 (Associated Press).—The police are displaying intense activity in the search for Dr. Rathenau's assassins. All the anonymous letters recently received by him and other prominent leaders are being closely scrutinized.

Little headway has thus far been made by the police in their efforts to trail the motor car from which the assassins fired the fatal bullets as they sped by Rathenau's automobile. A score of alleged eyewitnesses of the shooting or persons who say they saw the bluish-gray car as it waited in the vicinity of the Foreign Minister's villa in Grunewald have failed to give sufficient tangible information to enable the authorities to pick up a clue.

The direction taken by the assassins' car is a matter of conflicting testimony, some of the observers saying that it sped toward Potsdam. The car is said to have carried a Hamburg license shield.

The top of Rathenau's car was down when he left home, making him a fair target for the assassins. The fact that there were bullet wounds in the back of his neck is explained by the fact that he leaned over when the first shot was fired in order to instruct his chauffeur to speed up. Three bullets struck him while he was in that position.

The statue of Emperor William I, which stands in the lobby of the Reichstag Building, is to be covered and hidden from public view on the occasion of the funeral. Afterward the statue is to be removed from the building. This decision was made today by the House Committee of the Reichstag despite vigorous protests from the Pan-Germans.

Workers and Royalists Clash.

Collisions between workmen and Monarchists were reported today from Leschwitz, Nuremberg and Freiburg, but without serious casualties.

The political situation throughout Germany continues remarkably calm outwardly, despite the vehemence of comments concerning the assassination of Dr. Rathenau which have been appearing in the provincial, liberal and radical press. Yesterday's mammoth demonstration in Berlin, in which a quarter of a million Democrats, Socialists and Communists participated, proceeded along more orderly lines, despite the incongruity of the political elements present, than did Saturday's and yesterday's sessions of the Reichstag, in which only 400 Deputies were concerned.

The police reported today that Berlin has seldom experienced two nights so quiet as the last two have been.

Chancellor Wirth found strong support in the Reichstag for the unflinching candor which marked his utterances of Saturday and Sunday, but whether the Government will find equally strong favor when the pressure to put his effect its policies of reprisals remains to be seen. The Presidential decree declaring a state of emergency covers a wide latitude, including even censorial restrictions of the press, but even then it fails to meet the insistent appetites of the radicals, who demand that the Government once and for all unsparingly apply the mailed fist in its dealings with the reactionaries.

Rathenau a Friend of America.

The selection of a man to fill the post of Foreign Minister presents difficulties of some magnitude to Chancellor Wirth. This is not only because of the dearth of available men, but also for internal political reasons, as the question of the realignment of the Coalition is one of those growing out of the present situation.

The death of Dr. Rathenau, who was the only outstanding figure in the Wirth Cabinet, suddenly deprives the Government of the services of an individual singularly qualified for the post because of his cultural qualifications, linguistic ability, intimate knowledge of international affairs and admitted reputation as an experienced economist.

In connection with his international point of view, parliamentary circles found Rathenau a sincere friend of America, eager to re-establish the former German-American relations. He drew wide confidence as being capable of accomplishing this goal.

When Dr. Rathenau took over the Foreign Ministry he combined it with the position which he formerly held as Minister of Reconstruction, which Ministry has since become an active annex of the Foreign Office.

Parliamentary circles believe that Chancellor Wirth will direct the Foreign Office until a man is found who cannot only meet the exacting demands of the post, but who will also have the approval of the coalition parties.

Wiedfeldt Commended for Post.

The friends of Dr. Otto Ludwig Wiedfeldt, Ambassador to the United States, have already suggested him as an available candidate, stressing his qualifications as an economist. They also believe that his previous training in responsible civil service positions and his acquaintance in quasi-diplomatic posts previous to going to Washington have given him the equipment necessary for the Foreign Office position, especially since the reparations problem and other economic issues have virtually become the chief features of the Ministry's official work.

Dr. Wiedfeldt ranks as a skillful negotiator. While he is nominally a member of the German People's Party he has never engaged actively in practical politics, having joined the Stinnes Party at the time he entered the directorate of the Krupp works.

In this connection the remark made by Dr. Carl Petzina, a leading member of the People's Party, in the progress of yesterday's debate in the Reichstag, is regarded as a significant utterance from that source. He announced that his party was prepared to enter upon "loyal collaboration" with the Wirth Government. This is construed to mean that the Industrialists' Party is ready to convert its present "benevolent neutrality," which has always been a doubtful parliamentary asset to Wirth, into active participation in the coalition Cabinet.

Despite the divergency in their political attitudes toward the Government's policies, Dr. Rathenau and Hugo Stinnes were usually the sincerest of friends. Hence, it was pointed out by their friends today, they were close personal friends, although the interests of the General Electric Company frequently clashed with the multitudinous ramifications of Stinnes's holdings.

Both men were guests of Ambassador Houghton, the American Ambassador, last Friday night and both lingered at the embassy long after midnight informally discussing with Mr. Houghton the reparation question and Germany's economic problems. Afterward Dr. Rathenau drove Herr Stinnes to the latter's residence.

Dr. Rathenau is survived by his aged mother, to whom he was greatly attached and who was extremely fond of her distinguished son. He frequently gave semi-official receptions at her home in the Tiergarten quarter, and only recently entertained a distinguished company of Government officials, parliamentary leaders and diplomats, on which occasion President Ebert sent Dr. Rathenau's mother to the position of honor at the head of the table.

BERLIN, June 26.—Dr. Rathenau's murder seems likely to prove an important milestone or even a turning point in German internal political history. It has served to draw the two warring Socialist factions, the Social Democrats and Independent Socialists, closer together. Informal feelers have been sent out by both Socialist parties and informal conferences are taking place, seeking common ground for a joint policy against reaction and in defense of the republic. There is much talk about extending the Wirth Coalition Government to include the Independent Socialists also.

The Independent Socialists are willing to enter a reconstructed Wirth Government on their own terms, which include lightening the indirect tax burden on the masses and saddling the bulk of the reparation burden on "German capital"—the old project of "seizing the gold values." In any event, Rathenau's murder has markedly swung the steering gear of the German ship of state toward the radical Left.

Another interesting result is that the Wirth Coalition Government means business about war on reaction in defense of the republic. President Ebert's proclamation of pseudo-martial law is intended merely as a stop-gap measure. The Wirth Government will in the near future bring before the Reichstag a special draft of a law for the safeguarding of the republic, embodying the drastic features of Ebert's proclamation.

Significantly, the Socialist Minister of Justice, Dr. Radbruch, in the Reichstag specifically assured the Radicals that they need have no fear that the proclamation would be applied to them and that it would prove to be a double-edged sword, saying that the title of Ebert's ordinance had been carefully worded to make it clear that acts of violence "on the part of Radical reactionaries" were meant to make the new law "for the safeguarding of the republic" palatable to the Radicals it will be coupled with a proclamation of general political amnesty.

There is much talk in political circles regarding Rathenau's successor. In some quarters there was mention of the German Ambassador at Washington, Dr. Weidfeldt. There is also talk of Dr. Breitenscheid, one of the leaders of the Independent Socialist Party and its foreign political expert. Count Bernstorff may be advocated by the Democratic Party. The present Centrist Finance Minister, Dr. Hermes, is likewise seriously mentioned.

We want a few more men— at once

SEVERAL openings still exist in our Sales Department. We desire to fill them at once. They constitute an unusual opportunity for a few qualified men who can measure up to our requirements.

Ours is a large and successful corporation, backed by more than thirty of the best industrial and technical brains in America. Our Advisory Board includes such men as P. H. Duesenberg, President of Duesenberg Motors, Inc.; W. F. McLaughlin, formerly Chief Engineer, Hyatt Roller Bearing Co.; John Hoffhine, formerly Works Manager, American Brake Shoe and Foundry Co.

We do not believe in transplanting "high-powered" executives from outside. We make promotions entirely from our own sales staff. Naturally we select new men with extreme care. And our personnel records show us how mutually satisfactory and profitable this care has proved. Every man here is building solidly for a permanent business future.

You may or may not be the exact type of man we are seeking. You may or may not have had selling experience. But three things you must have: courage, determination and that intangible something called "personality."

To arrange for a personal interview, write at once, giving a fairly complete outline of your work and yourself. All communications are held strictly confidential. Address DIRECTOR OF PERSONNEL, W 776 Times Downtown.

FOREIGN PAPER MONEY

EUROPE is flooded with paper money. Owing to the scarcity of gold and silver, even the smallest denominations are paper. To the American visitor the annoyance of handling such small denominations in paper is increased by the fragility of the paper. It tears on the slightest provocation. In every handful there is always one note in two or even four pieces. Such money commands but little respect and receives little.

It is a pleasant contrast to feel notes like the American dollar, which has shown over and over its remarkable wearing qualities, which can be folded and refolded, washed and ironed, and remain intact.

The banknote paper of this country and of several other countries is made at the Crane Mills.

ILLINOIS MASSACRE STIRS CONGRESSMEN

Goodykoontz of West Virginia Declares Union Has Fallen to Low Level.

OVERDRAWN, ANOTHER SAYS

Denison of Herrin District Thinks Not More Than One-Fifth of Reports Are True.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The ruthless murder of the non-union miners at Herrin was denounced in the House this afternoon by Representative Goodykoontz of West Virginia, whose bitter words brought a suggestion from Representative Denison of Illinois, that the facts had been exaggerated and that the public might take a different view of the tragedy if better advised. It was an interesting situation, for Mr. Goodykoontz's district includes Mingo, the scene of many mine outrages, while Williamson County, where the Herrin crimes occurred, is in the heart of Mr. Denison's district.

"The so-called Coroner's jury verdict pretending to exculpate those responsible for the destruction of human life indicates that these felons even have control of the law," said Representative Goodykoontz. "The guilty authors of the atrocious felonies have been laughing in their sleeves and, if the public press is to be believed, their women folk, elated and gloating over the bloody work, gave palpable evidence of satisfaction and joy as they saw the more than forty pallid, mangled, silent victims lying dead.

"Unless the directing heads of the United Mine Workers of America unite with the officials of the State of Illinois in successfully prosecuting and adequately punishing their members who mobbed and brutally killed the non-union working men at Herrin, then that organization will never be able to rise from the lowest state to which certain of its members have caused it to fall.

"Many labor unions are being conducted upon the very highest plane by men of brains. Members of such unions hate and detest the dynamiters of the structural bridge and iron workers, and the murderers at Herrin that have crept into the mine workers' union."

Deploring the use of force and the resort to lawlessness at Herrin, Representative Denison of Illinois, said that nevertheless probably not more than one-fifth of the alleged facts reported were true.

"I was a little bit surprised that the gentleman from West Virginia recited gruesome details without further verification," said Representative Denison. "There is a great difference between the accounts in the papers from my home at Marion and the metropolitan papers."

"Does the gentleman mean to say that not more than one-fifth is true in the stories told of the assassination in cold blood of men who sought to exercise their right to work for wages?" interrupted Representative White of Kansas. Representative Denison replied that all revolting details told in the newspapers were not necessarily true, at the same time reiterating his disapproval of lawlessness.

ANTHRACITE MEN READY TO CALL IT A STRIKE

Their Referendum Is Overwhelmingly for Fight to a Finish, Tabulation Shows.

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., June 26.—Assured of the support of the 150,000 union anthracite miners who have remained under suspension of work since last April 1, the General Wage Scale Committee today began tabulating the referendum just completed and prepared for declaration of an actual strike.

Plans were laid for the foundation of a "war chest" with a financial campaign throughout the principal cities of the East and a public solicitation of funds to enable the miners "to carry the present situation to victory."

The committee did not officially authorize the substitution of the word "strike" for suspension"—the term by which was designated the walkout ordered by the United Mine Workers of America nearly three months ago. This, said Thomas Kennedy, President of the Scale Committee, will be withheld until tomorrow, when tellers will complete tabulation of results in the referendum.

It already is known what the result of the vote will be. However, Mr. Kennedy, in an open address before the committee went into executive session today, declared it had been "almost unanimously" in favor of strike action.

It remains for the committee to decide what means it will adopt to assure success to the hard-coal miners' fight for a 20 per cent. wage increase.

TAKES PRISON TERM TO KEEP HER SECRET

Young Woman Accepts Sentence for Theft Rather Than Let Her Parents Know.

Persisting in her refusal to unveil the mystery of her identity, Miss Alice M. Collins, 23 years old, was sentenced to sixty days in the workhouse yesterday by Justices Salmon, Healy and Herrman in Special Sessions, for shoplifting. She had pleaded guilty to the theft of an opera wrap valued at $49.50 from McCreery's store.

Miss May Mangan, a probation officer, who had been instructed by the court to learn something about the young woman's past, told the Justices on Saturday that the young woman refused to say anything about herself or her parents, and had snapped her fingers in the probation officer's face, declaring she would not tell anybody who she was. Justice Salmon then remanded the prisoner to the Tombs until yesterday morning in the belief that she would change her mind before sentence was imposed.

After Miss Mangan had reported yesterday that the young woman had continued defiant, Henry J. Block, counsel for the prisoner, told the Court that several influential persons were interested in the young woman, and that she had refused to talk because she did not want to let her parents know of her disgrace.

Surrogate Dismisses Objections to Executors' Accounting of $44,000,000 Estate.

Special to The New York Times.

RIVERHEAD, L. I., June 26.—Objections to the accounting of the estate of Frederick G. Bourne, late President of the Singer Sewing Machine Company, made by his daughters, Miss Marjorie G. Bourne and Mrs. May Bourne Strassburger, were dismissed today by Surrogate Robert F. Pelletreau. The executors, Arthur K. Bourne, a son, and George P. Vail, were upheld by the Surrogate as having shown business ability in handling the large estate, estimated at $44,000,000.

Referring to the commissions, Surrogate Pelletreau said:

"I am satisfied that the executors' commissions already taken are less than they are authorized to take by agreement, signed by all the heirs and dated Nov. 3, 1919, and the evidence in this proceeding."

There were admitted losses on stocks and bonds amounting to several hundred thousand dollars, but the Surrogate said:

"Executors are not expected to use infallible judgment. They are expected to use their best judgment."

Mr. Bourne's commissions as executor were $127,251 and Mr. Vail's $165,000.

cedure of central competitive field conferences or a national conference. No definite plans were decided upon."

It is probable that no definite step will be taken until Secretary Hoover has had another opportunity to talk with representatives of the operators.

The increasing danger of a railroad strike is serving to spur the Administration on to unusual efforts. There are some who believe that a settlement of the coal strike would serve as a deterrent upon the leaders of the railroad unions who are now forecasting a walkout of the rail workers.

Lewis Calls Situation Unchanged.

Mr. Lewis said that he would remain in Washington tomorrow, but that he had no engagement to return to the White House. He was asked if there was any change in the attitude of the miners in regard to their refusal to enter district conferences and replied in the negative.

"There has been no change in my personal attitude or in the attitude of the Mine Workers of America," he said.

He was asked next if the President and Secretary Davis had endeavored to get him to change his position.

"I would prefer not to amplify my statement regarding my conference with the President," said Lewis. "I may say, however, that I explained to the President the utter futility of district conferences."

Mr. Lewis went on to say that three decades of negotiations with the operators had made it evident that the operators were not willing to enter district agreements on any basis which would give fair treatment to the miners.

"Their statement that they want district conferences," he said, "is simply a subterfuge. Some of the big operators have mine holdings in more than one State and would not want to make settlements in a State without a basic agreement. By doing so they would endanger their own different interests."

Asked if there had been any suggestion made that the miners go back to work and enter a truce pending action by the Government, Mr. Lewis showed some surprise.

"Why," he replied, "wouldn't that be in the nature of a temporary settlement? I am not advised that there is anything of the kind contemplated."

HERRIN EXPECTS SETTLEMENT

Miners Believe Government Will Seek Arbitration.

Special to The New York Times.

MARION, Ill., June 26.—Among conservative union leaders here and at Herrin the impression was generally voiced today that within the next week or ten days the Federal Government will take steps to settle the coal strike by exerting pressure upon the coal operators of the central competitive fields—Indiana, Illinois, Ohio and Western Pennsylvania—to enter a conference with the men.

Previous attempts on the part of Washington authorities to arrange a conference have been upset by the refusal of Ohio and the Pittsburgh district to sit in a four State parley, and by the refusal of the miners to enter any joint conference which did not represent all the operators.

The general idea among the miners that the Government will intervene has been strengthened by a visit of two investigators for Secretary Davis and Attorney General Daugherty to the Illinois field to look over general conditions as well as to report on the Herrin massacre.

Some of the smaller local mines, which closed down after last week's troubles, are now reopening. Many of them are operated by farmers on their land. The Summertime is their only season and generally speaking there has been no interference with their operations. Most of them are wagon mines whose product is consumed locally, although some are shippers.

Colonel Sam Hunter went back to Springfield tonight after reporting all quiet and no further demonstrations to be looked for. "Williamson County," said Colonel Hunter, "should not be wrongfully pictured or criticised for the unlawful acts of a frenzied mob. What has occurred should serve as a warning to civil officials and the general public to be on the alert to prevent any possible recurrence."

State Senator Protests to Davis.

Special to The New York Times.

HERRIN, Ill., June 26.—That officials of the Southern Illinois Coal Company should be the ones made to "pay" as a result of the slaughter of nineteen nonunion workers and two union miners in the battles of last Wednesday and Thursday was urged in a long official report to Secretary of Labor Davis made today by State Senator William J. Snead, head of Williamson County miners.

Senator Snead, who at the time of the murders was absent in Springfield, declared that upon President Lutes of the coal company "lies the blame for this whole terrible affair. Not only is his company responsible for the loss of these lives," reads Senator Snead's report, "but they are also solely responsible for the stigma and black smirch that has so unfortunately fastened itself upon the citizens of Williamson County and the city of Herrin."

The Senator's statement holds that the guards brought to Herrin by the coal company were merely "gunmen who used every device, apparently, at their command, to precipitate trouble."

State's Attorney Duty conferred with Circuit Judge Dewitt R. Hartwell today relative to calling a special Grand Jury. It was said. Provided vigorous action is instigated, the first step would necessitate a good-sized appropriation from the County Board to defray expenses. Twenty out of the thirty members of the board are said to be affiliated with unions.

The invariable admonition in Herrin today when the subject of the murders is broached is "Let's forget it; change the subject."

"French designs" means that the rolls on which these silks were printed were actually made in France and brought over to this country. The exquisite tracery, witchery, delicacy and beauty of the designs could only be produced by means of the French-made rolls.

As soon as a woman sees these silks her imagination will race ahead picturing the lovely frocks, negligees, kimonos and blouses that can be made, the soft overdrapes, the beautiful linings for capes and wraps. Literally there is something for every use in the collection.

And the colors are all French shades—shades and tones and combinations that Paris has sanctioned—soft vivid reds, blues and greens, the lovely pale mauves and yellows, in the gorgeous flowered designs, as well as blacks and whites and navy blues. French-made rolls.

TRIO HELD IN THEFTS FROM MANY FLATS

Bride, Her Husband and Youth Clear Up Washington Heights and Bronx Robberies.

MEN CAUGHT IN HOUSE

Finally Give Address and Detectives Find Quantity of Stolen Goods—Owners Identify Some.

A bride of six months, her husband and a youth of 18 were locked up in the West 152d Street Station yesterday afternoon in connection with a series of flat robberies in Washington Heights anad the Bronx that had puzzled detectives for three months.

Mrs. Frances Sproh, the eighteen-year-old bride, was arrested in her home at 553 West 161st Street after Detective Sergeants McCoy, Sullivan, Ornstein and Hauptman had captured her husband, William, 22 years old, and Frank McCavie in the act of robbing the apartment of Fred Pusit, Superintendent of the apartment house at 419 West 128th Street.

The arrest of Sproh and the youth was due to their persistence in attempting to rob tenants in the West 128th Street house. In the forenoon the Superintendent had summoned the detectives when he saw them prowling about the roof, but Sproh and McCavie escaped.

Pusit again telephoned the detectives shortly after noon when he heard strange sounds in his apartment. When the detectives confronted the two intruders with pistols they found that Sproh and McCavie had filled a traveling bag with $200 worth of Pusit's jewelry and clothing. They tried to flee by the fire escaped, by which they gained entrance to the apartment.

After persistent grilling the detectives obtained the address of the prisoners. Then they hurried to the West 161st Street apartment and found it filled with loot from the many robberies Sproh and McCavie were alleged to have admitted. Mrs. Sproh was locked up on a charge of having stolen property in her possession and Sproh and McCavie were charged with burglary.

The detectives sent word to scores of residents in Washington Heights and the Bronx who had reported robberies in their homes in the last three months. Mrs. Grace Moss of 555 Riverside Drive and Mrs. E. Gude of 560 West 161d Street identified articles as having been stolen from their homes. Other victims of robberies will be in the Washington Heights Court this morning when the trio are arraigned.

3 DEAD AT ONEIDA LAKE.

Barge Explosion Cost Lives of Engineer's Wife and Two Children.

ONEIDA, N. Y., June 26.—Mrs. Ella Green is dead, her two children are missing, her husband and several other persons are several burned, and three barges, a tug and almost half of the cottage colony at Verona Beach, on the Barge Canal at Oneida Lake, north of here, have been destroyed by fire as the result of the explosion last night of a powder-laden barge tied at a dock there.

Mrs. Green was drowned when her husband, owner of the tug, seeing her clothing in flames, pushed her into the canal in an effort to save her life. Although he leaped in with her, he was unable to rescue her. Their two children have been missing since the first explosion.

The explosion occurred when a gasoline engine, used to pump water from the hold of one of three powder carriers, backfired and ignited a case of powder on the deck. The first explosion set fire to the barge and tug, and the series of explosions resulting from the cargo of 5,400 cases that the barges were carrying showered sparks and bits of burning timber over the cottages along the shore. Driven by a high wind, the flames spread rapidly through the cottages, and before fire apparatus rushed to the scene from Rome and Oneida could check it, the fire had destroyed thirteen cottages, a store, a hotel and an electric light power house.

Thousands of pleasure seekers at Sylvan Beach, an amusement park across the canal from Verona Beach, were thrown into a panic by the explosion, and several persons were slightly injured. The explosion occurred about 6 o'clock and the fire was not brought under control until a late hour last night.

DOUBT ACCIDENTAL WOUND.

Police Investigate Shooting of Housekeeper at Midnight.

Special to The New York Times.

HAMMONTON, N. J., June 26.—The police are investigating the story of Mrs. Catherine Barrett, 40, who was shot Sunday at midnight at Clementon Heights. Mrs. Barrett alleged the wound was self-inflicted, the result of an accident.

Neighbors, however, say they heard four shots fired in the home of Harry Johnson, in which Mrs. Barrett was housekeeper. The bullet entered the woman's right side, passed through her abdomen and came out of her left side. The wounded woman informed Squire George E. Wright that she had been cleaning a pursel drawer and that when she attempted to remove a revolver it exploded.

Second Refusal on Grounds of Immorality Stirs Queens Judge.

MAY SEEK CRIMINAL CHARGE

Should Not Be Allowed to Preach, Says Fawcett—Rules Against Renewing Application.

District Attorney Dana Wallace will confer today with Justice Lewis L. Fawcett of the Queens Supreme Court on the career of Eugene Perry Hall, clergyman, of 689 Underdonk Avenue, Ridgewood, who for the second time in a year was yesterday refused citizenship papers by Justice Fawcett on the ground of immorality of character.

Hall first applied on May 17, 1921. Being refused he went to the naturalization officials, alleging that he had been done an injustice. The denial was set aside and an investigation was made by Assistant United States District Attorney Merton A. Sturgis.

Yesterday, when Hall's application was presented among more than two hundred others, Sturgis reported that an extensive investigation had convinced him that Hall was of immoral character and not fitted for citizenship.

Justice Fawcett, in denying Hall's application, said: "The application is denied with prejudice to reopening it. It seems to me that this should be brought to the attention of the people to whom this man is preaching. I intend to take it upon myself to inform them of his character. Men of such character should not be allowed to preach to others."

Justice Fawcett also said he intended to call the matter to the attention of the District Attorney to find if there was anything on which to base a criminal charge.

On Jan. 31, 1919, a separation by stipulation was granted to Mrs. Anna A. Hall, wife of Eugene Perry Hall. Alimony was fixed at $18 a week. Several weeks ago Hall was defendant in the Queens County Court in an action brought by Vincent H. Diemer of Woodhaven for $2,000 for an alleged false arrest. Diemer had been discharged in the Magistrate's Court after having been arrested on a charge that he assaulted Hall and stole his watch. A jury brought in a verdict in favor of Hall.

Hall was born in Baden, Germany, on July 11, 1879, and came to America with his parents in June, 1890. He was formerly a minister in the Baptist Church, preaching to congregations in Patchogue, L. I.; Dunton, L. I.; Beecher Memorial Church, Brooklyn, and the Bronx. For the last few years he has been employed by the Long Island Railroad. At night he held evangelistic meetings in the Ridgewood section.

Ninety-seven applications for citizenship were accepted in the Queens Supreme Court yesterday. Justice Fawcett, in a short address, told the new citizens that it was their duty to help prevent the growth of Bolshevist tendencies in their communities.

Patrolman's Slayer Guilty.

Anthony Rabasrovich of 182 Christopher Street, Brooklyn, was found guilty yesterday of murder in the first degree for the slaying of Policeman John H. McMall of the Brownsville precinct, March 15. He was tried before Justice Kapper and a jury in the Supreme Court. He will be sentenced on Thursday. Rabasrovich attempted to hold up Mrs. Anna Nolshek of 208 Watkins Avenue, Brooklyn. Her cries brought Policeman McMall. In the chase which followed Rabasrovich turned and shot his pursuer.

HEARST ABANDONS HIS EUROPEAN TOUR

here now; he is not going to take an active part in what is ebing done here at the present. Anyhow, I can always keep in touch with him on the telephone."

Mr. Conners will remain in this city until after the Fourth of July. In the meantime his agents are getting ready for the preliminary work in connection with the upbuilding in up-State counties of an organization to help in the election of a Democratic Legislature friendly to Mr. Hearst and his policies. Mr. Conners bristled up quite a little yesterday when it was suggested that the former Independence League, even if elected, would have a hostile Legislature to block the realization of his ideas in the State Government.

"He will have nothing of the kind," said Mr. Conners. "We will elect a majority in both branches of the Legislature this trip, just as we did in 1912."

Mr. Conners said yesterday that before the week was over he would have interviews from two of the "biggest men in the United States" indorsing Mr. Hearst.

"One of the men I have in mind," said Mr. Conners, "is probably the biggest business man in the country, outside of my friend Mr. Hearst himself. Hearst is the biggest individual business man in the United States. His turnover is probably more than $150,000,000 a year. He paid out in salaries in his publishing business alone last year some $24,000,000.

"It is crazy to imagine that a man with such large interests should go in and tear down business. He will see that everybody gets a square deal. He wants the people in public office to be straight with the folks who elected them, and if he finds anything that is crooked he will make it straight. That's Hearst, as I know him. He's just like us, to sit down and talk to. If Hearst is a radical, then I am a radical. If Hearst is a Socialist, then I am a Socialist. The honest business men of this State have nothing to fear from Mr. Hearst."

To See Murphy This Week.

Mr. Conners was asked if he had seen Tammany Leader Murphy and replied that he hoped to see him some time this week. Murphy is at Good Ground, L. I., playing golf and taking it easy on his estate.

"I know as well as you do, that I've got to have the delegates from the City of New York to put Mr. Hearst over," he added.

"Have you received any assurances from Mr. Murphy that he will help you get them?" was asked.

"Well, you see me still working, don't you? That's the answer, and the only answer I care to make at present," he replied.

"Al Smith is hostile to Hearst," was suggested.

"Al Smith is not a candidate, he has told me so himself," said Mr. Conners.

"He may be forced to become one. His friends may get around him and tell him that he has got to run," Mr. Conners was told.

"Murphy is the leader down here," said Mr. Conners. "He will look the field over when the time comes. He wants to carry the State. He wants a candidate who can win. If he is satisfied that Hearst is the man, he will say the word. I expect to show Mr. Murphy that Mr. Hearst is the strongest candidate he could name."

"Al Smith will be at the convention," Mr. Conners was reminded.

"So will we," said Conners, raising his voice for emphasis. "We will be there to all our glory."

Mr. Conners was asked if Edwin S. Harris, like Mr. Conners himself, a former Democratic State Chairman, would be associated with him in the work of putting Hearst over.

"He will," said the Buffalo publisher, "He will be with me to the finish."

Concrete factory construction has led the entire construction field in deflation. Any man who needs a new factory or warehouse can build it today in concrete at less than 50% above 1914 costs—and in 1914 prices were subnormal; cement for instance was then sold at about actual manufacturing cost.

CUSAMANO ON TRIAL IN VEROTTA MURDER

State Outlines Its Case Against Third to Face Jury in Kidnapping of Boy.

MARINO AWAITS SENTENCE

Second of Gang of Five Convicted Thus Far to Hear Penalty Tomorrow.

A jury was selected and Assistant District Attorney George N. Brothers outlined the State's case yesterday in the trial of Santo Cusamano in Judge Talley's part of General Sessions on a first degree murder indictment returned against him and six others in connection with the kidnapping and murder of 6-year-old Giuseppe Verotta last Summer.

Roberto Raffaelo was convicted and sentenced to death last August for the killing of the boy. Antonio Marino, the alleged leader of the kidnapping band, was convicted before Judge Talley last Friday night and will be arraigned for the death sentence tomorrow.

Raffaelo became a witness for the prosecution at Marino's trial after the Court of Appeals had affirmed the verdict of the jury which convicted him. Raffaelo will be called as a witness against Cusamano, James Ruggieri, stepson of Marino, and John Melchione, both of whom will be called for trial when the verdict is rendered in Cusamano's trial.

Little Giuseppe was kidnapped from in front of his home at 354 East Thirteenth Street on the afternoon of May 24, 1921. His body was found in the Hudson River off Piermont, N. Y., on June 15. Two days after the disappearance of the boy his father, Salvatore, received a letter from the kidnappers demanding $2,500 for his return and threatening to kill the child if his parents informed the police about the letter.

The day following, the parents testified at the trials of Raffaelo and Marino, Marino told them that the boy would be returned for $500 as part payment of the ransom. On June 1 Raffaelo called for the money, but was put off by the parents, at the request of the police, until the following night. The next night Melchione was arrested when he accepted $500 in marked bills from the boy's father. Raffaelo, Marino, Cusamano and Ruggieri were captured by detectives in front of the house.

Raffaelo testified that Ruggieri introduced him to Marino, Cusamano and two unidentified men, believed to be the actual slayers of the boy, half an hour before he made the first visit to the Verottas for the $500. Mrs. Lena Marino, wife of the second man convicted for the boy's murder, was a spectator at yesterday's proceedings. The trial will be continued today.

PERSISTENT CHEATS SENTENCED TO PRISON

Fake-Store Gang Continued Swindling Operations After They Had Been Indicted.

Federal Judge Ervin yesterday sentenced seven members of a gang of commercial swindlers, whose operations, it was said, had netted them more than $400,000. Julius H. Schwartz, said to have been the ringleader, got four years in the Atlanta Penitentiary; Harry Levett two and a half years and Herman Shaw one year and a day. The others, who furnished the Government with the evidence, received sentences of from one to fifteen days in the Tombs. They were Benjamin H. Reiss, Benjamin H. Cohen, Louis Fender and Alexander B. Rosenberg.

The scheme was to rent a store in one of the larger cities and use the name of a reputable firm in the same place and then order goods from merchants located in distant cities. When the goods arrived they were disposed of by the gang at prices much below their market value. Before the fraud could be discovered the swindlers had disappeared. After a period of quiescence they would repeat the operation in another city.

F. A. Stiefel, chief of the prosecution bureau of the Credit Men's Association, and Post Office Inspector Nathan Nolfe captured the gang after a chase that took them all over the United States. Mr. Stiefel said that even after the indictments were found Schwartz and Levett opened three stores in Chicago and one in this city, using the names of reputable merchants.

Born Here, Speaks Only Chinese.

When Ju Joe, 45 years old, a Chinese laundryman, pleaded guilty before Judge Nott in General Sessions yesterday to having a pistol when his apartment at 61 Bayard Street was raided by detectives for narcotics on June 8 last he told the court, through an interpreter, that although he and his parents were born in San Francisco he was unable to speak English. He was remanded for sentence next Monday.

William Allen White on Stealing your boy's July 4th heritage

They say, sometimes, that a boy is the architect of his own fortune.

Yet you work and save and deny yourself to give yours the heritage of a good education, and perhaps of money, real estate, stocks and bonds.

But how about your boy's share in America? How about the inheritance of free institutions set up and fought for to guarantee his happiness? Is it possible that thieves have come in the night and stolen away what seemed so secure?

• • • •

Twenty-six years ago there appeared in the Emporia, Kansas, "Gazette" a sizzling editorial headed "What's the Matter with Kansas."

No question after that heading. William Allen White, who wrote it, wasn't asking, he was telling. It made him famous.

Now, after a quarter of a century, Collier's asked Mr. White to look across the borders of Kansas, over the whole nation, and to tell "What's the Matter with America." He does it in this week's Collier's.

Again Mr. White's pen sizzles. You may not agree with all he says, but what he thinks is happening to steal away your boy's inheritance will give you something better worth watching than the stock market.

For the world knows now, if it didn't before 1914, that a boy's life may be warped and twisted, or brought crashing down, by forces wholly beyond his individual control.

Collier's is edited for those parents who see in these larger forces a profound influence on their and their children's happiness, and who want to be part of the Great Adventure in shaping and directing these forces to the ends of more effective personal living.

In more than a million homes where such people live, Collier's, week by week, personalizes the drama of current events.

Here is a mighty group, organized, as the Mayflower Compact said, "for our better ordering and preservation." A group whose influence is increasingly felt in every village, town and city of these United States.

We invite you to join it, as it meets in the pages of

FINDS NO SHORTAGE OF NURSES IN CITIES

Committee Says, After Study of Problem, They Are Lacking Only in the Country.

CARE FOR THE POOR URGED

Prosecution of Health Campaign Is Called an Obligation on the Public.

There is no shortage of nurses in the cities of this country, notwithstanding popular opinion to the contrary, is one of the statements in a report of the Committee for the Study of Nursing Education, which has been examining nursing practice and education all over the country. Although there is frequently a lack of competent nurses in the country, in the city it has been found that the inability of poor families to pay for nurses is the real problem to be solved.

The committee was headed by Dr. C. E. A. Winslow, Professor of Public Health at Yale, and included Dr. H. M. Biggs, Dr. David L. Edsall, dean of the Harvard Medical School; Dr. L. Emmett Holt and Miss Lillian D. Wald of the Henry Street Settlement. Many other physicians and representatives of nurses' organizations and settlement houses were on the committee. The committee has advised the separation of nursing service into the three following grades:

"The trained registered nurse for the care of the acutely ill, the present training course of three years to be enriched and improved and at the same time reduced 20 per cent. in length without lowering standards.

"The public health nurse, the supervising nurse, and the teacher in schools of nursing, who are to receive specialized post graduate training in addition to the standard course for registered nurses.

"The subsidiary nursing worker, to be trained by an eight or nine months' course and licensed as nursing aid or nursing attendant for the care of minor and chronic illness and convalescence."

The report shows that nurses increased in number 85 per cent. between 1910 and 1920, and concludes that the problem is one of distribution rather than numbers.

After saying that the standards of nursing must be maintained, despite the cry that nurses are "overtrained," the report says that of 300,000 nurses in the United States in 1920, more than half were of grades below the standard of the registered nurse.

"Our survey of the situation does not indicate that the income of the private duty nurse is an exorbitant one," the report continues, "when we take into account the degree of unemployment—amounting in a typical group of 118 nurses to a week each month during the busy Winter season. The solution of the economic problem which confronts the family of low income probably must be sought along the lines of cost distribution through some form of community organization or along the lines of group insurance.

"If the community needs and desires the services of competent nurses for the care of the sick and the prosecution of the campaign of public health, it must pay for their education, as it pays for every other conceivable kind of education, either through taxes or through voluntary contributions, or through the generosity of its great philanthropic foundations."

The original conference which led to the appointing of the committee was called by the Rockefeller Foundation, and the Foundation has given financial support to the investigation.

MRS. SMALL SUCCUMBS TO APOPLECTIC STROKE

KANKAKEE, Ill., June 26.—Mrs. Len Small, wife of Governor Small of Illinois, died about 8 o'clock this morning.

Mrs. Small was stricken with apoplexy Saturday night during the excitement incident to the celebration of friends and fellow townsmen of the Governor as a result of his acquittal that afternoon after his trial at Waukegan, Ill. With her at the time of her death were the Governor and their three children, Leslie and Budd Small and Mrs. A. E. Ingleah.

From the moment of Mrs. Small's collapse physicians offered no encouragement. She had suffered for some time with high blood pressure and her condition was believed to have been aggravated by the strain of the Governor's trial.

Mrs. Small was born Dec. 17, 1861, in Livingston County, Ill. She was married to Governor Small Nov. 21, 1883.

"It is a terrible price to pay," were the words of Governor Small, repeated over and over.

Mrs. Small never rallied from the time she was stricken and collapsed in the Governor's arms. She was unable to recognize the Governor or other members of the family at the bedside.

During the period since last July, when the charges in connection with handling of State funds during the Governor's term as State Treasurer were made, Mrs. Small stood staunchly by her husband. She appeared with him whenever possible and sat with him much of the time during the nine-weeks' trial at Waukegan.

She was by his side when the acquittal came and again stood with him at the celebration on the Governor's return home, when the townspeople turned out to welcome them and extend congratulations. She was stricken and sank into the Governor's arms as the noise of the celebrators filled the neighborhood. Throughout Sunday and last night she lay in a coma as the Governor and their sons and daughter watched by the bedside.

CHICAGO, June 26.—The charges made against Governor Small, of which he was acquitted Saturday, led to Mrs. Small's death, Samuel A. Ettelson, Corporation Counsel of Chicago, declared today. Mr. Ettelson, who, with Mayor Thompson of Chicago, had been a close friend and political supporter of the Governor, said that politics was behind the prosecution of the Governor and that politics therefore was responsible for Mrs. Small's death.

AVERT FOOD TIE-UP, HYLAN ASKS HARDING

Railroad Strike Would Put City in Condition of War Siege, He Writes.

MILK FAMINE IS A PERIL

Fresh Beef, Vegetables and Fruits Would Be Barred—Also Means Loss of Millions.

Mayor Hylan is so disturbed over the threatened railroad strike that he wrote to President Harding yesterday, pointing out the disastrous effect a railroad tie-up would have upon the food supply of this city. Conditions, he said, would be similar to "that prevailing in a besieged city in war times." He urged the President to take "anticipatory and vigilant action to conserve the food supply, and to protect the general public from the disastrous effects of a railroad tie-up." His letter follows:

"City of New York,
"Office of the Mayor,
"June 26, 1922.

"Hon. Warren G. Harding, President of the United States, Washington, D. C.

"Sir: It seems it my duty to direct your attention to the food situation in the City of New York in view of the effect upon it of the sudden railroad tie-up which threatens. I do this in advance of such an event, so that you may be enabled to bring into action every Federal agency with power to save the City of New York from the consequences of a railroad policy that imperils the food supply of this city.

"New York City consumes itself each day with the food supply of over seven million resident and transient persons.

"At this time of the year the people of this city subsist upon food brought, for the most part, from distant places outside the motor truck area. The early part of July is the worst period to permit a cessation of rail shipments into New York. This is so, because in July such foods as are raised within the motor truck area are not ripe for consumption in sufficient volume.

"A tie-up of the rail facilities entering New York City and its environs would be a catastrophe.

"The most important item of food that will be affected by a railroad tie-up is that of milk, of which more than three million quarts are used daily in this city. The cutting off or serious diminution of this daily milk supply will imperil the health and lives of thousands of children and invalids, and will greatly inconvenience adults generally. In the very nature of things there can be no storage of fresh milk, and the supply must be renewed daily.

Food Supply Always Limited.

"I am informed that the city's supply of practically every important food item is sufficient only for a short period. For example, we have not at any one time more than four days' supply of fresh dressed beef. The weekly consumption of live poultry is over 200 carloads. The shutting out of this poultry would increase the demands upon the beef supply and reduce the period of its duration. We do not have more than four or five days' supply at one time of Western dressed killed poultry. The frozen poultry on hand in this district is owned mostly by large hotel and steamship distributing agencies and is not available for general consumption. The egg supply in storage, including New Jersey, is about 1,550,000 cases. We have the smallest supply in years of canned fruits and vegetables, because of crop conditions last year; the old stock being practically used up and the new stock only in process of packing.

"The nearest point from which we receive potatoes is Virginia, outside of the motor truck area. The receipts are about 900 carloads a week. Norfolk steamers bring in about 25,000 barrels a week. In the event of a railroad tie-up only a part of the rail potato supply could be brought in by steamer. The supply of old potatoes from Maine is about exhausted.

"This is the heaviest season in the year for fruit and vegetable shipments to New York City. The bulk of these come from distant points such as South Carolina, Georgia and California. Of the essential vegetables, cabbage is the only local one to be had at this time. The only articles of food of which we have a substantial supply on hand, I am informed, are flour and cereals, for about thirty days.

Result Would Be Appalling.

"The consequences of a sudden railroad tie-up upon the people of New York City would be appalling. This is so, independent of the effect upon food prices of the sudden interruption of the food supply to New York City, and independent of the losses entailed to the farmer shippers running into millions of dollars, by such a tie-up which would block access to the farmers' greatest market—New York City.

"The condition that would result in New York City from such a rail tie-up would be similar to that prevailing in a beleaguered or besieged city in war time. Such a state of affairs should be guarded against by every reasonably available means.

"The above recital will no doubt make manifest to you the necessity for anticipatory and vigilant action to conserve the food supply in the City of New York and to protect the general public from the disastrous effect of a railroad tie-up. Since such a railroad strike is impending and threatened to occur about the first of July, you no doubt will conclude that the situation merits your immediate attention by way of directing that appropriate steps be taken by the Federal agencies under your control.

"Respectfully yours,
"JOHN F. HYLAN,
"Mayor."

The Mayor would not comment upon his letter nor indicate whether he had received inside information as to the threatened strike.

HIRSH AND WIFE BOTH DENY SHE SHOT HIM

pital, and living home the same as usual; and I am doing everything I can to nurse him back to full health. I trust that the public will excuse me from making any further statement at this time, as it must realize the nervous condition that I am placed in by reason of this unfortunate accident."

At the same time, Mr. Levy issued this statement, dealing with Mr. Hirsh's statement that he was uncertain whether he shot himself or had been shot:

"Again questioned by Mr. Levy as to whether Mr. Hirsh was telling this story to shield his wife, his statement was: 'I for one don't think I am a damn fool enough to come back home to a wife who has shot me, do you? If my wife was the kind of a woman who would shoot me, do you think she would deserve any shielding? I certainly would not attempt to shield her if she had done anything of the kind.'"

A report that a second revolver had been found on the Davies lawn was denied by both sides.

An echo of the Freeport incident was heard in the City Court in Manhattan yesterday when Miss Reine Davies failed to appear before Justice Edward R. Lehrfeld to show cause why she should not be adjudged in contempt for failing to appear in supplementary proceedings. In May, 1919, Harry Hechheimer obtained a judgment against the actress for $343 for legal services. The judgment, it was said, was returned unsatisfied, and she was later ordered to appear for examination. Justice Le Fetra took no action yesterday.

Where Kissel Has Been First

Here are listed some of the points of design and construction that Kissel has introduced into the automobile industry. Many of these features are still exclusive in Kissel Custom-Built Sixes. Others have been generally adopted by motor car manufacturers. But in every case Kissel was first.

First to introduce a special frame design that places the center of gravity very low, creating exceptional roadability without sacrificing road clearance.

First to balance separately all reciprocating parts—crankshaft, clutch parts and connecting rods—in the same motor.

First to perfect automatic oil control in a motor—to supply the correct amount of oil at every motor speed.

First to perfect a method of chassis construction that goes far towards eliminating squeaking and rattling of moving parts.

First to use double external brakes, thus doing away with the danger, noise and wear of internal braking mechanism.

First to merge all electric wires on one central control board, making possible the easy location of wire trouble.

First to place a full-width coach design body on an automobile chassis.

First to bring out two and three door touring bodies.

First to introduce concealed lights to illuminate the instrument board at night.

First to place on the market an all-year car—Kissel's idea that changed the habits of a nation by making winter driving popular.

First to use the possibilities of the now universally-used vacuum gasoline feed, for it was at the Kissel factory that this system was worked out by its inventor, Webb Jay.

First to substitute oil lubrication for grease cups in a medium-priced car.

First to build his own rear axles, and first to offer a full-floating rear axle in a popular priced car.

And now—first to place on the market a real Custom-Built Six selling at a popular price.

Again and again during the past 16 years has Kissel introduced into the automobile industry principles of design and manufacture that were regarded as revolutionary.

And again and again have other manufacturers followed Kissel in adopting these principles as essential in really fine automobiles.

Now comes further proof of Kissel leadership—the leadership of price. Never before have truly custom-built automobiles been obtainable at prices so moderate as those now in effect on the various models of the Kissel Custom-Built Six.

The fineness made possible only by skilled hand craftmanship asserts itself everywhere in the performance of these cars. It is evident in the silent, powerful motor that runs without noticeable vibration at any speed; in the low-slung body that clings to the road without side-sway; in the freedom from petty annoyances; in the dignity and grace of line contributed by advanced body design.

If you are interested in discovering a car that will fully meet your conception of a truly fine automobile in everything but price, we suggest that you investigate the Kissel Custom-Built Six. Now on display.

BRITTON DEFEATS LEONARD ON FOUL

Lightweight Champion Is Disqualified for Hitting While Opponent Is Down.

BOUT ENDS IN THIRTEENTH

26,000 ON HAND FOR MATCH

Many Fashionably Dressed Women in Ringside Seats Among Immense Throng at Velodrome.

Jack Britton, 37-year-old ring veteran, still is the world's welterweight champion. In his bout against Benny Leonard, world's lightweight champion, at the Velodrome last night, Referee Patsy Haley awarded the decision to Britton in the thirteenth round on a foul.

The end came 2 minutes 42 seconds after the round had started when in a swirling attack Leonard landed a left to the stomach. With the blow Britton went down on one knee, his face distorted in pain and supporting himself with his right gloved fist. Referee Haley thereupon stepped to the side of the fallen champion, as if to count over Britton. Before the referee could proceed, however, Leonard, eager and excited, hopped around Haley and swung a left to the face as Britton was on his knee. Then Referee Haley stepped between the boxers, waved them to their corners, and caused it to be announced that Britton was the winner of the contest on a foul.

When the decision was announced by Joe Humphreys, the boxers stepped out of the ring amid the mingled shouts of the crowd that was partly acclaiming and partly voicing dissatisfaction. Referee Haley stepped to a neutral corner of the ring, and, in explanation of his decision to ringside critics, said:

"I awarded the bout to Britton on a foul. Leonard floored Britton with a left hook to the stomach. Britton claimed the blow was foul, but I disagreed with him. I was preparing to start a count over Britton, when Leonard stepped up and struck Britton while the latter was down. It was this foul that I disqualified Leonard on and awarded the bout to Britton."

Decision Stuns Crowd.

The sudden, unexpected ending to the contest stunned the crowd. Ringside spectators stormed to the side of the ring and clamored for an explanation. The sentiment of the gathering was divided. Many thought that Leonard had been disqualified for striking the left to the stomach. thers thought there was no excuse for disqualifying Leonard at all. While the gathering was loud in its vocal demonstration, there was no indication of concerted disorder. After the excitement of the sudden finish had simmered down, the crowd left slowly and orderly. Urged by the special policemen, the crowd poured from the arena in a steady stream and the Velodrome soon was emptied.

The finish came as an unwelcome climax to a contest which provided a brilliant exhibition of skill by two past masters of the art of boxing. In a sense the contest was disappointing, however. The unsatisfactory finish was not the only disappointing element in the battle. Leonard failed to show up to expectations, in fact, failed to show up to the form he has exhibited in many of his previous local bouts.

Britton, on the other hand, showed surprisingly good form, and appeared to be an easy winner on points up to the time of the foul. Leonard, who was the favorite in the betting before the battle at odds of as high as 3 to 1, failed to show any form which would warrant these odds. The lightweight champion was careful and cautious throughout the contest, almost to the point of timidity, and lost many glowing chances to demonstrate his hitting power at the expense of Britton.

There were times when Leonard stung Britton noticeably with powerful right crosses or left hooks to the jaw which sent the welterweight champion reeling about the ring. But invariably Leonard hesitated in following what appeared to be an advantage, or he missed with punches which carried damaging power. Under the circumstances Britton was enabled to recover his equilibrium whenever danger threatened.

Seven Rounds for Britton.

Of the first twelve rounds Britton appeared entitled to the honors in seven sessions. These were the second, third, fourth, fifth, ninth, tenth and twelfth.

Leonard apparently discarded his caution, went in and outboxed Britton in the sixth, seventh and eighth rounds. In the eleventh round Leonard, concentrating his efforts in a determined effort to knock out his rival, almost succeeded in crushing Britton under the power of his blows in a furious two-handed assault which had the welterweight champion reeling like a drunken man and the crowd in a frenzy of excitement.

The lightweight champion, however, deliberated too long in what course to pursue in the situation, and Britton quickly recovered. The welterweight champion recovered so completely that he came back and outpointed Leonard in the twelfth round. In the thirteenth session, or that part of it that transpired before the unwelcome climax, honors were about evenly divided.

A crowd which taxed the capacity of the great arena turned out for the bout. Every nook and cranny of the huge bowl was occupied when the two champions entered the ring. The capacity of the arena is said to be 26,000. If so, this many persons made the journey to the battle centre. They came in droves from early evening until after dusk. Subways, surface cars and elevated trains were jammed with humanity headed for the fight. Automobiles pulled up to the arena entrance in steady streams and were parked by the hundreds in the seats.

In the battel as it progressed Britton appeared the complete master of his rival. Calling on all the ring wisdom at his command, the welterweight champion outboxed and outfought his contemporary of the lighter ding division. On the attack Britton was active with an assault which smothered Leonard's blows at times and had the lightweight champion missing repeatedly with his hardest punches.

Veteran's Offensive Consistent.

Making sporadic outbursts, Leonard outpointed the welterweight champion in brilliant boxing exchanges at long range, while the lightweight champion worked a stinging, accurate left jab to the face with effect. But the exhibitions by Leonard were flashes which, when measured against the consistent, untiring offensive of Britton, suffered by the comparison. It was through his relentless forcing, with its superb though light attack, that Britton gained the honors over Leonard in seven of the rounds.

In the four rounds he won, however, Leonard gave the gathering an indication of his real ability. The trouble with the lightweight champion was that his work was not sustained. This difference in aggressiveness swung the tide of battle in Britton's favor.

The first round was evenly divided. Both boxed cautiously and with the utmost regard, obviously, for each other's ability. The round was spent for the most part in the "feeling out" process, wherein both boxed at long range in the common endeavor to detect a weakness or to develop a method of forcing an opening.

In the second round, however, Britton cut loose a notch and outboxed and outfought Leonard. A stinging right to the jaw early in the round made Leonard seek the shelter of a clinch. At close quarters, however, Britton pumped rights and lefts to Leonard's stomach until the lightweight champion was forced to break. After shaking off the effects of the right, Leonard jabbed with his left in an effort to keep Britton at bay, but Britton bored in continually, and in the last minute grazed the jaw with another right. Just before the bell Leonard almost upset Britton with a hard right cross to the jaw.

Leonard started flashily in the third round, jabbing Britton repeatedly with the left to the face and upsetting Britton's attack. The welterweight champion, kept trying, however, and, forcing matters, peppered Leonard with both hands to the face and body. Before the bell Leonard was bleeding from the mouth, the result of a left hook.

A sharp left hook, followed by a hard right cross to the jaw early in the round, stung Britton in the fourth round and made the welterweight champion extremely cautious for awhile. Britton quickly recovered, however, and fought back valiantly. In a clinch Britton fought himself clear with a succession of rights and lefts to the jaw which drew a complaint to Referee Haley from Leonard. The men were ordered to box and Britton outfought Leonard to the bell.

In the fifth, too, Leonard started well, but was soon on the defensive as Britton forced matters, leading with both hands in a varied assault. In a clinch Leonard almost wrestled Britton down.

Leonard Shows Improvement.

Leonard went on the offensive in the sixth round and through this session, and in the seventh and eighth outboxed Britton. The lightweight champion's attacks, however, were light because of the caution he displayed in leading at his rival. With persistent left jabs, occasional left hooks and intermittent right crosses, Leonard made Britton miss repeatedly through this part of the battle. In the seventh round Leonard befuddled Britton with a crushing right which sent the welterweight reeling off balance in the last minute of the round, but Britton protected himself against assault until the bell.

Through the ninth and tenth rounds Britton, returning to the attack, carried off the honors. His work, as in his previous favorable rounds, was consistent and untiring while Leonard fought only in flashes.

Leonard had his best round in the eleventh, which, by the same token, was Britton's worst. The lightweight champion, with a succession of left hooks to the jaw, started soon after the bell beginning the round to hammer Britton into unconsciousness.

Leonard almost succeeded. Three sharp left hooks in rapid fire order sent Britton staggering and back against the ropes in a neutral corner. The welterweight champion was in distress, on the verge of knockdown and possibly a knockout, and the crowd was in an uproar urging Leonard on to a knockout victory. Leonard leaped into the attack willingly, but as Britton covered instinctively, the lightweight champion was wild and ineffective in a shower of rights and lefts aimed at the jaw of the almost helpless welterweight champion.

Leonard stepped back suddenly and began boxing at long range, but the lightweight champion was too cautious in this situation and Britton recovered quickly. Just before the bell Leonard suddenly leaped in with another vicious outburst which carried Britton before it to the ropes, but the bell sounded without any damage being accomplished by the lightweight champion.

Britton Recovers from Attack.

Britton's seconds worked industriously over the welterweight champion during intermission between rounds and Britton responded to the bell for the twelfth apparently fully recovered. Leonard reverted to his cautious style in this session and was outboxed and outfought by Britton. The welterweight champion forced matters continuously and landed several times with rights and lefts which grazed Leonard's jaw. Leonard missed the majority of his punches while others were blocked by Britton or thrown off the welterweight champion's attack.

In the thirteenth round honors were about evenly divided, until the sudden ending almost in midring. Britton was forcing matters, Leonard was holding his own with a retaliatory assault in which he gave Britton no slow with the welterweight champion. Catching Britton's guard up, Leonard suddenly leaped in during the last half minute with a ripping left hook for the body.

The punch landed and Britton went down on one knee with pain written on his face and his left arm signalling wildly to referee Patsy Haley, who stood shaking his head negatively, apparently preparing to count. Then Leonard leaped in with a left to the face, and the disqualification followed.

In the semi-final bout scheduled for twelve rounds, Eddie Fitzsimmons, Yorkville southpaw, knocked out Sam Mosberg, former international amateur lightweight champion, in 1 minute 0 seconds of the first round. Johnny Coney and Jack Stark, local featherweights, boxed a draw in a six-round bout. In the first bout, a four-round contest, Joey Leonard, brother of the lightweight champion, won the decision over Sammy Marco.

STORY OF THE FIGHT TOLD ROUND BY ROUND

Britton Draws First Blood in Third With Left Hook to the Mouth.

Britton was first to enter the ring, climbing up the steps at 9:35 P. M. He was followed a moment later by Leonard. Both were well received. Before the bout Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight champion, and Johnny Buff, world's bantamweight champion, were introduced. It was announced that Britton weighed 146¾ pounds; Leonard's weight was announced as 139¾ pounds. After posing for pictures the men were called to the centre of the ring for instructions by Referee Patsy Haley. The bout started at 9:42.

First Round.

Second Round.

Third Round.

Fourth Round.

Fifth Round.

After preliminary sparring Leonard landed two lefts to the face. Britton was wild with a right. Leonard swung Britton off his balance in a clinch, the latter almost failing to the floor. Leonard landed with a right to the face, but Britton rushed him to the ropes with rights and lefts to the body. Britton hooked a right to the jaw. Britton beat Leonard's left lead with a right to the head. Leonard grazed the jaw with a right. Britton jabbed his left to the face and crossed a right to the same place. Leonard missed with right and left leads to the face. Leonard forced Britton to the ropes and dug a left to the body before the bell.

Sixth Round.

Seventh Round.

Ninth Round.

Tenth Round.

Eleventh Round.

Thirteenth Round.

American Player at Wimbledon Smashes Ball Into Royal Box

WIMBLEDON, June 26 (Associated Press).—One record went to America during the first day's play in the tennis tournament here when A. W. Asthalter, an American, playing in the doubles in the second match in the amphitheatre, smashed the first ball into the royal box, in which King George and Queen Mary were seated. Although the American is a terrific volleyer, no casualty resulted, and the doubles match, in which Asthalter was playing with W. C. Crawley as a partner, continued until it was stopped by the rain.

King and Queen Brave Downpour Which Spells Opening Day—American Wins in Doubles.

Copyright, 1922, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 26.—The arrival of the King and Queen at New Wimbledon in the middle of a downpour of rain and the announcement by Suzanne Lenglen that she had decided to play in the singles championship were the chief features of the opening day of the lawn tennis carnival today. The rain interfered with a good part of the program.

During an interval Mlle. Lenglen met Mrs. Mallory. They exchanged nods. Both are hoping to meet in a fight to a finish for the ladies' singles championship, which Mlle. Lenglen holds.

Another feature of the day was the hurricane play of A. W. Asthalter. His net play was overwhelming and his reverse service was too much for the Englishmen, Gore and Riseley, who played against him and Crawley. The Englishmen failed to return many of Asthalter's service balls and when they succeeded, as a rule the best they could achieve was a "set-up," which Asthalter promptly smothered in his sprint to the net.

7,000 Greet Royal Party.

LONDON, June 26 (Associated Press).—Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen, the French tennis star, in a statement given to the Associated Press this afternoon declared she had definitely and finally decided to play through the singles at the Wimbledon tournament and that under no circumstances would she default any match. She added that she was in splendid health.

Fully 7,000 spectators were present in the Wimbledon amphitheatre at 3:30 o'clock when King George and Queen Mary braved a steady downpour of rain to attend the formal opening of the new courts. The band played the national anthem and the crowd cheered. Then, as soon as the royal party had had a view of the courts, the tarpaulins were lowered over them in the hope that the tournament play could be started as soon as the rain ceased.

The first match was in the men's singles, A. F. R. Kingscote against L. Godfree, and the second a doubles affair with A. W. Asthalter, an American playing with W. C. Crawley as his partner, against A. W. Gore and F. L. Riseley.

Play was finally began in these two matches, and Kingscote defeated Godfree, 6—1, 6—3, 6—3.

The second match was in the men's doubles. Crawley and Asthalter won the first set from Gore and Riseley, 6—2, when the rain stopped the play. After two hours of rain the match was resumed and Asthalter and Crawley won two more sets from Gore and Riseley, 6—2, 6—4. Asthalter's fiery serves, service completely overwhelmed the English veterans.

COLLEGE POLO TODAY.

Yale and Princeton Fours to Meet on Meadow Brook Field.

Special to The New York Times.

WESTBURY, L. I., June 26.—The polo game in the tournament for the Hempstead Cups, scheduled for today at the Meadow Brook Club, was postponed until tomorrow, the rains of last night having rendered the field unfit for play. The principal match tomorrow will, however, be the intercollegiate game between Princeton and Yale, which was postponed from last week on account of rain. The game between the two college fours will be a society event, parking space and boxes having been liberally subscribed for. A special train will leave the Pennsylvania Station at 3:20 P. M., daylight saving time, and return immediately after the game. The match is scheduled to start at 4:30.

Washington Crew Gets Free Transportation for Shell

Special to The New York Times.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 26.—The University of Washington crew will be able to shave $700 off its expense account for its 8,000-mile journey here. Instead of being forced to spend that sum to express its shell home, the boat will go back free on the steamer Andrea F. Luckenbach, which docked here after bringing a cargo of lumber from Seattle. A former Washington oarsman who rowed in the 1913 Coast crew is now located with the Dutton Lumber Corporation in this city, and he, with the co-operation of the Poughkeepsie Chamber of Commerce, was instrumental in making arrangements with the shipowners.

FIGHT ARTICLES TO BE SIGNED TODAY

Rickard Announces That Dempsey and Wills Will Be Formally Matched for Title.

Articles for a heavyweight championship bout between Jack Dempsey, the titleholder, and Harry Wills, his negro challenger, will be signed this afternoon, according to the plans of Promoter Tex Rickard, who has the verbal assurance of the principals involved to engage in a championship bout under his auspices. Rickard yesterday announced that he had arranged a conference for today with Jack Kearns and Parry Mullins, managers respectively of Dempsey and Wills. The promoter added that an agreement will be signed, if the managers are agreeable, binding Dempsey and Wills to box at a date and place to be named by Rickard in a ninety-day period ending June 30, 1923.

Kearns declared yesterday that he was planning to see Rickard today. The champion's manager, however, declined to admit that his contemplated visit involved signing articles for a bout. Mullins was at Madison Square Garden yesterday afternoon, prepared to sign articles. He held a lengthy conference with Matchmaker Frank B. Flournoy, but denied that the conference held any significance in so far as new developments in the heavyweight title situation were concerned.

"I came over from Brooklyn this afternoon prepared to sign for Willis," said Mullins. "Kearns and Dempsey were not present, so there was no signing. I'm ready to sign any time. I will visit the Garden tomorrow and will sign if articles are produced."

Dempsey spent part of his time yesterday in a workout at Stillman's gymnasium. Babe Herman, California featherweight, who is a stablemate of the champion's, worked with Dempsey. Herman is training for a bout against Willie Kohler which is to be held at the Steeple chase A. A., Rockaway Beach, Friday night. Dempsey's workout consisted of a session with the chest pulleys, punching the light bag, shadow boxing, punching the heavy bag and calisthenics. The champion declared that the workout held no particular significance beyond his desire to keep in trim.

"I'm feeling in great shape right now and I want to keep in good condition," said Dempsey. "The best way to hold my condition is to devote a little of my time every day to the gymnasium. Then I'll be ready for whatever comes along."

Dempsey will leave this city with Manager Kearns tomorrow morning. The champion is scheduled to appear in a boxing exhibition against Larry Williams, Bridgeport heavyweight, who is a sparring partner of the champion's, at Providence tomorrow night. Following this exhibition Dempsey, according to the itinerary announced yesterday by Kearns, will appear at Oklahoma City against Andre Anderson, on July 3; at Moberly, Mo., on July 4, and at Wichita, Kan., on July 5. The champion plans to alternate with Anderson and Williams as his sparring partners in these exhibitions. Following the Wichita exhibition Dempsey plans to visit Canada for a tour of about seven or eight days, starting at Montreal. Upon his return the champion probably will engage in additional exhibitions in this country before entering hard training for a bout on Labor Day.

Robins Win Exhibition Game.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., June 26.—The Brooklyn National League team defeated the Schenectady Knights of Columbus in an exhibition game here this afternoon by a score of 5 to 1.

Nyack Player Defeats Mrs. Waring in Women's Singles Final at Englewood.

DOUBLES EVENT DECIDED

Crown Goes to Mrs. McLean and Mrs. Welty—Both Championships Won in Straight Sets.

Miss Marion Chapman of the Nyack Tennis Club won the women's singles tennis championship of New Jersey yesterday at the Englewood Field Club, Englewood, N. J., by defeating Mrs. Samuel H. Waring of the New York Tennis Club in the final round of the State tournament in straight sets, 6—2, 6—1. Miss Chapman took the match with all-sufficient emphasis, but the play was considerably closer than might be judged by the set scores.

The final and championship match in the State doubles was won by Mrs. Marshall McLean and Mrs. Edna W. Welty. They defeated Miss Rosamond Newton and Miss Caroma Winn by scores of 7—5, 6—4. Mrs. McLean and Mrs. Welty are an experienced combination, each accustomed to the other's play, and their excellent team work had an important part in their victory. They were steadier than the Boston-Orange combination, and exercised much circumspection in playing for the openings. Miss Winn and Miss Newton were active in covering court and only slightly less sure of their strokes. The match was filled with long rallies, with the ball often crossing the net a score of times for a single point, while a good proportion of the games ran into deuce. Mrs. McLean and Mrs. Welty had the greater finishing powers, however, in both sessions.

Slightly greater thoroughness in covering court, combined with a swift forehand drive under excellent control, piled up the points for Miss Chapman in the singles final. Miss Chapman forced Mrs. Waring to a great deal of footwork and attacked her backhand severely. In the main, the match was contested from back court, but both players occasionally advanced to the volley, and both were reliable if not powerful, in their hitting at the net.

Mrs. Waring Unsteady.

Mrs. Waring's control was inclined to desert her at critical points. Frequently she assembled a lead of 40—15 or 40—30 and then lost the game through errors. Miss Chapman had a heavy advantage in earned points, scoring 22 placements to 8 in the first set, and 13 to 6 in the second. But several of her placements were scored on shots that Mrs. Waring might have reached had she tried for them.

Just how well the games were fought is shown by the fact that in the first set four of the eight went to deuce, and in the second two of the seven. Miss Chapman won five of the six deuce games. In the second game of the opener, Mrs. Waring led at 40-30 and lost. In the third, she led at 40-15, and later had the "vantage, but again lost through errors. Had she won this long third game, in which deuce was called five times, she might have had a fair chance for the set. Again in the seventh game, on her service, Mrs. Waring led at 40-love. Once more she dropped the game, but on this occasion it was Miss Chapman's clean placing for four earned points that enabled her to make the pull-up.

Shows Greater Accuracy.

In the eighth and last game of the set, the points were 30-love and 40-30 in Mrs. Waring's favor and once more she failed to cling to her advantage. Miss Chapman finishing the set with three placements in a row, including a net-corder and a pretty passing shot. Honors were even between the two in this set in their forays to the net, but Miss Chapman was considerably more accurate off the ground.

In the second session, Miss Chapman won five games before Mrs. Waring could take one. Mrs. Waring captured the sixth on Miss Chapman's service, a volley for placement and a passing shot giving her the most important points. Miss Chapman won the next game, however, by hard driving and good placing. Mrs. Waring netted for the match point.

CHAMPION ADVANCES IN COLLEGE TENNIS

Neer of Leland Stanford Reaches Fourth Round in Tourney at Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, June 26.—Favorites came through as expected in the singles of the annual intercollegiate tennis tournament, which began today on the turf courts of the Merion Cricket Club.

Philip Neer of Leland Stanford University, last year's title winner, advanced to the fourth round by virtue of a default in the second round by Alfred Hulme of Haverford and a 6—2, 6—4 victory in the third round over Lloyd Gregory of the University of Texas.

Other stars who advanced to the fourth round were James Davis and Richard Hinckley, Leland Stanford; Wray Brown, Washington University; John Howard, Princeton; L. E. Williams, Yale; W. E. Howe Jr., Dartmouth; Morris Duane, Harvard, and Charles Granger, University of Texas.

The three members of the University of Chicago team, P. T. Gates, A. A. Stagg Jr. and A. E. Frankenstein, all were eliminated in the second round. The Middle Westerners appeared to be unaccustomed to the turf courts.

The nearest approach to an upset occurred in the first round, when Karl Kammann of Washington University defeated Harold L. Taylor of Princeton in a hard two-set match, 8—6, 6—4.

Play in the doubles championship will start tomorrow.

KING WINS TWICE IN N. Y. A. C. TENNIS

Eliminates Martin and Ropes in Travers Island Tourney—Fisher Again Triumphs.

Dr. George King, New York Athletic Club tennis star, made his first appearance yesterday afternoon in his club's open tournament for the Travers Island Cup in singles, and won two matches which, with a first round bye, carried him as far as the fourth round. King is the favorite to win the tournament and become the challenger of Walter Merrill Hall, holder of the trophy.

King first eliminated Paul Martin of the University Heights Club by the one-sided scores of 6—0, 6—1, and then disposed of Chapman Ropes with equal dispatch, 6—4, 6—1. Today the Westchester champion will meet the Japanese player, S. Onda, in the fourth round.

Ralph L. Baggs of the West Side Tennis Club progressed as far as the fifth round. He had a close match in the fourth with Isidore Bittchik, defeating him by 6—4, 4—6, 6—2. Vanderbilt B. Ward was hard pressed in the second set of his third round contest with J. L. Verstraten. He won by 6—2, 10—8, and his performance indicated that he has not yet reached his true form. Jerome Minster of the Harlem Club gained a highly creditable victory over Murray Vernon of the West Side Club by 6—2, 6—2.

The most distinctive achievement of the day, however, was that of the Pelham youngster, Harris B. Fisher Jr. Fisher furnished the sensation of the opening round on Saturday, when he defeated Armand L. Bruneau, and yesterday he proved that that noteworthy victory was no accident by beating the capable George C. Whitlock, 6—2, 6—3, and then taking on Alexander Iler of the West Side Club, and winning by 11—9, 3—6, 6—0.

The summaries:

Travers Island Singles—Second Round—Dr. George King defeated Paul Martin, 6—0, 6—1; Harris B. Fisher Jr. defeated Rudolf B. Rich, 6—2, 6—3; George C. Whitlock defeated Paul T. Kersey, 4—6, 10—14, 7—5; Perry E. Hall defeated Dr. B. F. Drake, 6—3, 7—5; Murray Vernon defeated Randolph Price, 6—2, 6—1; Jerome Minister defeated Earle C. Backe, 6—7, 6—3; Lawrence Steinger defeated H. Don Kersey, 6—2, 7—5; T. R. Harris defeated H. Calhoun, 6—4, 1—6, 6—4; Albert E. Downes won from G. H. Coster by default.

Third Round—King defeated Chapman Ropes, 6—0, 6—1; Fisher defeated A. A. Sheridan, 6—2, 6—3; Jerome Minister defeated Murray Vernon, 6—2, 6—2; Vanderbilt B. Ward defeated J. L. Verstraten, 6—2, 10—8; Alexander Iler won from T. R. Leary by default; Harris B. Fisher Jr. defeated G. C. Whitlock, 6—2, 6—0; Manfred Goldman defeated Henry Wiseltier, 6—4, 6—1; R. D. Golden defeated Frank M. Loughman, 7—5, 6—3; Hugh Talbot defeated George E. Preston,

RUTH AND SHAWKEY GIVE YANKS VICTORY

JACK QUINN IS THE VICTIM

Veteran Is Outpitched by New York Twirler in Final of Series—Landis Interviews Ruth.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, June 26.—Bob Shawkey and George Herman Ruth stepped into the breach today and stopped the tottering Yankees from losing the final game of the series to the Red Sox. With four consecutive defeats staring them in the face since their arrival here, the Hugmen responded to the call of the mite manager, or, rather, Shawkey and Ruth did, and at the finish they had tucked away to their credit a game which for four innings had seemed Boston's. In the fifth the Huggins clan awoke. Ruth hit a homer—his eighth of the season—when two were on the bases, and at the end of the session the Yankees were in the lead by 4 to 3. In the sixth the Red Sox tied the score, and then ensued a gripping struggle until the ninth, when Shawkey won his own game off Jack Quinn with a smash for the circuit. The final score stood 6 to 4. By winning this game the Hugmen gained on the Browns, who were beaten by the Indians.

Before the game Miller Huggins denied that he contemplated any shake-up in the Yankees, owing to their disastrous showing in being forced out of first place in the race for the American League pennant. He said the only change would be the displacement of Elmer Miller by Ruth, whose time of suspension by Ban Johnson expired today.

Before Ruth went out on the field for his first appearance here this season he had an interview with Judge Kenesaw M. Landis, baseball commissioner—or, as a matter of fact, Judge Landis had a little seance with the Babe. Plain truths, truths which one may well imagine were told the Babe so plainly and forcibly that he said he'd never again transgress the rules. In addition to talking to Ruth, Judge Landis, who was making his first visit here since 1920, held a conference with the players of both teams.

Shawkey Stars on Mound.

Shawkey deserved to win the game. He outpitched the veteran Quinn, who once twirled for the Yankees. Shawkey had the better in the matter of base hits by only one, but in strikeouts he had six to two for the Red Sox pitcher. He was much steadier, giving only one base on balls, while Quinn issued five. At the bat Bob was something of a wonder for a pitcher, as he made two safeties, as many as any other of the Yanks made. Of the Red Sox the only ones able to hit Shawkey were Smith and Burns, each of whom knocked out three safeties.

Whitey Witt, first up for the Yankees in the first inning, had to wait until fans from Winchendon, Mass., his home town, presented to him a purse of $50 in gold. Witt responded with a pap to Pfeffenger. McNally singled to left and Ruth hit into a double play.

The Red Sox started right off in their half of the first inning as if they were going to make a runaway race. Smith doubled along the first base line and Menosky sacrificed. McNally to Pipp. Burns singled to centre, scoring Smith. Pratt followed with a safe hit to right, sending Burns to third. Dugan hit to Shawkey, who threw to Hofmann, getting Burns at the plate. Ward's wild throw to get Collins at first allowed Pratt to cross the plate. Dugan went to third and Collins to second on the error. There they remained, for Ruel struck out.

Neither side scored in the second, but in the third the Red Sox obtained their third run of the game. In this inning, however, the Yanks got three men on the bases. Scott, who was taking part in the 901st Major League game of his career, was thrown out by Pfeffenger. Hofmann singled to left and Shawkey was safe on Pfeffenger's fumble. Witt beat out a bunt to Quinn, filling the bases, with only one out. But the side was retired when McNally hit into a double play, Quinn to Ruel to Burns.

Hofmann Drops Witt's Throw.

Menosky singled to left to start the Red Sox in their half of the third. Burns sacrificed, Shawkey to Pipp. On a wild pitch Menosky took third. Pratt filed to Witt and Whitey made a fine throw to the plate, a throw accurate enough to have shut off Menosky, but Hofmann dropped the ball and the runner was safe. Scott took Dugan's fly.

In the fifth the Yankees tied the score and took the lead. Scott walked. Then Pratt threw out both Hofmann and Shawkey. McNally singled to right, scoring Scott, and Witt, who also had walked before McNally had hit safely, going to third. With Witt and McNally on the bases Ruth slammed the ball into the right field bleachers for a home run. Pfeffenger threw out Meusel.

The Red Sox tied the score in the sixth. Dugan beat out a hit to McNally and Collins doubled to left, Dugan romping to Hofmann. Pfeffenger filed to Meusel and Dugan scored on the throw. Scott scored after the catch. Quinn fanned. In the seventh Shawkey singled and Witt walked, but the Yanks failed to score owing to a wonderful stop by Pratt of McNally's hard grounder back of second on which Witt was forced. With two on the bases and two out Ruth failed to hit safely, going out on a grounder, Pratt to Burns. The Sox also got two men on bases in their half through singles by Smith and Burns, but McNally's throw to the plate prevented a run.

In the ninth Hofmann was tossed out by Pfeffenger. Shawkey then broke the tie with a home run drive over the left field fence. Witt beat out a slow roller and Dugan threw out Witt. Ruth was intentionally passed. Meusel singled to left, scoring Witt. Pratt threw out Pipp.

DOUBLE-HEADER TODAY.

Giants to Have Six Games in Five Days With Phillies.

The league-leading Giants, who took the day off yesterday, will start what looks like the easiest week of the season today. The Phillies will be at the Polo Grounds for the remainder of the week, beginning today with a double-header and finishing Saturday afternoon—six game in five days. Unless the Quakers show some more of the startling form that beat the Braves four straight times last week the Giants ought to pile up a lucrative pile. The double bill will start at 1:30, and Jess Barnes and Bill Ryan will probably pitch for the champions.

The Yankees pulled stakes at Boston yesterday and will attempt a series comeback in Washington today. The Robins will play the Braves in the Hub today.

CLEVELAND, O., June 26.—The Browns were unable to hit Coveleskie effectively here today and Cleveland won the first game of the series, 6 to 0. The Indians waited Pruett out and, when he put the ball over, bunched their hits. Ellerbe's sensational infielding held down the Indians.

CHICAGO DOWNS PIRATES.

Studeland's Excellent Pitching Gives Cubs a 6-4 Victory.

CHICAGO, June 26.—The Chicago Cubs came from behind and, playing an uphill battle, bit opportunely behind bases on balls and erratic fielding on the part of the visitors, and defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates today, 6 to 4. Studeland pitched in fine form, experiencing only one bad inning, when the Pirates touched him for four hits, which, with two errors, gave them the lead.

SONS OF OLD ELI TAKE FINAL GAME

Beat Harvard Nine in Deciding Contest of 1922 Series at Polo Grounds, 5-0.

Blue and Crimson Unite to Cheer Yale Star as He Ends His Career as College Athlete.

"Good night, poor Harvard!" wailed a Yale cornet at the end of the baseball game at the Polo Grounds yesterday, and it told the truth. The Elis might have added Tosti's "Good-Bye" in a sad minor key and completed the story of the deciding game of the series between the two universities. It was good-night and good-bye, for Harvard was beaten soundly, 5 to 0—whitewashed and put to rout, with not even the consolation of a single run to take back to Cambridge.

It was a decisive game, this deciding battle. It was all Yale from the first inning to the last, and it gave the Blue the baseball honors among the Big Three. Both Yale and Harvard defeated Princeton. In their own series the Elis won the first game, Harvard the second. Yale won yesterday and settled the question for the year 1922.

Yale was both glad and sad—glad for the victory, sad because it lost for all time one of the finest athletes that it ever has had—Malcolm Aldrich, leader of a good football team, captain of a victorious ball nine, athlete extraordinary, a sportsman and a gentleman. After the ninth inning yesterday Mac was only an alumnus, but before he passed from the field of battle both Yale and Harvard united in a great demonstration.

Good-bye to Aldrich.

The first ovation came in the ninth, when Aldrich walked to the plate for his last time at bat as a Yale baseball player. The Blue cheering section back of third base rose as one man and shouted. There was a long booming cheer with three Aldriches on the end. Then Mac slashed a hot liner into the right fielder's glove as his final salute to Harvard. When he retraced his steps from first base the Harvard cheering section gave him a tremendous ovation, with an undertone of relief, as one cynic suggested. Yale without Aldrich is a different matter from Yale with him.

After the game the Eli captain was entrapped and surrounded on the field. A half dozen husky undergraduates lifted him to their shoulders, marched around the field with Aldrich twisting and squirming, and finally deposited him in front of the Harvard section, where Mac broke and ran even faster than he did against Princeton and Harvard last Fall.

Aldrich went out in a blaze of glory. He was the bright star of the game. He made only one hit, but this was a well-laid bunt which he beat out, opening the door for Yale's four-run attack in the third inning. In the field he was a flashing machine, accepting ten chances without a miss and making one catch which stopped the biggest Harvard rally of the game. This was in the fourth inning, when the Crimson filled the bases with none out. Then Jenkins lined straight into Aldrich's glove and the Yale leader doubled Gordon off third with a quick toss to Warren.

In the third, with two out and Harvard men on third and second, Aldrich made another fine play. He scooped up Gordon's slow grounder and then uncorked a throw that sped like the wind to first base. Gordon, a fleet runner, was out by the veriest fraction of a step.

It was a small crowd for the Polo Grounds—only 5,000—but the undergrads and alumni made more noise than a 20,000 throng watching the Giants win. Yale brought a band along with it and sat behind the Eli dugout near third base. On the other side of the stand was a Harvard delegation, rather subdued after the third inning, when Yale had scored all of its five runs. But the Yale band and the Yale partisans made up for the Harvard silence. They sang "Boola, Boola," and "Harvard, Good Night," and cheered each and every play that aided the New Haven cause. The girls wore blue arrows at a rakish angle in their hats, which ran strongly to hues of the same color. Cheer leaders leaped and tumbled and worked harder than the players.

Harvard Calls on Her Ace.

Harvard rushed its best pitcher, Eddie Goode, against the Elis in the rubber game, but this star lasted only two innings and a part of a third in the face of a concerted Yale attack. He walked the first batter in the second inning, and then, after good support had killed off a run at the plate, the Harvard pitcher made two miserable errors which let in a run and opened the flood gates.

Yale went back after him with a rush in the third. O'Hearn doubled, Dealbour walked and then Aldrich the fleet-footed laid down a bunt and went to first base so fast that the third baseman did not even attempt a throw. This play upset Harvard, and Goode, banging on the edge of the abyss and paved the way for the rally that won the game. Goode walked Warren, forcing in a run, and Eddy then singled, bringing in two more.

This was enough for Harvard. Goode was withdrawn and Harlan Russell, another righthander, came on to stem the tide. An error and a two-bagger scored another run in the same fruitful inning, but after that Russell held Yale in the curve of a moist palm and gave them the scant allowance of five scattered singles.

But locking the door after the horse was stolen did Harvard no good. In three innings they massed their attack against Ted Chittenden, the Yale pitcher, and couldn't score. Once Aldrich's catch stopped the Crimson in its tracks. Another time, in the fifth, Chittenden pitched with ease and skill and retired three batters in a row after the Reds two had singled. On a third occasion bad base running by Thayer proved costly after the first two hitters had singled.

Harvard's fielding was as loose as its hitting. The four-run rally by Yale in the third started when Janin, playing the sun field in left, lost O'Hearn's easy fly in the glare and let it drop at his feet. In the next inning the same O'Hearn lifted a fly over the infield. Russell, Owen and Murphy surrounded the ball. Russell beckoned to Murphy. Murphy bawed to Owen and Owen did nothing but watch the ball drop at the pitcher's feet. Janin also misjudged Eddy's fly in the fifth and it soared over his head for a two-bagger. Second Baseman Jenkins joined the party with a bad throw that let in a run, and Goode himself achieved the unique distinction of making two errors on one play.

But even with all these subtracted Yale would have won, for Chittenden was the captain of his own soul and of Harvard's too. He was invincible in the pinches and scattered Harvard's nine hits where they would do the least harm.

Back of all this was high-class support by the entire infield and by Eddy in right, who was sure death to fly balls. Yale made three hits to Scott, and Keith Geer Owen, the Harvard football star of last Autumn, was the lasting star of the big game. Owen got three singles, and Eddy had a double mixed in with his trio of safeties.

Aldrich a True Star.

Aldrich made other good plays besides these that stopped Harvard so effectively. In the third inning the Blue leader raced over to the grand stand, outsprinted Warren, the third baseman, and made a startling catch of a foul fly. Aldrich was further handicapped by the fact that Warren got his feet in the way and tripped his captain just as he was making the catch.

Conlon and Owen played well for the Crimson, and so did Jenkins, barring his one bad throw. The last-named engineered a double play by himself in the eighth that was fast and furious.

Crane started the game for Yale by doubling to right centre and O'Hearn sacrificed. But Dealbour and Aldrich couldn't produce, and the runner stayed at third.

The Elis had a better punch in the second. Warren, the head man, walked, and Eddy forced him. Kelly's Texas leaguer dropped safely into left, Eddy making third by a sprint and a great slide. Here Harvard broke up a double steal. Conlon took the throw to second—a high one, incidentally—and tossed to the plate in time to nail Eddy. After Mallory had walked, Chittenden rolled to Owen and Goode, covering first, dropped the throw. Trying to nip Mallory off second base, the Harvard pitcher held the ball too long and then threw wild, Kelly scoring.

Four more for Yale in the third. Janin in left misjudged O'Hearn's fly and it went for a double, Goode passed Dealbour and the fleet Aldrich beat out a bunt to third, filling the bases. A run came over when Goode walked Warren, and two more followed on Eddy's single over third, but Warren was slain at third, Janis to Goode to Lincoln.

This was the end of Goode, and Russell was sent to the Crimson's rescue. He fanned Kelley. Eddy, trying to steal, was turned back, but Jenkins hit him on the leg with the ball as he scurried back to first base, and Eddy got to second in safety. He scored the fourth run of the inning when Mallory doubled to left.

Harvard Misses Chance.

Harvard overlooked its best chance in the fourth when with the bases full and none out Aldrich stopped Jenkins's liner, doubled Gordon at third and put the brakes on the rally. The first two batters singled in the Crimson's fifth, but the next two filed out and Aldrich got the third with a fast stop and a faster throw to first base.

The seventh saw more wasted opportunities. Thayer and Murphy singled in the infield. Russell sacrificed. Lincoln grounded out, Chittenden to O'Hearn, and when Thayer foolishly tried to score after the play he was out by a foot.

Smokers! a brand new convenience

KLICKIT—built by a scientist—is as different from the ordinary cigarette holder as a speed-boat is from a scow.

First, the Griptight Bore enables you to slip your cigarette into the holder without mashing it, and holds it with a bulldog grip until you're through.

Then, a flip of the hand—and "click"—the Automatic Ejector shoots out the stub.

Point three—a special cooling chamber (not just the narrow tube of the ordinary holder) gives you all the fragrance of the smoke and none of the burn.

And this chamber (point four, and a big one!) catches the irritating oils from the tobacco and prevents them from reaching the membranes of your throat.

KLICKIT will enable you to enjoy your favorite smoke as you've never enjoyed it before. Get one at the nearest cigar store today!

FATHER AND SON GOLF LEADERS TIE

Ashfortha and Morses Deadlock With Cards of 67 in Glen Cove Tournament.

Edward S. and E. S. Jr. Capture Medal for Low Gross Score—316 Tee Off In Annual Event.

Special to The New York Times.

GLEN COVE, L. I., June 26.—When the last pair of the field of 318 golfers competing in the seventh annual father and son golf tournament on the course of the Nassau Country Club turned in their cards late this afternoon it was found that the tournament had ended in a tie for chief honors. A. B. and A. B. Ashforth Jr. of Blind Brook and D. P. and D. R. Morse Jr. of Huntington were deadlocked with net scores of 67 each for the gold medals. It is not decided whether the tie will be played off. The gold medals for the low gross score were won by Edward S. Knapp and E. S. Knapp Jr. of Westbrook, with a total of 74 strokes.

The Kirby trophy, presented by Thomas E. Kirby, father of Gustavus T. Kirby, for the father over 55 years of age who, with his son, returned the lowest gross score, was won by Arthur McAleenan of Fox Hills. The latter and his son, Henry, were out in 40 and home in 43 for a total of 83. This score was bettered by the Knapps and by George Sweetser and his famous golfing son, Jesse, the latter having a gross score of 82. Neither Mr. Knapp nor Mr. Sweetser could boast of being over 55, so the massive silver cup went to Mr. McAleenan, one of the late starters, and one of the last to return a card.

The tying net scores were returned early, and while they were often threatened, the nearest to them was the 68 returned by C. H. and H. G. Larsen of Dunwoodie.

The cards of the leaders were as follows:

A. B. and A. B. Ashforth Jr.—
Out .....5 5 4 5 5 5 6 4 5—43
In .....6 7 5 4 5 5 5 4 5—46—89—25—67

Out .....5 5 4 5 5 6 4 3 4—39
In .....6 6 5 5 5 5 5 5 5—45—84—17—67

It was remarkable that in a field of 318 players the lowest net score was 66 and the highest 98, a difference of only 32 strokes, and a tribute to the effectiveness of the handicapping.

Knapps' Card a 74.

For a long time the gross card of 88 returned by Dr. Allen T. Haight of Lido and his son Richard seemed certain of carrying off the medals for the low gross, this pair of the winner of the gross prize a year ago at Sleepy Hollow. Their card today was 86, but this was put in the shade an hour or so later, however, when Edward S. Knapp and E. S. Jr. of Westbrook came in with a gross of 74, which was not even approached during the day. This was one under par, and a remarkable score for a tournament of this kind.

Mr. Knapp is an old-timer in tournament play, but was not old enough, however, to compete for the Kirby Trophy.

Their card:

Out .....4 5 4 3 4 6 4 3 3—36
In .....5 6 4 4 3 2 5 5 4—38—74—4—70
PAR
Out .....4 5 4 5 5 5 4 3 4—38
In .....5 4 4 3 5 5 5 4 4—37—75

Their card included three birdies on the outward round and one birdie and one eagle coming home.

Jesse Sweetser and his father, George W., were playing from scratch, but were not going at top speed and returned an 82.

J. G. (Laddie) McMahon, former junior champion and now a member of the Yale team which will play in the Intercollegiates at Garden City tomorrow, played with his father The Sleepy Hollow combination had a handicap of 2. They got away to a bad start, with 45 going out. They came home in 41, for a total of 86.

Veterans in Good Form.

Remarkably fine golf was shown by many of the veterans and by the youngsters as well. At least six twos were scored during the day, divided honors between the fourth and fifteenth holes, but not a single hole was done in one. Several in double figures were turned in, however.

One hundred and fifty-eight fathers and as many sons left the first tee, beginning as early as 8:45 A. M., making a total of 316 starters. So large was the field that it was after 6 o'clock before the last pairs came to the home green. The development of the pater and filius tournament has been so rapid in the seven years of its existence that it will be necessary either to curtail the entry by invitation or extend the competition to more than one day.

Duncan and Mitchell to Sail For This Country Tomorrow

Copyright, 1922, by The New York Times Co.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 26.—The British golf professionals, George Duncan and Abe Mitchell, will sail for another American tour on Wednesday and will play in the American open championship. Duncan's sensational score of 99 in the last round of the British open championship last Friday, and his failure to tie with Hagen by one stroke, is still the chief topic of discussion in British golf circles. Two veterans, J. H. Taylor and Sandy Herd, will be in the United States at the same time as their younger competitors.

SADDLE AND BOOTS WINNER OF FEATURE

McLean Gelding Captures Myrtle Selling Stakes in Close Finish at Aqueduct.

In a triangular battle lasting throughout the final furlong, Saddle and Boots carried the cerise and gold racing silks of E. B. McLean to victory in the thirty-third renewal of the Myrtle Selling Stakes, the starred event of yesterday afternoon's racing card at Aqueduct. The Quincy Stable's Teddy R. and Brainstorm, the Waterson entrant, disputed the issue with the winner to the very end, and finished in that order not many inches away.

Saddle and Boots, a gelded three-year-old son of Boots and Saddle, materially aided by his featherweight burden of 95 pounds, chased the pace set by Wynnewood for three-quarters of the mile trip. Then Merimee called upon him and he came along to put Wynnewood away without difficulty. An eighth from the line, however, Teddy R., closing fast from the rear of the field after the swing into the stretch, plunged forward to challenge the leader, and Brainstorm came up on the outside at the same time to hook it up with the other two.

The three racers came pelting down to the line in a finish which aroused a din in the stands. Saddle and Boots lasted to beat Teddy R. a neck, with Brainstorm just headed out of the place by the Quincy Stable's candidate. Pilgrim, the favorite, ran a rather dull race and was not a competitor at any stage.

The Quincy Stable had only a short wait for ample compensation for the beating, as its Ray Jay captured the following race, the Africander Handicap, also a one-mile test. The three-year-old son of Assegai performed in impressive style, following the rapid early pace of My Reverie and Hephaistos closely under light restraint at the hands of Ponce, and passing the leaders easily when let down at the top of the stretch. At the close he was eased up three lengths ahead of Hephaistos. The latter was close behind Mr. My Reverie when finally tired in the last quarter and was blocked by Be Frank, by a neck.

The Rancocas Stable scored a double with its two-year-olds, Theasagly winning the opening dash from J. A. Coburn's Lady Ines, while Coeur de Lion, a son of Man o' War's daddy, Fair Play, took the final race handily.

The Greentree Stables' Letterman overcame difficulties to win the Chesterbrook Purse at one mile. The Superman colt was pocketed for the first three furlongs. Then Thomas took him to the outside and he wore down the pacemaker, J. E. Welch's Orcus, and some good boat Misar by three lengths at the finish.

The latter suffered interference on the stretch turn, but closed gamely in the final quarter, capturing the place from Normal by three parts of a length. Orcus quit after a fast five furlongs.

The Greentree entrant was always the public choice in the speculation on the event, opening at 7 to 5 and being played to 11 to 10. Mystic, the supposed good thing of the race, was backed from 15 to 1 down to sevens, but finished a dreary last in the field of six.

Morvich and Whiskaway Out of the Latonia Derby

CINCINNATI, Ohio, June 26.—Morvich, who went down in defeat Saturday in the Latonia special race, trailing Whiskaway and Thibadoux, will not be started in the $25,000 Latonia Derby Saturday, Benjamin Block, his owner, announced today. Morvich will be shipped east and given a rest, according to plans of his owner. Whiskaway, winner of the special race, will also not run Saturday, as Trainer Jimmy Rowe has decided to get him ready for his Summer engagements at Saratoga.

With these two stars of the turf as non-starters in the classic Saturday, Harry Payne Whitney will depend on Olympus and Broomster to carry his colors to victory in the derby. It also developed here today that Morvich strained a muscle in his foreleg during the running of Saturday's race.

Walsh of the newspaper combination, while a kicker's handicap went to I. L. Phoren of Manhattan, with a score of 89, 18—71.

NEWSPAPER GOLFERS LOSE.

Yield to Pelham Club Players in Team Match, 29 to 8.

In a team match between the New York Newspaper Golf Club and the Manhattan Golf Club, played yesterday at the Pelham Country Club, Pelham, the latter was a winner by a score of 29 points to 8. The New York club was forced to default six matches, which cost it 18 points, because of the non-appearance of several of its players.

In the morning the low gross prize was won by Hiram Serine, New York Newspaper Golf Club, with a score of 86. His teammate, David Hall, won the low net with an 80. In the afternoon the low gross was won by Richard Barbington Released to Buffalo.

READING, Pa., June 26.—The Reading International Club today announced the release of Outfielder Charles Babington to the Buffalo Club.

NEW YORK A. C. GOLF TEAM EASY WINNER

Defeats Boston A. A. Players on Engineers' Club Course by 25 Points to 8.

Special to The New York Times.

ROSLYN, L. I., June 26.—Golfing members of the New York Athletic Club played hosts to the links representatives of the Boston Athletic Association today in an all-day tournament on the course of the Engineers' Country Club. As hosts, the New York players were not at all courteous, as they administered a sound beating to the visitors from the Hub by 25 points to 8. Singles were played in the morning, the home players winning by 14 points to 3. In the afternoon they played foursomes and the count here was 11 to 5.

Scoring was on the Nassau system and three of the New York A. C. players scored the limit of three points in the singles—W. L. Richard, Dwight Rockwell and A. C. Harrington, while C. B. Waterman was the only one among the Bostonians to make a clean sweep. One of the closest engagements of the morning was that between the leaders of the two teams, Hamilton K. Kerr of the Nassau Country Club and Chris Dunphy. The latter was one up at the turn, but the Nassau star evened matters and won the match on the home green for his lone point.

In the afternoon there were five foursomes matches and a singles to keep all the players busy. Rockwell and Gabriel and W. L. Richard and H. C. Richard for the N. Y. A. C. made clean sweeps for three points, while Tully and Eaton of the visiting side also scored three points at the expense of Harrington and Bell, Drake.

A CLOSED INCIDENT.

Williamson County, Ill., is a sovereign State. Its real Government is the district branch of the United Mine Workers. It executes its own law, the higher, the union law, by summary process. A Coroner's jury, composed of three union miners and three business men, subject to the union, brought in the inevitable verdict on the killing of two union miners and nineteen non-unionists last week. The officials of the coal company are the guilty men. The murdered superintendent of a mine of the company is held responsible for the murder of one of the two union miners. Each of the twenty other persons killed "came to his death by "gunshot wounds at the hands of "persons unknown." The ruling powers behaved handsomely. The burial of the two union miners was marked by much pomp and circumstance and display of "union strength" in the procession from the church to the burying ground; but even to the outlaws, executed by union justice, decent interment was not denied.

If there were only maimed funeral rites, it must be remembered that the non-union dead were pariahs, men justifiably dispatched according to the higher law of Williamson County. Yet the union allowed them to be buried in the Potter's Field. There was no attempt to interfere with the few persons who attended the service. At the head of each grave was placed the inscription: "Died June 22, 1922," for "the union would not tolerate any names or reference to the "manner in which the sixteen (name-less dead) met death." To this anonymous rest has the sovereign union reduced their unalienable right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. Thus is justice established and domestic tranquillity insured in Williamson County.

This is the real end of the incident, no matter what virtuous declamations or fruitless inquiries may be made. The county officials are creatures of the union. Juries are selected by a Board of Supervisors controlled by the union. Public sentiment of the region seems to justify the execution of the outcasts. There is no disposition to find the murderers; nor could they be convicted if brought to trial. Williamson County is one of the enclaves, the little islands of class rule and triumphant violence whose existence is disclosed from time to time in the United States. Mr. FARRINGTON, President of the Illinois Federation of Miners, appeals to the miners' unions in the State to keep down disorder and violence. This is not the first time that he has given wise counsel. Disorder and violence "stir the public against us." "Already we are in disrepute in the public mind."

No doubt the strip mine murders are deplored by the majority of mine workers. But no proposal is made by the heads of the union to discipline the guilty members in Williamson County. As for the politicians at Springfield, Colonel HUNTER, the representative of the Adjutant General of the State at Herrin, says that a week ago yesterday he recommended that troops be sent there. Well, all is quiet in Herrin now. It was rather a wholesale bit of union justice, but it will soon be forgotten. The little State of Williamson County is secure in its supralegal pre-eminence. For a little while, perhaps, there will be more than the usual talk about "respecting the law," but the mass of the people will continue to be apathetic. The politicians will continue to be cowardly. We shall continue to lick our chops with self-satisfaction at the form of our Government, and pay scanty heed to the ugly facts that so often contradict it and are locally superior to it.

JAPAN SETS THE DATE.

On the same day that the Japanese Privy Council approved the Four-Power Treaty, after which the Prince Regent's signature alone is needed to complete its ratification, the Diplomatic Advisory Council announced that the last Japanese troops would be withdrawn from the Maritime Province of Siberia by Oct. 30.

This is a good start. It cannot yet be called much more, because the Diplomatic Advisory Council does not control the army, and the army has had, and still has, its own ideas about the evacuation of Siberia. But a definite date would not be set on such high authority if it were not pretty certain that the opposition of the army had been overborne. The promise has been made often enough, for an indefinite future; but now that the day has been named, further postponement is hardly to be expected.

The reference is, of course, only to the Maritime Province. Nothing is said about Northern Sakhalin, which the Japanese are holding until what is vaguely termed some orderly and generally recognized Russian Government is able to give satisfaction for the Nikolaievsky massacre. Whenever there is an orderly, recognized and strong Russian Government, one of its first concerns will be getting Japan out of Northern Sakhalin, and it is not likely to try to buy her out. So long as Japan is ruling it as Japanese territory, so long will the danger of war between Japan and Russia be a serious possibility. What is more to the point, until Sakhalin has been evacuated the Far Eastern Republic is not likely to be disposed to conclude commercial treaties such as Japanese business interests want and Siberia needs.

Nevertheless, it is of great importance that a beginning has been made. It means that the civilian Government in Japan, backed by the business men of the country who have seen their Siberian markets wasted away as a result of military adventures, has won a victory, partial but encouraging, over the army. No doubt the fact that an Admiral is Prime Minister had a good deal to do with it; Satsuma beats Choshiu, naval officers get the better of army officers; but it is a long step forward none the less. It implies that the idea of dragooning the Far Eastern Republic into signing away the economic wealth of Eastern Siberia, by holding over it the threat of an indefinite occupation of Vladivostok, has been abandoned. Apparently, now, Japanese business is to take its chances on even terms. The new Kato Ministry is starting out to live up to the spirit of the Washington conference, as well as to the letter of the agreements there reached.

RESTORING THE ENTENTE.

After a period of bickering since the Genoa conference, both the press and public men in France and England have suddenly taken again to swearing eternal friendship. This is especially significant with the French, since Paris newspapers do not make a turnabout of this kind without being sure that it is at least agreeable to the Government. But on both sides of the Channel cordial expressions have been heard. The hope has apparently been to smooth the way for the meeting of the economic experts at The Hague. Whether the object be merely temporary or not, it is a gain to have the acrimony taken out of the exchange of notes between the two Governments, and out of the relations between the English and French peoples. They are now saying, with truth and force, that they must hang together in the settlement of the urgent problems of Europe, or else they will hang separately.

The immediate concern of the British and French Governments is to find a common formula to be laid before the Russians at The Hague. In a recent note to the French Foreign Office, the British Government complained that the French plan regarding Russia was too elaborate. It seemed to contemplate a complete scheme for the reconstruction of Russia, which was to be adopted without consulting the Russian delegates, and then was to be presented "as an ultimatum." But the French reply was that this was not the intention. All that the French Government wanted was to have a full understanding concerning a joint program, and to arrive at it before resuming negotiations with the Soviet delegates. France was projecting no ultimatum. But she did wish to find a solution. A planned agreement between England and France was necessary in advance, if the undertaking at The Hague was not to "end in disorder as at Genoa." This last was a little riposte which must have appealed to LLOYD GEORGE'S admiration for skilled swordsmanship.

In the official correspondence it is evident that the British are thinking more of practical results than of principles, while the French insist upon principles as the only means of arriving at realities. The British note laid it down that every Government has a right to expropriate private property, provided that just payment is made for it. The reference to the Soviet position is plain. Excellent, cry the French, but what is implied in this doctrine? Expropriation presupposes the solvency of the expropriating Government. But the Russian Government is confessedly bankrupt, so that it is idle to talk about its abstract right to take over in the public interest private property for which it cannot possibly pay. It is much straighter thinking, and also more feasible, to call upon the Soviet Government to restore the property which it has taken, and for which it confesses its inability to pay.

This exchange of views has latterly been conducted in the most friendly spirit. It is highly probable that the French and English will co-operate at The Hague much better than they did at Genoa. They will need to stand together, for it is evident that their formula will at first be confronted with a contradictory formula brought forward by the Russians. The latter is certainly very simple. It consists of saying, in effect, "We cannot pay "even if we would, so you must loan "us a lot of money." But as CARLYLE used to say, there are some formulas which are made only to be swallowed, and the Russians will surely have to swallow theirs before they can get on very far with the business in hand.

RAILWAYS AND THE UNIONS.

The Railroad Labor Board has handed down six decisions out of the thirty-odd cases regarding evasion of its orders to the companies fixing wages and working conditions. At the same time, railway workers are balloting regarding defying other orders of the board by striking against reductions by a small part of the wage advances previously ordered. The six decisions relate to "farming out" by the companies of shopwork to contractors, instead of doing the work themselves under the rules and wages fixed by the Railroad Labor Board. The contractors are not bound to pay the board wages, and are able to get more work for the wages paid. Thus the workers who are talking strike received more consideration from the board's decisions than other workers in comparable trades. The railway unions are warned by the board that they will be outlaws if they resort to a strike instead of testing the board's orders in the courts.

The railway companies are also termed outlaws by the board because they evade its decisions. Instead of defying the board the railways apply to the courts, and in some cases the courts have found that the board exceeded its statutory powers. The railways take this course unwillingly. No corporation likes to challenge those in authority over it. But the companies have been so weakened by regulation that they see no way but to allow the public and the courts to judge between themselves and their regulators.

The public should take more interest in such cases before they reach the stage of conflict and damage. The unions ought to see that the payment by the railways of an increase in wages by $600,000,000 gives them standing to claim that the order to work has equal force with the order to pay wages which starve the roads. In both cases the public must insist that both rates and wages shall be in the general interest. No special interest of either labor or capital can be given privilege by either law or violence over the "common good."

No one defends inhumane wages for labor or inadequate returns for capital. The Interstate Commerce Commission orders that rates shall be reduced, whether or not they are below the requirements of capital investments. The Railroad Labor Board orders that bankrupt railways shall pay wages which the rates do not provide. The result is that the public loses railway facilities. Consequently, the judges come to judgment in the court of last resort, the appeal to public opinion.

CONEYIZING THE WAR MEMORIAL.

Mr. ROGMAN WANAMAKER'S report for the Mayor's committee, recommending that thirty-seven acres of Central Park be converted into a combined Coney Island and War Memorial, is a perfect example of what happens when a matter calling for artistic judgment is entrusted to laymen. Three years ago a committee of experts canvassed the subject thoroughly and invited all interested societies and individuals to submit suggestions or plans. A Jury of Artists, with EDWARD ROBINSON as Chairman, sifted the suggestions thoroughly and found none of them acceptable. The matter is, indeed, of extreme difficulty, largely for the reason that the present plan of the city does not lend itself to monumental structures. The opinion was generally expressed that the time was not ripe for a decision. France had already postponed hers for ten years.

Early in the present year, when Mayor HYLAN appointed a committee to prepare the celebration of the first quarter-century of Greater New York, he included among its functions that of deciding upon a permanent War Memorial. Where Mr. ROBINSON'S committee refrained from treading, this new committee has now rushed in. The Jury of Artists had suggested a choice among four types of monument: a triumphal arch, a cenotaph, a temple of sacrifice and victory, a sculptural group. Mr. WANAMAKER'S committee fixed upon the triumphal arch. But it can have significance only in relation to the highway through which the victorious army enters the metropolis—and so the committee elected to place it in a vast woodland park within an area enclosed by high walls. As if this were not a sufficient absurdity, they confronted the triumphal arch of their dreams with a swimming tank, an amphitheatre, a cinder path for track athletes, sandpits and a wading pool for children. To this nothing is lacking except the peanuts and hot dogs that would be sure to follow.

Meantime, we have got new light on the virtue of delay. Thanks to the Russell Sage Foundation, the street plan of New York is in a way to be revised. Presumably avenues will be cut through districts that are now too closely built and vistas opened giving perspective upon the centres of our civic life. In a few years the Plan of New York will have taken at least a preliminary form. One of its problems would naturally be the preparation of a site for our Permanent War Memorial, the form and location of which should be determined by the architects of the Plan working with a special committee of artists. They will not forget that the memory of our dead and of their victory is a thing of beauty, dignity, solemnity.

THE CABLE WAR ENDS.

The Brazilian Government has agreed that rights held under it by the Western Union, through its agreement with a British company that had a monopoly of the port-to-port cable business, shall be extended to other American companies. This completes the compromise by which the South American cable war was settled, enabling the Western Union to compete with the All-America Cables on the west coast while All-America breaks into the British-Western Union field in Brazil. The issue was more important than that of a race for business between two rival companies because of the possible danger to American interests of allowing a foreign company to exercise control over communication between the United States and a large part of Brazil.

Theoretically, all communications ought to be open and free, but the millennium is not yet at hand. It is, in fact, further away than it was a few years ago, for the reaction to economic nationalism since the war has destroyed some of the relationships existing before 1914. A nation likely to find itself in the glass house of the Fordney-McCumber tariff is in no position to throw stones, but it is a good thing for American business just now to have access to South American countries through purely American lines of communication.

THE TRAINING OF NURSES.

Out of the diversity of opinion about nurse training—to the expression of which THE TIMES has liberally given space of late—there has at last emerged a program that seems to have the unanimous support of the most competent from the points of view of the three classes involved: the doctors, the nurses and the public. For three years a committee, in which men and women of national reputation have actively served, has been studying the entire problem. It began with the question of the proper training of public health nurses, but discovered before going far that sound conclusions could be reached only after considering all matters relating to the care of the sick as well as the prevention of disease. The scope was therefore broadened. The personnel of this committee invites instant confidence. The Chairman is Dr. C.-E. A. WINSLOW, Professor of Public Health, Yale University Medical School, and among the members are Dr. WELCH of Johns Hopkins, Dr. EGNALL of Harvard, President FARRAND of Cornell, Commissioner BIGGS, Dr. L. EMMETT HOLT and Dr. CONNER of New York, Miss WALD, Miss NUTTING, Miss GOODRICH and Miss LATHROP. The recommendations are based upon investigations conducted by Miss JOSEPHINE GOLDMARK.

"When doctors disagree" the patient is likely to be left in an uncomfortable state. The public, which in this case is the patient, may now have the satisfaction of knowing that the course to be followed is without dissent agreed to. The unanimous recommendations urge three grades of nursing service: (1) The trained registered nurse for the care of the acutely ill, the present training course to be reduced 20 per cent. in length (that is, to two years and four months), but with such enrichment and improvement as not to lower present standards; (2) the public health nurse, the supervisory nurse and the teacher in schools of nursing, to receive specialized post-graduate training beyond the standard course, and (3) the subsidiary nursing worker, to be trained in a course of eight or nine months and to be licensed as a "nursing aid" or a "nursing attendant" for the care of minor and chronic illness and convalescence.

Thus it is proposed to maintain the present "R. N." standards, and at the same time to give further protection to the public through standardizing the subsidiary type of nurses under a description that will not be distasteful. But the report emphasizes above all the need of the service, and so the need of the special training, of the public health nurse, the "missionary to carry the message of health into "each individual home." There has been a surprising increase in the number of trained nurses in the decennial period 1910-1920, but the majority of them are concentrated in the larger cities. In the country districts they are woefully lacking.

This nurse-training program cannot, however, be carried out unless there is more generous public support given to "establish the hospital train-"ing schools on a better educational "basis." Practical hospital experience is "unrivaled" in the teaching of nurses, but much time is wasted in procedures which, though essential to the conduct of a hospital, are of "no "educational value to the student con-"cerned." Such shortcomings are not fairly chargeable to the hospital authorities, who are of necessity dependent in some measure upon student labor, but are due to the inherent difficulty of adjusting the "conflicting claims" of hospital management and professional education. There should be independent endowments for nurse training, so that the hospitals will not be under the compulsion of a dual responsibility in their ministry to the sick.

CLASS-CONSCIOUS FARMERS.

We know now what is the matter with the embattled farmers. Senator LADD of North Dakota explains that class-consciousness, that word as blessed as Mesopotamia used to be, has reached the farms. Agriculture now feels its own distinct identity as keenly as does manufacturing. But Senator LADD warns us that the bearing of his principle lies in the application of it. One might think that the class-conscious farmers would be all of one mind. But that does not follow. In the agricultural bloc in the Senate there are twelve Republicans and ten Democrats. But they are in violent disagreement about the tariff. This makes it look as if party-consciousness were still stronger with the farmers than class-consciousness.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

An Innocent Word Is Maltreated.

In certain circles the word "party"—long since misused by lawyers—recently has acquired a new meaning, and it seems likely to become fixed. If it does, a once quite respectable word will become—well, something else, and will disappear from polite vocabularies except for purposes of denunciation.

For "party," in its latest employment, has come to mean a gathering of persons who can have a "good time" only when highly stimulated by strong waters, always, in these days, illicitly acquired. These assemblages consist of both men and women who evidently are incapable of conversation when in a normal condition. They acquire—for each other—a semblance of wit and wisdom after two or three hours of devotion to the cup that does inebriate, but when that state has been achieved, animosities develop, quarrels arise, and not infrequently the end of the "party" is some sorry form of the tragical. Somebody gets shot or stabbed, or private disgraces become public because of a death over which the Coroner's jury ponder long in an effort to determine whether it was "natural" or a murder.

From one of these "parties"—one that got into the papers yesterday—a participant taxied home in the early morning, only to topple from his own doorstep, roll down a steep terrace into a too convenient river, and drown. Of another "party," where a mysterious revolver was brought into play, it was reported of the wounded victim that for a time he disappeared from the scene, but nothing was thought of it, as he was accustomed thus quietly to depart from like festivities—while he was able to go home under his own steam, as it were. This time he did not go soon enough, or far enough, and so to the hospital he was carried, to the very great embarrassment of the other guests at that particular "party," because of the vast amount of explaining and denial—explaining of the inexplicable and denial of the obvious—which his mishap imposed upon them.

Perhaps most light on "parties" is cast by F. SCOTT FITZGERALD'S "The Beautiful and Damned," that remarkable book being largely devoted to what manifestly are accurate descriptions of them, of the sort of people who give and attend them, and of the usual consequences.

Graduates Are Expensive.

According to a computation made by or for the Institute for Public Service, New York City has expended this year on the graduates of its elementary, high and normal schools and its colleges the sum of $92,000,000. This does not count the expenditures for children in parochial or private schools. It is only "operating cost," and does not include the millions for buildings or what parents pay for board, clothing and amusement of children, or the commercial value of the time spent in school by boys and girls of legal working age.

With all these exclusions, of course, the $92,000,000 is only a small part of what the city, or rather what its citizens, spend in a year for the education—in school—of its youth. That the results are not entirely satisfactory is a matter of common belief. But perhaps those who express it either expect too much from the schools or do not realize the exceptional nature of the difficulties under which the teachers in a city like this one do their work.

The educational situation as it exists here is described as "of the most inspiring perplexity and complexity." That is the characterization of an optimist. The perplexing and the complex are not always inspiring to everybody; they often are discouraging—too often, doubtless.

An Excellent Plan Is Proposed.

With the effort making by the League of Foreign-born Citizens to get up for this year's new voters, native and naturalized, special exercises to be held on the Fourth of July, there will be, or ought to be, general sympathy—sympathy that takes the form of helpful interest. The idea, indeed, is not original with this particular organization, for in several parts of the country, and notably up in Rochester, this State, the thing proposed has been done already for several years.

New York usually is twisted in the utilization of inventions, both material and mental, in spite of imagining itself a little more than up to date. That, presumably, is because large bodies move slowly, and New York, when it does move, goes far—sometimes.

Certainly nowhere more than here is there a need for impressing the new voter with a sense of his responsibilities, and probably there is no better way to do that than by showing that his importance is understood by the old voters, and by making his initiation as a fully qualified citizen a ceremony with something of both solemnity and dignity. Too often in the past the rite of naturalization has lacked both of these qualities. Some Judges have done better than others in the exercise of this high function, but none of them has followed up the favor conferred to see that it properly was utilized and duly appreciated.

A Confession Hardly Admissible.

A French Magistrate has allowed himself to be confronted by a delicate problem. A man charged with murder presented a seemingly satisfactory alibi, but in prison, while asleep, his cell mate heard him say things that amounted, or nearly, to a confession of guilt. The question is whether that is or is not competent evidence and admissible, at least to the extent of necessitating further inquiry as to the reality of the alibi.

The case is one for psychologists rather than for lawyers or Judges to decide, but the lawyers and Judges, unfortunately, are slow to utilize the services of psychologists.

Talking done in sleep has significance as a welling up of the subconscious, but it needs skillful interpretation, and far from always can it be taken at face value. There is something in the old idea that "dreams go by contraries," and it is easy to make dream talkers say almost anything by the use of adroit suggestion.

LINCOLN AND FORT SUMTER.

Position of President in Opening Hostilities of Civil War Made Clear.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your writer in Topics of The Times in this morning's issue, commenting upon a certain Miss Rutherford's charge that Lincoln forced war upon the South, says: "To support this accusation she offers the unquestionable fact that he [Lincoln] threw reinforcements into Fort Sumter when an attack on its little garrison was threatened!" This is an error. When, on April 12, 1861, the Southern forces opened fire on Fort Sumter it had not yet been definitely determined by the Washington Government that it would attempt to relieve that post further than to send provisions. Four days before this, in fact, word was given General Beauregard by Lincoln that while an attempt would be made to put food into Sumter no effort would be made "to put in men, arms or ammunition unless the fort should be attacked." [Morse, "Lincoln," I., 248.]

In weighing the question of responsibility for opening hostilities, Miss Rutherford has perhaps overlooked the warning with which the Southern Secretary of War, Toombs of Georgia, addressed President Davis when the question of ordering the attack on Sumter was before the Southern Cabinet: "Mr. President, at this time it is suicide, murder, and will lose us every friend in the North. You will wantonly strike a hornet's nest, which extends from mountain to ocean, and legions now quiet will swarm out and sting us to death. It is unnecessary; it puts us in the wrong; it is fatal." [Rhodes, III., 347-348, citing Stovall, "Life of Toombs," 226.]

The Federal Court House and Post Office.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The closing of the contract for the construction of a fine granite County Court House as a part of New York's civic centre encourages those who have visioned a dignified group of public buildings in continuation of a fine City Hall Park, itself containing no building other than the City Hall. The Tweed Court House is now doomed. The excrescence known as the Post Office defacing the southern end of City Hall Park seems also doomed. The President approved on April 7 last the joint resolution of Congress providing for exchange of the site of this Post Office for a site for a new downtown Post Office and Federal Court House, and has appointed a commission, consisting of the Secretary of the Treasury, the Postmaster General and the Attorney General, to center and arraign with the Mayor, Controller and President of the Borough of Manhattan for this exchange. The city owns the land in its civic centre on which this new building should be erected. Let us hope these officials will speedily act and that New York may make further advance toward the development of a real civic centre appropriate to the city which is the financial and commercial capital of America, and will be, if it is not now, the financial and commercial capital of the world.

The City of New York suffers a severe handicap in the possibilities of its adornment by great public buildings. It is not even the political capital of its own State. London is the political capital of England, of Great Britain and of the British Empire, and all the functions of that vast empire are centred there and carried on in public buildings. The Capitol of the State of New York is at Albany. The Capitol of the United States is at Washington, and Washington is adorned with public buildings and monuments paid for by the wealth of the nation. The State of New York has contributed no governmental building to the city and the Federal Government can only contribute a Federal Court House, Post Office and Custom House. We have a fine Custom House. We have a fine General Post Office. Let us see to it that we have a fine Federal Court House and downtown Post Office in our civic centre.

A SONG OF RAIN.

Others may sing of glancing sunshine,
And light, and skies that smile, but I shall weave
My song upon the warp and woof that's made
From silver slant of rain; on mists that leave
Their lace-like gauze upon the earth
when flowers
Lift up their scented faces to the lips
Of showers sweet; and on those fragrant bowers
Of leafy arms whose cool, wet finger tips
In holy baptism touch my hair;
And on the music that I hear both night
And day when jeweled drops fall through the air,
And on my roof and garden there alight.
Ah, beautiful beyond all dream, all thought
Are the soft melodies that thus are wrought.

TAFT VISITS COMMONS.

Takes Tea With Premier and Addresses Parliamentary Reporters.

Copyright, 1922, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 26.—Chief Justice Taft visited the House of Commons today and took tea there with the Prime Minister. The last time he was there was forty years ago, when Gladstone was speaking on the purchase of the Suez Canal shares.

Afterward Mr. Taft paid a visit to the lobby journalists in their room, and in a speech discussed some differences in the methods of American and British journalism. The expression "lobbyist" in America, he said, implied a man, not connected with the press, who, generally for pecuniary reasons, was engaged in promoting the passage of legislation. In England, on the other hand, the lobbyist was just a journalist engaged in getting news of the Government and loyal to his own newspaper.

He said he had watched with interest the way in which political information was gathered here, and the activities it entailed. He remarked that he was out of politics now, but he had vivid recollections of the time when he was in close touch with the press.

CLEMENCEAU MAY VISIT US.

He Neither Affirms Nor Denies Rumors Circulating in Paris.

Copyright, 1922, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 26.—Reports have been circulating in Paris recently that M. Clemenceau intends to visit America this fall, where he would deliver a series of lectures. None of these rumors, it may be stated, emanated from M. Clemenceau himself, and when asked whether he would confirm or deny them he smiled and answered:

"Visit North America? Why shouldn't I if I want to, or South America, either? Look here," with pride he displayed a magnificent fur coat which had just been brought to him from Russia, "I am thinking of going to the South Pole with that."

Whatever he may do it is fairly certain that the veteran statesman will not lecture, but those who profess to know his intentions declare that he is planning to visit Australia and may either go on return by way of the United States.

VOTING MACHINE DEADLOCK.

Members of Election Board Split on Locations—State Likely to Act.

The deadlock among the members of the Board of Elections regarding the selection of voting machines, which necessitated the Secretary of State taking a hand in the matter and placing a contract for the machines, continued yesterday and made it impossible for the board to designate the districts in which the machines are to be installed. Under the Election law the board has until July 1 to make such designation, and if it does not do so the Secretary of State is empowered to act.

John R. Voorhis, Democratic member and President of the board, offered a resolution yesterday which provided that the machines be placed in each of the several Assembly districts of the city in such numbers as would distribute them proportionately among all the election districts. This resolution failed to pass because Charles E. Heydt and Jacob Livingston, Republican members of the board, voted against it.

Mr. Heydt then offered a resolution designating the First, Second, Fourth and Twenty-third Assembly Districts in Manhattan; the First, Second and Twenty-third Districts of Brooklyn and the First Districts of the Bronx, Queens and Richmond, as the districts to be manned entirely by voting machines. Commissioner Voorhis and James Kane, Democratic members, voted against it.

Commissioner Voorhis, after the meeting, explained that the matter of designation is now up to the Secretary of State.

19 NATIONALITIES IN SCHOOL

Three Generations of Graduates Are Greeted by Principal.

Commencement exercises were held yesterday in the William T. Harris Public School 11, 314 West Seventeenth Street. The school has no auditorium, so the exercises were held in the playground. Nineteen nationalities were represented in the 104 graduates. One thousand persons were present.

An interesting feature of the exercises was the presence of three generations of No. 11 graduates. They were Benjamin Nash of this year's outgoing class, his father and his grandfather. The three generations were greeted by Principal Benjamin B. Greenberg.

August Belmont spoke of the service and good citizenship shown in the school. He said that he knew of no public school in the city that was doing better work in training its pupils to become good American citizens. Rabbi Nathan Krass of the Central Temple Synagogue also praised the school's work. The Rev. Father Joseph S. Smith, Superintendent of the parochial schools of the city, also spoke of the school's Americanization work.

Principal Greenberg then awarded the medals and flags to the graduates. These were presented to the school by Milton A. Rauh. The school, which has 1,400 boys, has a miniature city government, including Mayor, Controller and other officers. In a charade the Mayor was impersonated by Daniel M. Walsh.

DELAY ALDRIDGE SUCCESSOR

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The appointment of a successor to George W. Aldridge of Rochester as Collector of Customs for the Port of New York is likely to be deferred for some time. Senator Wadsworth is away and Senator Calder does not intend to take any action until he and Senator Wadsworth have had a conference. While no plan of procedure has been agreed on, it is probable that the two Senators will confer with Charles Dewey Hilles, New York's member of the Republican National Committee, and with members of the Republican State organization before making any recommendation to President Harding.

Unanimous agreement on a new Collector seems to be the desire of those Republican leaders who are interested. There appears to be no desire to hurry matters, and from present indications the postponement of a selection until after the November elections would not be surprising.

AMUNDSEN CHANGES PLANS.

Now Expects to Fly to the North Pole From Spitzbergen.

CHRISTIANIA, June 26. — Roald Amundsen, the Norwegian explorer, has changed the plans for his attempt to fly to the north pole, according to information obtained here today. He now intends to land at Spitsbergen instead of Cape Columbia, as had been planned. A Norwegian officer is going to Spitzbergen to mark out a suitable landing place.

Assert Harrison Was Elected.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Democratic members of the House Elections Committee declared in a minority report today that Representative Thomas W. Harrison, Democrat of the Seventh Virginia District, had been duly elected and was entitled to hold his seat, and that John Paul, Republican, contestant, had no claim thereto. The election of Harrison was declared void by Republican members who recently submitted a report to the House holding that Paul had been elected.

CITY SEEKS TO RUSH MEMORIAL IN PARK

TO ASK $600,000 ON FRIDAY

Whalen Says Details May Be Modified, But He Hopes for Its Early Completion.

A number of civic organizations and committees will hold meetings during the week to discuss the proposed Central Park memorial plan of the Mayor's Committee, which is meeting with widespread disapproval among organizations and individuals who have concerned themselves with the future of the city parks and playgrounds.

Most opposition has been created by the variegated character of the scheme which would use the thirty-seven acres now occupied by the lower reservoir in Central Park for nearly as many varieties of amusement and spectacles. The extreme variegation of the scheme will be toned down as a concession to criticism, it was learned yesterday. But Commissioner of Plant and Structures Grover Whalen and other advocates of the plan will stand firmly in favor of the memorial arch, the swimming pool and some of the other features.

Mr. Whalen said yesterday that he would make every effort to obtain the appropriation of $600,000 from the Board of Estimate next Friday, but that the plan would be still subject to modification after that date. He said he hoped the whole memorial program could be completed by next May.

Mr. Whalen and other advocates of the plan were invited yesterday to appear at a luncheon of the Park and Playgrounds Association at the Bankers Club at 1 P. M. on Thursday, when the proposal will be discussed. The Executive Committee of this association has taken no stand on the proposal as yet, though many individual members are opposed to it on the ground that it is a typical park invasion and an effort to borrow park property to satisfy city obligations of another character.

Officials of the American Scenic and Historic Preservation Society and the New York Chapter of the American Society of Landscape Architects also will register their opinion and probably will be represented at the Board of Estimate hearing. So far, no member of these organizations, which have particularly interested themselves in promoting the welfare of the city parks, has come forward in favor of the new plan.

Charles Downing Lay, former landscape architect of the Park Department and a member of the Society of Landscape Architects, said yesterday that the plan had nothing to recommend it and that it would be better to leave the reservoir there than to substitute a conglomeration of discordant features.

Commissioner Whalen said yesterday that he believed the public would strongly favor the proposal as it stands. "The people who are opposing it have not been supporters of this Administration and are not the kind of persons who break their hearts about the people or about the parks," he said.

"I believe that it is a proper park use of the property to reach a swimming pool there—a chance for the poorer people of the city to reach a swimming pool without great cost.

"Mayor Hylan is strongly in favor of action in erecting this memorial, which has hung fire too long. What is wanted now is action rather than talk."

BILL CUTS ALIEN QUOTAS.

Allows Permanent Residence Only to Those Eligible for Citizenship.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Under a bill designed to tighten up the Immigration law, introduced today by Chairman Johnson of the House Immigration Committee, admission for permanent residence in this country would be granted only to aliens eligible for citizenship, thus, it was pointed out, shutting the gates to Japanese, Chinese, Mongolians and others not granted the right of citizenship who desire such residence.

The Johnson bill also would reduce on July 1, 1923, the quota percentage from each country from 3 to 2 per cent., based on 1910 census figures. In addition to the 2 per cent. quota each country, however, would have a flat allowance of 600, the maximum total from this 600 flow being estimated at 24,000.

The percentage reduction, according to Mr. Johnson's estimates, would cut the total quota admissions from around 355,000 to 170,000. Exemptions are not included in these estimates.

Not more than 10 per cent. of any country's quota would be admitted into the United States in one month, which would extend the movement over a period of ten months instead of five as at present.

Carrying out a provision written into the Ship Subsidy bill, the Johnson measure likewise would require 50 per cent. of all immigrants to travel on American ships.

FLORISTS MEET HERE.

Watch Demonstration of Bridal Bouquet Making.

Making of bridal bouquets formed the feature of the opening session of the Hotel Netherland yesterday of the School of Floristry, which will be conducted through the week by Max Schling. More than 150 florists and designers from nearly thirty States were present. As a result of the widespread interest in this new movement for art in floristry, it is believed that a strong effort will be made to establish a national school in floristry, a subject in which the Horticultural Society of New York has been actively interested.

Mr. Schling gave practical object lessons of the technique, as he termed it, of making attractive bridal bouquets. White flowers were used almost exclusively, the exception being in one bouquet, when three or four pink blossoms were inserted. In the more expensive bouquets of lily of the valley and orchids, maiden hair ferns were employed for the background. The florist should never be at a loss to make a pleasing bridal bouquet, said Mr. Schling, for the more common white flowers can be so grouped as to make a bouquet fit for any bride.

"The successful florist," added Mr. Schling, "must remember that he is not merely selling flowers. He is selling artistry in flowers, the same as the successful milliner utilizes art in combining ribbons, bows and other adornments."

HONOR FATHER McGOLDRICK

Friends Give Him $6,200 to Mark 25th Year as Priest.

In honor of the 25th anniversary of the ordination of the Rev. Father Edward F. McGoldrick, pastor of St. Andrew's Catholic Church in Flushing, friends and parishioners of the priest presented him last night with a purse of $6,200 in gold. The presentation was made at a jubilee dinner for Father McGoldrick at the Hotel Astor.

Several hundred were present. Maurice Connolly, Borough President of Queens, was toastmaster. Among those who spoke were Lieut. D. Stapleton, former Justice of the Supreme Court, James A. Hallinan, James A. Dayton, Frank Liddy and Victor Watson, of the New York American.

A. S. HEWITT TO WED MISS SCHIEFFELIN

UNION OF NOTED FAMILIES

Bride-to-Be Is Great-Great-Granddaughter of John Jay and Com. Cornelius Vanderbilt.

Mr. and Mrs. William Jay Schieffelin announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Louise Vanderbilt Schieffelin, to Abram S. Hewitt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Ringwood Hewitt of 127 East Twenty-first Street.

This engagement, made known yesterday by Mr. and Mrs. Schieffelin, is one of widespread interest, as both families have been very prominent in the life of New York. Miss Schieffelin is a great-great-granddaughter of John Jay, the first Chief Justice of the United States, and is also a great-great-granddaughter of Commodore Cornelius Vanderbilt. Mr. Hewitt is a grandson of Abram S. Hewitt, who was Mayor of New York, and is a great-grandson of Peter Cooper, founder of Cooper Union.

The Schieffelin and Hewitt families in this country go back for a century or more, and were prominent in the affairs of colonial New York. Miss Schieffelin's mother was formerly Miss Marie Louise Shepard, and she is the daughter of the late Colonel Elliott Shepard and a granddaughter of the late William H. Vanderbilt. Her marriage to Mr. Schieffelin took place in 1901, and they have nine children.

Mr. Schieffelin for several years has been interested in the reform of the municipal administration, and is Chairman of the Citizens' Union. Shortly after the Revolution the Schieffelins established themselves in this city as dealers in and makers of chemicals. The business then founded, one of the oldest of the sort in the country, is that of which Mr. Schieffelin is now the head.

Mr. Hewitt's grandfather, Abram S. Hewitt, took an active part in public affairs of New York for more than a quarter of a century, and was elected Mayor of New York in 1886. Young Mr. Hewitt is a nephew of the late Peter Cooper Hewitt, and has been attending Oxford.

T. M. CARNEGIE JR. WEDS MISS DUNCAN

Grandnephew of Late Andrew Carnegie Marries Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Duncan.

The marriage of Thomas Morrison Carnegie Jr., a son of Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Carnegie of 151 East Seventy-second Street and Southampton, Long Island, and Miss Dorothy Duncan, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Butler Duncan of 115 East Seventy-second Street and Port Washington, Long Island, took place at 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the bride's New York home, the Rev. Father Farrell of Brooklyn officiating in the presence of the families. Miss Duncan, in chiffon and old point lace and wearing a tulle veil, was attended by Miss Florence Loew, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Goadby Loew, and Charles C. Lee, a son of Mr. and Mrs. James Parrish Lee, was the best man.

A reception for the guests and a few close friends followed at the Colony Club. Mr. and Mrs. Carnegie are booked to sail for Europe on the Olympic July 15, and on their return will make their home in Bethlehem, Pa.

Lewis-Jones—Butler.

Miss Olive Butler of this city and the Rev. Herbert Lewis-Jones, curate of St. George's Church in Flushing, L. I., were married yesterday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in St. John's Cathedral. Bishop Lloyd performed the ceremony. The bride's uncle, Robert Edwards, who is purser of the steamship Celtic, gave his niece in marriage. Miss Lyman Orton was her sister's matron of honor, and Douglas Stewart was best man. A reception followed the wedding at the home of Miss A. Marsland at 309 West Eighty-sixth Street. After a short honeymoon the couple will live in Flushing.

Pinney—Coombs.

The wedding of Miss Margaret Coombs, daughter of Mrs. Jerome W. Coombs of Scarsdale, N. Y., and Alexander Pinney, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Pinney of 265 West Eighty-first Street, took place last Saturday in the Church of St. James the Less in Scarsdale. Miss Virginia Coombs was her sisters' maid of honor, and the bridesmaids were the Misses Josephine Coombs, Katherine Adams, Janet Pinney and Margaret Brown. Edward Pinney Jr. was his brother's best man and the ushers were Sperman Baldwin, William Robert Stewart, Gordon Smyth, Kelvin Fraser, Dr. Craig Potter and John Van Voorhis. The ceremony was followed by a reception at the home of the bride's mother.

Tierney—Sharpe.

The marriage of Miss Aquilla Sharpe of Knoxville, Tenn., and John J. Tierney of this city took place on Sunday at the Church of St. Catherine of Genoa on Amsterdam Avenue at 193d Street. Miss Adolphia Sharpe attended the bride, and the best man was Dr. William Curran. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Bernard M. Clark. Following an extended honeymoon, the couple will live at 345 Edgecombe Avenue.

BRIDAL TOUR AROUND WORLD

Miss Katherine Thornton to Wed Francis W. Willett Tomorrow.

Plans have been announced for the wedding of Miss Katherine Terry Thornton, daughter of Mrs. Dessie MacDonald Russell of 25 Fifth Avenue, and Francis Winslow Willett, son of Mr. and Mrs. George F. Willett of Norwood, Mass., which is to take place tomorrow evening at 9 o'clock in Grace Church.

Miss Ruth Bull is to be maid of honor, and the bridesmaids will be the Misses Helen Turner, Georgia Colvin, Nancy Burbank, Martha Willett, Belle Trimble and Aida Baxter. Theodore G. Ames will be best man, and the ushers will be Henry P. Davison, A. Coster Schermerhorn, Philip A. Hill, Bertram Lewis, John S. Higgins and Charles R. Steedman, the last four mentioned being classmates of Mr. Willett at Harvard. The bride will be given in marriage by her mother. A small reception will follow the ceremony at the Waldorf-Astoria. The couple are planning an extensive wedding trip which will include a trip around the world.

Writer and Singer to Marry.

The marriage of Arthur J. Beckhardt of 102 West Eighty-seventh Street, a writer, and Esther B. Gale, a singer of 56 West Seventy-fifth Street, will take place at the McAlpin Hotel July 4. The first news of the approaching wedding came yesterday when the couple obtained a marriage license at the Municipal Building. Mr. Beckhardt is 39 years old, and Miss Gale gave her age as 30.

Playing on the Shinnecock Hills Golf Club links yesterday morning were ex-Justice Morgan J. O'Brien, Patrick Francis Murphy and Dr. George A. Dixon, who matched in a threesome. Others on the links included Oliver B. James, Samuel L. Parrish, Charles J. Hady Jr., William Allen Putnam, Henry May, Dr. H. T. Chikering, Dr. Arthur Young and Alexander Young.

Registered at the clubhouse for the week-end were Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Frederick, the guests of Milton J. Budlong; T. J. French, the guest of George Barton French; Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Adams, the guests of H. Rogers Benjamin, and William H. Sullivan, the guest of Mrs. Stephen H. P. Pell.

Miss Katherine MacKay, who was the guest of Judge and Mrs. Morgan J. O'Brien at Villa Mille Fiori over Sunday, left last evening by automobile for New York. Miss Mackay is to be one of the bridesmaids for the wedding Friday of Miss Ellsworth to Mr. McFadden.

Henry Martin Polhemus, the fiancé of Miss Lisa Stillman, returned to the city this morning after passing the week-end at the Southampton Club.

At the Meadow Club yesterday morning, engaged in practice play, were Mrs. George Patterson and Miss Cornelia Livingston.

Among the latest rentals are De Lancey Nicoll's cottage, Windsmere, in Forest Neck Lane, to Herman Dierks of Kansas City, and Bonnie Bourne, Mrs. Russell H. Hoagley's house in First Neck Lane, to Spring Camden.

Miss Alice Mallon will come here later in the week to be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Mellon for the wedding of Miss Ellsworth to Mr. McFadden Friday afternoon.

Dr. and Mrs. Edward L. Keyes, who are now at Tuxedo, are expected to open their Summer home in Shinnecock Hills the middle of July.

The fifteenth annual exhibition of the Southampton horticultural show, one of the interesting events of the season, will be held at Agawam Park July 27 and 28.

The date of the street fair for the benefit of the hospital has been set for Aug. 4. This will be the principal charity event of the Summer, in which the villa and cottage colony will join with the resident population as well as many from surrounding towns.

Invitations have been sent out for a concert under the auspices of the Southampton Choral Society to be given in the Parrish Art Museum on Sunday evening, July 2, at 8 o'clock. The Reception Committee includes Mrs. Hugh Halsey, E. Emory Terry, A. D. Enoch and Miss Julia W. Foster. Additional concerts by the society will be given during the Summer.

SIMPLE RITES FOR WM. ROCKEFELLER

Laid at Rest in Sleepy Hollow After Episcopal Service at Rockwood Hall.

OLD SERVANTS MOURNERS

They, With Standard Oil Employes, Mingle With the Family in the Last Farewell.

Under the fairest of skies, with the singing of meadow larks for a parting requiem, the body of William Rockefeller, brother of John D. Rockefeller, was borne for the last time through the gates of his beautiful estate at North Tarrytown yesterday afternoon to a resting place in Sleepy Hollow Cemetery, after services as simple as he could have wished them had been held in Rockwood Hall, for the last thirty years Mr. Rockefeller's home.

More than an hour before the ceremonies, automobiled bearing those invited to the ceremonies began to arrive at the main gate on the Albany post road. Among them was a procession of seven motor cars, led by an escort of motorcycle policemen, from the Standard Oil Company's Building at 26 Broadway, and carrying over thirty of Mr. Rockefeller's employes, among them Thomas de Lacca, for forty years a bootblack at that place. Among friends and associates of Mr. Rockefeller who came were John D. Ryan, Charles E. Mitchell, Alfred H. Smith, George B. Cortelyou, Judge R. A. Lovett, Walter C. Teagle, and Nicholas F. Brady. John D. Rockefeller Jr., with his family, soon arrived, shortly followed by his father, who had with him two elderly women of his own household and his personal bodyguard. Others of the immediate family, who had already gathered at Rockwood Hall, were William Rockefeller's sons, William G. and Percy Avery Rockefeller, with their wives, and his two married daughters with their husbands, Dr. and Mrs. D. Hunter McAlpin (formerly Emma Rockefeller) and Mr. and Mrs. Marcellus Hartley Dodge (formerly Ethel Geraldine Rockefeller).

The services were held in the music room on the first floor of the house, and were conducted by the Rev. Charles Warren Baldwin, whose church, St. Mary's Episcopal, Mr. Rockefeller had attended for many years. Flowers were heaped over the bronze bier, and other floral tributes were arranged about the room and around the great open fireplace. When Dr. Baldwin had concluded the simple Episcopal ritual, the house servants and caretakers on the estate at Tarrytown and that of Mr. Rockefeller in the Adirondacks, who had stood silent in an adjoining room, passed by the coffin for a last look upon their beloved employer.

The bier was then escorted to Sleepy Hollow Cemetery, half a mile down the road toward Tarrytown, where temporary interment was made in the receiving vault there, the great marble vault which Mr. Rockefeller was having built on the rising ground of the cemetery, overlooking the Hudson, not being yet completed. The burial service, read by Dr. Baldwin, was brief.

An accident marred the preliminaries of the funeral. At Lafayette and Franklin Streets, Manhattan, one of the automobiles carrying Standard Oil Company officials and employes was struck by a touring car driven by Charles Eisner, 34, of 425 Division Street, Perth Amboy, N. J., and was badly wrecked, two wheels being torn off. No one was injured, and the occupants of the machine were transferred to another car for the trip to Tarrytown. Eisner, arrested by Patrolman Edward Leahy, of Traffic Squad A, was found guilty of reckless driving by Magistrate W. W. Brucie in the Traffic Court, and received a sentence of five days in jail and a $50 fine, with the Magistrate's recommendation that Eisner's license be revoked by the New Jersey Automobile License Bureau.

PRINCE OF MONACO IS DEAD IN PARIS

FAMOUS AS A SCIENTIST

Won Agassiz Gold Medal for His Work in Oceanography—His Son Prince Louis Is Heir.

Copyright, 1922, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 26.—Prince Albert of Monaco died here today. His death occurred in a private hospital where the Prince rested since the dangerous abdominal operation performed two weeks ago. At the time of the operation, which was the second performed for the same ailment, little hope was given of saving his life.

A descendant of the Grimaldi family of Genoa, which has had possession of Monaco since 968, Prince Albert was a member of one of the oldest houses in Europe. He was born at Paris, Nov. 13, 1848, a son of Prince Charles 3d of Monaco, whom he succeeded on the throne in 1889. For twenty years he reigned as an absolute sovereign of the tiny eight square mile territory, but on Jan. 7, 1911, he presented his 23,000 subjects with a constitution that provided for a National Council elected by universal suffrage and scrutin de liste.

Although the Prince won distinction as a scientist, particularly for his researches in oceanography, it is the great gambling halls of Monte Carlo that have carried the name of Monaco to every corner of the world, and indeed supplied the funds for the scientific pursuits upon which the sovereign preferred to dwell. The estimates vary as to the income derived from the Casino, running from $500,000 to $1,000,000 a year. The announced annual payment for ten years beginning in 1917 was £80,000, to be increased to £90,000 in 1927. But certain percentages of profits are believed to carry the revenue much higher, and there have been payments of lump sums of $2,000,000 in 1899 and $3,000,000 in 1914. Furthermore, the salaries of all officials of the clergy, the cost of street lighting and, in many years, flowers, the police, the judges, all these burdens are assumed by the proprietors of the gambling tables.

Thrice Visited United States.

Prince Albert made three visits to this country; first in 1868, as a sailor in the Spanish Navy, when he obtained a three months' leave of absence; a second time in 1893, when he spent most of the time in the West. On his last visit, in his yacht Hirondelle, he received from the National Academy of Sciences the Agassiz gold medal for his work in oceanography. Since a boy of 18 he had made the study of the sea his major interest and had equipped four yachts for deep-sea dredging and the investigation of currents. To the latter field his discoveries are said to have aided the Allies in charting the drift of German and allied mines in the North Sea and English Channel.

Although he had lived for years on terms of intimacy with the Kaiser, often his guest at Berlin, Kiel, and in the Corfu villa, he joined the Allies at the beginning of the war. And that the Prince had taken advantage of this association to study the psychology of the Kaiser is the Prince's letter issued during the war in which he presented a vivid revelation of the workings of the imperial mind.

Germans Seized His Chateau.

The Germans seized the Prince's Château de Marchais near Rheims, threatening to destroy it unless they received a ransom of $100,000. The money was never paid. Just before the armistice Albert placed at the disposal of the American Government his own estate at Monaco-la-Vie, where for months from 6,000 to 8,000 wounded American soldiers were able to convalesce under ideal conditions.

In addition to his sea studies Prince Albert entered the field of palaeontology. He examined caves and prehistoric caverns of Southern France and Spain that brought to light bones and flint tools of the Stone Age. In 1910 he established at Monaco a Museum of Oceanography to contain his marine collections, and in 1920 he opened at Paris a Museum of Human Palaeontology.

Prince Albert was married in 1869 to Lady Mary Douglas Hamilton, who became the mother of his heir, Prince Louis, a Lieutenant Colonel in the French army, who will now ascend the throne at 52. This marriage, however, was annulled by the Apostolic See in 1880. In 1889 Prince Albert was married a second time, to the Dowager Duchess of Richelieu, who was Alice Heine of New Orleans. They were divorced in 1902.

When Prince Albert was here in the Spring of 1921 he complained of the great trouble he had had in trying to have his people accept a constitutional government.

Ex-Senator S. J. Foley.

CENTRAL ISLIP, L. I., June 26.—Former State Senator Samuel J. Foley died here yesterday in a sanitarium. His home in New York City was at Buchanan Place, Bronx. He was 59 years old. In 1890 he was elected to the Assembly by Tammany, served five years in that branch of the Legislature, and then entered the Senate from the Twelfth District in the Bronx. He remained in the Senate until 1906. For several years he was secretary of the Tammany General Committee.

William G. Bumsted.

William G. Bumsted, a lawyer, real estate man and corporation director, for many years a resident of Jersey City, died yesterday at his home, 755 Park Avenue. He was born in 1853, a son of the late William H. Bumsted, Republican politician, who left him a large estate in 1874.

James Maher.

SOUTHAMPTON, Eng., June 26.—James Maher, one of the oldest officials of the American and White Star shipping lines, died of heart disease here yesterday, it was announced today.

SUN FORCES MARCH TO RETAKE CANTON

PEKING PREDICTS FAILURE

Leaders Confident That Wu Pei-fu and Chen Chiung-ming Control the Situation.

SHANGHAI, June 26 (Associated Press).—Sun Yat-sen's Kiangsi Army, estimated at 50,000 men, still remains loyal to the deposed President of South China, according to reports received here by the vernacular papers from various Canton sources believed to be trustworthy.

Three Generals, in command of 30,000 of this force, are said to be driving southward. They are Dsu Tsung-chi, Li Lich-chun and Huang Tu-wei.

Reports received from Canton assert that General Huang, with 20,000 troops, is holding a line in the Southern Kiangsi Province below Kanchow, while Generals Li and Dsu are commanding the drive against Chen Chiung-ming.

Sun's Northern forces are not expected to reach the neighborhood of Canton inside of two weeks.

The Sun forces are declared to outnumber the troops under Chen Chiung-ming, who deposed Sun. Chinese observers predict severe fighting between the two factions, with the odds in favor of the restoration of Sun Yat-sen and the defeat of Chen.

Rear Admiral W. H. G. Bullard, commanding the United States naval patrol on the Yangtze River, who arrived tonight on his flagship, the U. S. S. Isabel, confirmed reports of the recent uprising in Kiangsi Province and the killing of many natives, but said that no foreigners had been killed or captured.

PEKING, June 26 (Associated Press).—While advices from Amoy indicated that troops of Sun Yat-sen were pushing toward Canton, in an effort to recapture that city, other reports stated that these forces were scattered about Kiangsi Province, disorganized and looting the territory. Official opinion in Peking today was that any attempt to restore Sun's régime would fail.

The dispatches reaching Amoy were dated Saturday, and said the army loyal to Sun Yat-sen had split into two sections, turned southward and was bearing down on the headquarters of Chen Chiung-ming, Chen took the capital city of South China in behalf of the Republican Government in Peking, and declared his readiness to support Wu Pei-fu, the conqueror of the North, in an effort to reunite China.

Republican leaders in the North continue to express confidence in the restorations of an all-China Parliament. They predict that discordant elements will be subdued under the military leadership of Wu Pei-fu in the North and Chen Chiung-ming in the South.

The formation of a "United States of China," modeled after the American federation, and a national conference at Shanghai to discuss demobilization of superfluous troops and abolition of the system of Tuchuns, or military governors, are the two principal conditions on which Chen Chiung-ming will negotiate for the reunion of China, according to an announcement made today.

TIENTSIN, June 26 (Associated Press).—Three hundred and fifty Japanese troops left here Saturday for Chinwangtao, on the Manchurian border, to protect Japanese military posts along the railway. It had been reported that the Chihli troops who recently invaded Manchuria were interfering constantly with these Japanese posts. Orders are said to have been issued from Paoting-fu, the headquarters of General Wu Pei-fu, commander of the Chihli army, for the soldiers to abstain from further interference with the Japanese.

There is no sign yet of the return of the immense amount of railway equipment which Chang Tso-lin, the Manchurian war lord, carried back to his territory when he was driven from Chihli by General Wu. General Chang took approximately 90 per cent. of the rolling stock of the Peking-Mukden line. The shortage of cars and locomotives has paralyzed railway communication in the district, causing the utmost inconvenience.

The Chihli forces, having routed Chang's army, are being withdrawn rapidly toward Kalgan and Paoting-fu, leaving only enough troops to man garrisons at important railway stations.

THE NEIGHBORHOOD TO CLOSE FOR YEAR

Playhouse on Grand Street Will Devote the Interim to Developing Its Possibilities.

On the heels of an announcement by the Provincetown Players that they would make no productions for a period of one year, a similar announcement was made yesterday by the Neighborhood Playhouse. This theatre, built at 466 Grand Street by the Lewisohns and operated by them for the last seven seasons, has in that time contributed many interesting theatrical productions. It was at the Neighborhood that Lord Dunsany was acted for the first time in this country, and plays by Galsworthy, Barker, Shaw and many others have also been presented there.

The cessation of public activity for a year, it was declared yesterday, is made necessary by the fact that the time will be required to develop the possibilities and potentialities of the Playhouse. The intervening year will be devoted to "the formation of a permanent company of players and dancers; further experimentation in pantomime and lyric drama; finding of new material, and an expansion of the workshop."

The theatre will have its public reopening in the Fall of 1923.

STOKES AS AUTHOR DEBATED AT HEARING

Merits of 'The Right to Be Well Born' Discussed by Opposing Counsel.

The inquiry before Supreme Court Justice Finch into the ability of W. E. D. Stokes to pay the $75,000 a year alimony demanded by his wife, Mrs. Helen Elwood Stokes, under her separation decree branched out yesterday into Mr. Stokes's standing as an author, when Isidor Gainsburg, counsel for Mr. Stokes, asked an accountant appearing in behalf of Mrs. Stokes whether he had noted in his examination of the Stokes accounts the expenditures incurred as the result of a lawsuit by the publisher of Mr. Stokes's book, "The Right To Be Well Born."

Accountants for Mrs. Stokes also were questioned by Mr. Gainsburg as to items charged as expenditures in Stokes's unsuccessful divorce suit. The question met with the suggestion by Louis Marshall, for Mrs. Stokes, that a letter in the case showed that Mr. Stokes had spent $100,000, which Mr. Gainsburg admitted. He then volunteered the statement that Mr. Stokes had made other expenditures of $126,000, making the total cost $226,000.

Concerning Mr. Gainsburg's inquiry as to the expenses of the book, Mr. Marshall said:

"Oh, that book is one of the curosities of literature."

"No," replied Mr. Gainsburg, "that book had a wide circulation and was seriously discussed."

Cross-examining the accountants as to the items making up the $7,500,000 they reported as the net wealth of Mr. Stokes, Mr. Gainsburg brought out that the figure included the value of the property owned by the Onward Construction Company and the Mervyn Realty Company, as well as the individual holdings of Mr. Stokes and the property he holds in trust for his son Weddle.

Constantin Negelin, chief accountant for Mrs. Stokes, admitted he included the property held by Mr. Stokes as trustee for his son in fixing the total at $7,500,000. He said he had done so after consultation with an attorney for Mrs. Stokes.

An adjournment was taken to a date to be fixed late in August.

"Morn to Midnight" at the Frazee.

George Kaiser's interesting fantastic play, "Morn to Midnight," last night began an engagement at the Frazee Theatre after a vain attempt to limit it to special performances at the Garrick. This is the play which The Theatre Guild first presented for private Sunday performances a few weeks ago, and which was subsequently acted four times in public performances. The continued interest in the piece is responsible for the presentation at the Frazee. The leading rôle is still in the hands of Frank Reicher.

"Spice of 1922" for Winter Garden.

The next attraction at the Winter Garden, opening on Thursday night, July 6, will be "Spice of 1922," a revue by Jack Lait. The company will include Valeska Suratt, Adele Rowland, Georgie Price, Jimmy Hussey, Evan Burrows Fontaine, Jane Richardson, James Watts, Rath Brothers, James C. Morton, Arman Kalis, and others. The production is being presented by Mr. Kalis.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Leslie Austin has been engaged for "The Inevitable," soon to be produced out of town.

Fanny Brice yesterday began her third week at the Palace Theatre. Vivienne Segal is also on the Palace bill.

NEW RADIO SENDER ELIMINATES NOISE

radio," said Senator Marconi, "and we are still dealing with problems on the borderland of a great and limitless field of knowledge. We who work in radio have a vision of the large power of communications being used for the promotion of peace and good will. The greatest superiority of man over animal is in his great system of communications."

Nally Says It Will Scrap Plants.

E. J. Nally, President of the Radio Corporation of America, which, with five wireless circuits operating across the Atlantic and one across the Pacific, is the largest commercial radio business in the world, said that he agreed with Senator Marconi and the engineers of the General Electric Company that the tube would scrap every big plant in existence when it is fully developed.

"It undoubtedly will change the entire business overnight," said Mr. Nally, "so that we will have to rebuild all our plants. But we are not sorry of that, because this tube offers more efficient operation and will be a great advancement in radio science and in the kind of service the commercial radio companies are able to give.

"It will mean the scrapping of all the Alexanderson alternators in all our stations, as well as in the great wireless station at Carnarvon in Wales, which have recently been installed at a cost of several millions, but the development of radio science has been so rapid in the last few years that we have had to scrap millions of dollars worth of apparatus which became obsolete almost over night. We scrapped two types of the old spark sets, as well as the German Goldsmith alternator, and some of that equipment became obsolete so early that we had not had time to use it. We are willing to scrap our present equipment, and we will want the tube when it is ready."

In his recent lecture before the electrical and radio engineers, Senator Marconi described the work done by his experimenters on the electron tube or triode valve.

"It has been so far our practice to use a plurality of tubes in parallel at our long distance stations," he said. "High power has been obtained in practice up to 100 kilowatts in the antennas by means of a number of glass tubes in parallel, and for the present we are standardizing units capable of supplying four kilowatts to the antennae, in the numbers required and sufficient for each particular case. Some difficulty was at first experienced in parallelling large tubes in considerable numbers, but no difficulties now occur with groups of sixty bulbs working on voltages of 12,000 to the plate. I am told that no insurmountable difficulty would be encountered if it were desired to supply 500 kilowatts to the antennae from a number of these bulbs.

"In the development of single unit tubes of considerable power is also progressing. We have lately concentrated on the production of high power tubes made of quartz, and two sizes of each bulb are now being made, one for 25 kilowatts to the antennae and another for 75 kilowatts, but it is not expected that the efficiency of the high power single units will be as good as that of the multiple units, and the work on the large tubes is being considered so far as experimental."

It is expected that the new cross oceanic station of the Italian Navy at the old town of Coltano, now called Marconi, near Pisa, will embody some new development of the tube, but work on the station has been progressing so slowly that Senator Marconi fears it may be obsolete when it is completed. That is how fast radio science is rushing.

Tells of 150,000 Meter Waves.

In addition to this hitherto unannounced development of the tube, more light was thrown today on the myth of radio communication with Mars. Dr. Langmuir told Senator Marconi that the 150,000 metre wireless waves which had reached Marconi's wireless set on the yacht Elettra in the Mediterranean had not come from Mars or from some source far off the earth, but had come from the General Electric plant at Schenectady.

Dr. Langmuir, for the first time in public at a luncheon to Senator Marconi at the Mohawk Golf Club, told the story of sending out 150,000 metre waves from Schenectady just about the time Marconi was reported to have heard the strange signals on his apparatus. He said that the waves were of the same kind of regular beat reported to have been heard by Marconi as if some strange apparatus were trying to signal from beyond the earth.

Dr. Langmuir said tonight that a set of the new tubes would be installed soon in the central wireless station of the Radio Corporation of America at Port Jefferson, L. I., for a thorough try-out before installation in any of the other stations. Ten of these 50-kilowatt tubes, occupying a space no larger than an ordinary desk drawer, will take the place of one 200-watt alternator, which stands about ten feet high and more than fills a room ten feet square.

Dr. Langmuir discovered the principle of the tube about 1912 while he was working on the nitrogen-filled lamp and the vacuum lamp in part of his work for the General Electric Company. He learned that electrons were given off from the two terminals in a lamp and, in curiosity, began to try to discover why these electrons did not form a contact between the two poles and burn the lamp out, which, of course, was an end undesired by the makers of the lamps. He discovered that the electrons were both negative and positive in individual composition and repelled each other, so that a veritable whirlwind of electrons was created in the tube, with consequent creation of power.

It was the first time an electrical wave of 150,000 meters had been generated on earth, the highest size wave of any use in radio being 30,000 meters. Mr. Langmuir used it in tests on the trolley wires between Schenectady and Saratoga, sending out 3,000 cycles of alternating current.

When Dr. Langmuir heard the story of the Mars myth he thought that this gigantic wave had been hurled into space by the immense antennae of miles of trolley wire and had been picked up by Marconi's wireless in the Mediterranean. His opinion was strengthened when he learned that the signals said to have been heard by Marconi were of a regular slow beat, such as the wave sent out here might have created. This wave might have girdled the globe and then dipped off into limitless space for thousands of miles until its energy was exhausted.

Senator Marconi received a great reception from more than 20,000 workers in the vast General Electric plant. The Italian colors were displayed with the American emblem and as he went through the buildings with officials of the company groups of Italians cheered him and shouted "Viva Marconi." Scores of Italians hurried up, caps off, to shake his hand, so that toward the end of the day the inventor winced with pain at each additional handshake.

At the luncheon at the Mohawk Club Dr. Langmuir predicted that Senator Marconi would realize his dream of sending wireless waves around the earth. Toasting Signor Marconi, Dr. Whitney said that "he leads the world in vision on radio." Dr. Langmuir said that he had "taken theory and made it fact." E. W. Rice, honorary Chairman of the Board of the General Electric, said that "we have never before entertained a more distinguished man. He has shown us how to annihilate space." Owen D. Young, Chairman of the Board of the General Electric, described him as "the leading inventor of the world, with our own Edison."

Senator Marconi spoke this evening to thousands of radio fans through the broadcasting apparatus of the General Electric Company, and later addressed an Italian meeting in an armory. He will return to New York City on his yacht tomorrow.

HE FIDDLED

his life away. His evil brain conceived the hideous idea of an entire city destroyed to gratify his passion for strange and new sensations.

Surrounded by flattering sycophants, ambitious courtiers, designing women; insensible in his vain ignorance of the horror wrought by his own hand, the worst tyrant the world has ever known since time began fiddled upon a harp and laughed.

The man was Nero, the most hated ruler of all history; the city was Rome.

If you would see the glory of Rome, and the most terrible catastrophe of its ancient days reproduced in all their magnificence and grandeur, see the superb William Fox spectacle "Nero," directed by J. Gordon Edwards, now being presented twice daily at the Lyric Theatre.

Nero fiddled while Rome burned; now Nero is probably burning in Hades while all New York is applauding the marvelous spectacle of the reproduction of this historic episode made possible through the imperishable art of the motion picture.

Nero is dead, but Rome still lives; and never in all its centuries of history has Rome been glorified as it is in this wonderful super-spectacle "Nero," which William Fox is presenting twice daily at the Lyric Theatre.

One little word after another

THAT is the generally accepted formula for all great speeches, great books, great plays. One little word after another makes literature.

One little bond after another—that's the way incomes, great and small, are built up. But the analogy goes no further, for while almost any little word is a safe word, any little stock or bond may be no safer than an old-fashioned Fourth of July.

Before a man invests money in a piece of embossed paper, he wants more than a sketchy outline of the company that issues the paper. He wants to see a few figures and learn the facts behind those figures.

In 1919 The Tribune organized an Investor's Information Service to give to its readers full benefit of the researches made by The Tribune Financial Bureau. Although the service was originated as an aid to the smaller investor, inquiries soon began to come in from men and women asking advice on investments involving tens and even hundreds of thousands.

During the last year and a half as many as 1500 persons a month have written in for advice from the Tribune financial experts. Questions of general interest are answered in the financial columns; others by mail.

Whether or not you are a regular Tribune reader, The Tribune is glad to help you solve your investment problems.

BIELASKI IS HELD, COMPANION FREED

...American. A suspension of military movements was ordered to permit the delivery of the ransom to see whether the kidnappers will live up to their promises. If they do, and Bielaski is returned safely, it is understood the entire country will be bombed by troops in an effort to clean up the State of Morelos, which for ten years was the home of the Zapatistas but now is the haunt of a more dangerous group of bandits, most of whom are Americans.

Bielaski's life is in grave danger, according to a statement made to THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent today by Enrique Robles, a leading Mexican citizen, who acted as one of the Ministers of Hacienda during 1914. Robles, who is not connected with any American interests, stated that he had information that the American Reds planned to capture some American for vengeance. The name of the American was unknown to him until THE TIMES correspondent established Bielaski's position in the United States during the war.

"These American Reds," said Robles, "have held meetings here for some time. We Mexicans have not worked with them, as we consider that foreigners have no right to interfere in Mexican politics. I personally believe that unless active steps are taken these foreigners, who have some Mexican accomplices, will murder Bielaski."

Robles said he expected the Mexicans would assist the Government in capturing these foreigners, as they considered the kidnapping an act of treason and more serious than the so-called Jenkins case in the State of Puebla. Mexicans were also stirred up against the American Reds using Mexican soil for private vengeance, more so at a time when the Mexican Government is trying to establish good relations with the United States.

Due to the prominence of Bielaski, Mexicans see a political as well as a personal motive behind the kidnapping. The amount of the ransom asked, $5,000, is so small as to make the theory that the bandits were looking for money appear very weak.

According to auto owners in Cuernavaca, fifty autos made the trip from the hotel to the caves, all returning safely. Many smaller parties than the Bielaski party passed along the road without trouble. Those in autos who made the trip in safety say they did not see any groups of armed men. This lends warrant to the theory that the kidnapping of Bielaski was a plot on the part of radicals to get even with him for his wartime activity.

Reds Activity in Cuernavaca.

A Russian known to be a close friend of the American Red group told THE TIMES correspondent that the radical colony had expected the arrival of two prominent Reds from the United States in the next few days. These Reds, together with several Germans now en route from Europe and a number of Russian radicals, who arrived in Mexico disguised as peddlers of neckties, will hold a small edition of the Internationale, using Cuernavaca as headquarters. From this meeting renewed Red activities in both the United States and Mexico are expected to develop.

My Russian informant said the Russian Reds were tired of inaction and were planning for this Fall a campaign of terror, starting in Germany and reaching to the United States.

The physical condition of the State of Morelos renders the pursuit of the kidnappers difficult, as it is very mountainous. From Mexico City the auto with THE TIMES correspondent, starting at a 7,000-foot level, climbed along through the mountain passes and through a long stretch of volcanic ash that made the auto wheels slip as if in grease, and reached a 10,000-foot elevation at the railway station named Tres Marias, or Three Marys.

From this stop at the roadside a wonderful view of the entire Toluca Valley was obtained, a snow-clad extinct volcano looming in the distance to the west, and Cuernavaca, or "Cow's Horns," the home of Maximilian when he was Emperor of Mexico, lying to the south. Coasting all the way, the auto then rolled down into Cuernavaca, the elevation of which is 5,000 feet.

Mexican Foreign Secretary Acts.

MEXICO CITY, June 26 (Associated Press).—Alberto J. Pani, Secretary of Foreign Affairs, has been officially advised by the American Embassy of the kidnaping yesterday of A. Bruce Bielaski in the State of Morelos, and the promise has been given that all possible measures will be taken to effect his release.

Although Mexican Federal troops have been liberally scattered through that region in an attempt to apprehend the captors, they will no be so hard pressed as to jeopardize the lives of their prisoners. The other person kidnapped was Manuel Barcena, a Mexican attorney.

Shortly before noon today both the American Embassy and Consulate told The Associated Press that no word had been received concerning Mr. Bielaski and that the facts as published in Mexico City this morning were substantially correct.

First Secretary Winslow did not go to Cuernavaca, the scene of the kidnapping, to direct the investigation, as he believed all possible means already were being utilized to obtain the capture of the bandits.

Bielaski's Friends Reticent.

The air of mystery which surrounded the kidnapping last night was explained in authoritative sources today as an attempt by Mr. Bielaski's friends to have the least possible said about the incident until he was safe.

Mystery still surrounds the actual kidnapping which took place near the Hacienda de Sangabriel, in the State of Morelos. Mrs. Bielaski has merely stated that the hold-up occurred yesterday, and she pleaded physical exhaustion as an excuse from making a lengthy statement. She declined to name the sum of the ransom demanded or to give out any other information, merely stating that all matters were in the hands of the United States Embassy.

The foreign correspondents were approached today by "friends of the Bielaski family," who later proved to be United States secret agents with the request that the story of the kidnapping be not published until such time as certain possible complications in connection therewith might be arranged.

From an authoritative source it was learned that the Bielaski and Barcena families left a Cuernavaca hotel yesterday to visit the famous caves nearby. Four miles out, it was said, they encountered seven armed men who demanded the car to stop. The hold-up men escorted the party across fields to a timber land, where they informed the men that they would be held but that the women would be released. Despite protests, the women were taken back to the automobile and their chauffeur was ordered to return them in safety to Cuernavaca.

News of the hold-up was not circulated, however, until other parties of tourists from the caves heard rumors of the affair on their way and inquiries were started.

Mrs. Bielaski did not return to Mexico City until last night, when efforts were made to induce the newspapers not to publish accounts of the kidnapping.

The Federal troops scouring the country in search of the hold-up men are said to be acting under the personal orders of President Obregon.

Washington Asks for Release.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Vigorous representations have been made by the American Government to the Mexican Government through Charge d'Affaires George T. Summerlin, at Mexico City, for the immediate release "unharmed" of Alexander Bruce Bielaski, formerly Chief of the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice during the World War, now Vice President of the New York firm of Richmond Levering & Co., who has been kidnapped by bandits near Puente de Ixtla, in the Mexican State of Morelos, and is held for ransom in the sum of 10,000 pesos.

Mr. Bielaski, with his wife, and Mr. and Mrs. Manuel Barcena of Mexicali, were on route to view Aztec ruins in the vicinity of Cuernavaca yesterday morning when they were held up and robbed by the bandits who later released Mrs. Bielaski and Mrs. Barcena, but held the men of the party for ransom. Charge Summerlin, to whom Mrs. Bielaski related her account of the kidnaping, made immediate representations on behalf of the American Government to the Obregon Government, which is understood to have put troops on the trail of the bandits. First news of the kidnapping reached the State Department this morning in a brief message from Consul General Claude I. Dawson at Mexico City. Later this message, filed at Mexico City at 12 o'clock last night, was received from the American Embassy:

Mexico City, June 25, midnight.
State Department,
Washington. (Urgent):

Party including A. Bruce Bielaski and wife held up and robbed this morning by bandits near Puentes de Ixtla, State of Morelos. Mr. Bielaski and a Mexican citizen named Barcena held for 10,000 pesos ransom. All possible informal representations made to the authorities. Mrs. Bielaski arrived city safe and well this evening.

SUMMERLIN.

Announcement that the most vigorous representations were being made for the release of Mr. Bielaski was issued at the State Department today following the receipt of the telegrams from Charge Summerlin and Consul General Dawson. Upon receipt of these messages, Acting Secretary Phillips sent this message to Charge Summerlin:

Washington, June 26.
American Embassy,
Mexico City:

Urge appropriate authorities to take every possible measure to procure release of Bielaski unharmed. Promptly advise department of developments and telegraph whereabouts and welfare of Mrs. Bielaski.

PHILLIPS.

Mr. Bielaski, who is now an official of an American corporation with large interests in Mexico, is a son of the Rev. Alexander Bielaski of 550 Thirty-ninth Street, this city, and a brother of Mrs. Ruth B. Shipley, an assistant in the office of Third Assistant Secretary of State Alvey A. Adee. Besides his father, who is a retired Methodist Episcopal minister, and Mrs. Shipley, the members of Mr. Bielaski's family are Mrs. Alice K. Bielaski and Fred Bielaski of this city, Frank st. Bielaski of Warren, Pa., and Mrs. T. H. Miller of Brandsville, Md. He also has four children, two boys and two girls, now at his home at Great Neck, L. I.

Mr. Bielaski is best known in Washington for his work as head of the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice during the World War, a position later filled by William J. Flynn, and now held by William J. Burns. Mr. Bielaski entered the Department of Justice in 1906 under former Attorney General Wickersham. When the United States entered the war he was placed in charge of the Bureau of Investigation and directed the investigation of most of the German activities in this country during the war. After the armistice he resigned, but his resignation was not accepted until the following February, when he went to New York to become Vice President of Richmond Levering & Co.

His father stated today that Mr. Bielaski went to Mexico the middle of May to inspect the company's oil interests there. He and Mrs. Bielaski had been stopping at a Mexico City hotel, but had made several trips into the Mexican States. The last letter from him indicated that he expected to leave for New York in June, and it is thought that he was kidnapped while on a sightseeing trip to the Aztec ruins just before he intended returning to New York.

Mr. Bielaski, who is a lawyer by profession, is a member of the American Bar Association, the Bar of the District of Columbia, the Columbia University Alumni Association, Phi Tau Delta, the New York Athletic and Great Neck Golf and Country Clubs.

Firm Orders Ransom Paid.

A. E. Radert, Treasurer of Richmond Levering & Co. of 120 Broadway, of which A. Bruce Bielaski is President, said yesterday that his firm had received word through their New York bankers that the 10,000 pesos demanded by bandits for the release of Mr. Bielaski had been sent to them.

"We are hoping to get telegraphic information of his release at any time," said Mr. Radert. "We have received confirmation of the information that Mrs. Bielaski and the other woman in the party have been released, and that Mr. Bielaski and a Mexican named Barcena, who was motoring with him when they were captured by the bandits, are still being held.

"Mr. Bielaski has been with this company since the early part of 1919, when he resigned from the Department of Justice. He went to Mexico in connection with a lawsuit. An attempt had been made to enjoin us from drilling for oil in some of our properties in the Miguel field, and the case was to come before the Mexican Supreme Court. A decision favorable to our interests was handed down by the Mexican Supreme Court in a similar suit on June 14."

The first word of the kidnapping came to Richmond Levering & Co. when their Mexican bankers wired for instructions. They were directed to pay the ransom and procure the release of the prisoners.

HATRED FOR CREASY IN DEAD GIRL'S NOTE

SHE CALLED HIM "OIL CAN"

Young Man's Counsel Says He Has Missives to "My Darling Boy," Showing Despondency.

Special to The New York Times.

FREEPORT, L. I., June 26.—A letter which Edith Lavoy apparently had started to write to her mother just before she was found shot in her sitting room at Freeport on Friday night, was made public today by Assistant District Attorney Edwards to show that apparently the teacher was not in love with William Creasy, as Creasy's lawyer has maintained, but that on the contrary she disliked him.

The letter was found by Mildred Simser, also a school teacher, and Miss Lavoy's roommate, in a box in which she had placed it when Creasy arrived at the house that night. It was on sheets torn from a pad and was unfinished. It was dated June 23 and read:

"Dear Everybody: This has been a busy week and it will seem good when everything is done. All my 'cherubs' made their grade and everyone passed Regent's geography. The weather down here for the past week has been just fine, by that I mean plenty of rain, so it made it nice and cool.

"Last Sunday I went to East Orange, Bloomfield and Newark, N. J., to visit George's folks. We had dinner at his father's at Bloomfield, and another elaborate dinner at his brother Cliff's at East Orange. By the way, George sends mother his best regards, and says he would like to have another game of pinochle with her. He has a studio now in New York and is quite a success at it.

"Well, Hazel and I were picked out again this year to be ushers. Not any too glad over it, either.

"It never rains but it pours. Who should have popped in this week but Bill? That 'oil can.' I just hate him. Believe me, he got some cold reception."

The letter ended there, and Mr. Edwards thinks that it was because Creasy had arrived on the visit which ended in Miss Lavoy's death.

"I cannot disclose all our hand at present. We have been in communication with Kentucky, but I cannot say what we have learned as yet."

Raymond Malone, attorney for Creasy, said yesterday he had 300 letters written by Miss Lavoy to Creasy, and in about fifty of them the teacher expressed a desire to die. Many, he said, began "My darling boy." He said he believed the girl committed suicide because she believed she had been jilted.

Creasy visited Tupper Lake last Summer, although Miss Lavoy had not invited him to do so, and paid her attentions which were unwelcome, her relatives said.

Leroy Lavoy, a brother of the dead girl, and Miss May Cuoco, an aunt, spent some time with Mr. Edwards yesterday, and denied the story of friendship with Miss Lavoy which Creasy had told the authorities. Miss Eva Lavoy, a sister, saw Creasy in the jail, but before she could speak to him she fainted.

PLANE AND AUTO COLLIDE.

Low-Flying Aviator Then Sails Away, Refusing His Name.

LOS ANGELES, June 26.—A collision between an airplane and an automobile was reported to city and county officials today. Edmund C. Kosub, who drove the motor car, told the authorities that the plane damaged the car slightly and caused his mother and sister and a cousin riding with him to suffer from shock.

He added that the aviator stopped, but declined to give his name and address or to explain why he was flying so low over a boulevard. The aviator then flew away.

WELCOME HARDING'S SUBSIDY CHALLENGE

PAST REPUDIATIONS CITED

SHIPOWNERS ESCAPE TAXES

And That Companies Made "Enormous" Profits in Wartime and Do Not Need Subsidies.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Declaring that they welcomed "the injunction of the President that the question of ship subsidy be carried to the people," the Democratic members of the House Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries, in a minority report presented to the House today, vehemently attacked the subsidy bill and denounced the principle of ship subsidy. The report is signed by Representatives Hardy, Davis and Bankhead.

"The 'reaction' of the people on ship subsidies has been manifested every time its greedy head has dared raise itself," said the report. "It was manifested in such a way that the Hanna Ship Subsidy bill died aborning, although the expense of that bill involved about one twenty-fifth of that involved in the pending bill, and the 'reaction' of the people was again manifested when the Frye bill calling for about the same expense passed the Senate but was never brought up in the House because of the tremendous opposition that developed. The 'reaction' of the people was again manifested when the Gallinger bill, involving about one-fifteenth of the cost of the present bill, was defeated.

"The 'reaction' of the people has been repeatedly manifested in that no political party has ever dared declare in its platform in favor of ship subsidies, even when such was a live issue in Congress.

"The 'reaction' of the people with respect to the pending bill was manifested by the overwhelming nomination of Smith W. Brookhart for Senator on a platform opposing the Ship Subsidy bill. It has been manifested by uniform denunciation of it by farm and labor conventions and recently in practically all of the farm and labor journals throughout the country, as well as in numerous other ways.

"The 'reaction' of the people was made manifest to their Representatives in Congress to such an extent that the champions of the bill reached the conclusion that a majority of the members would vote against the bill if pressed to a vote at this time in spite of the extraordinary pressure brought to bear upon them from sources other than their constituencies."

Suggest "Explaining" to the Public.

The report suggests that Republican members in carrying their appeal to the people "explain to the people" the following:

"That the passage of this bill will not 'save hundreds of millions of dollars in liquidation of our shipping assets,' as suggested by the President, but that Chairman Lasker himself does not hope to obtain more than $200,000,000 for the entire fleet, and that if this bill passes, the charge upon the public treasury for the next ten years would be at least $750,000,000, not to speak of the fact that the fleet would be sold for several hundred million dollars less than what would have been its pre-war cost—wholly disregarding the actual cost of the fleet.

"That this bill exempts shipowners from the payment of all Federal taxes, provided the amount which would otherwise be payable as taxes is invested or set aside for investment in new ship construction.

"That it is not even claimed by the proponents of this bill that the people will obtain any cheaper ocean freight rates, and that the bill does not pretend to provide for any sort of regulation of such rates; on the other hand, Chairman Lasker, at the hearings, called attention to the fact that, by reason of the provision authorizing a deduction from net income taxes of 5 per cent. of the freight paid on goods imported or exported in American vessels, an importer or exporter could afford to pay 4 per cent. more for the carriage of his goods on American vessels than they would be carried for on foreign vessels and still save 1 per cent.

Makes Permanent Appropriations.

"That instead of the Shipping Board coming to Congress each year for necessary appropriations to carry out the provisions of the bill, as all other departments of the Government are required to do, this bill is so framed as to avoid this, it directing the Secretary of the Treasury to credit to the Merchant Marine Fund certain receipts, and 'all moneys in the fund are hereby permanently appropriated for the purpose of making such payments of voyage subsidies,' upon vouchers signed by the Chairman of the board.

"That this bill confers upon the Shipping Board the most autocratic and unprecedented powers with respect to selling ships, making loans, making subsidy contracts and handling enormous sums of money, ever conferred upon any board, and yet the Shipping Board is feverishly employing every conceivable means to obtain such powers and opportunities.

"That when this country was in the midst of war the shipping interests who are back of this bill took advantage of the situation and ran ocean rates up on both their Government and the people as high as 1,250 per cent. over pre-war rates, as admitted at the hearings by the general manager of the American Steamship Owners' Association, and made what was characterized as 'almost fabulous' profits by W. J. Love, and as 'enormous' by J. H. Smull, Messrs. Love and Smull being two of the $35,000 a year experts of the Shipping Board and two Presidents of the Emergency Fleet Corporation.

"That this bill authorizes the granting of subsidies and all other aids to the Standard Oil Company, the United States Steel Corporation and other large concerns which own and operate their own ships in the transportation of their own products, and does not require them to operate their ships in whole or in part as common carriers."

FORDNEY TO END CONGRESS CAREER

After Twenty-Four Years' Service He Will Retire With the Present Congress.

REVIVES SENIORITY FIGHT

Struggle in Both Parties to End Succession Rule to Committee Chairmanships.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Representative Joseph W. Fordney, Chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, intends to end his Congressional career with this Congress, leaving the Tariff bill as his crowning legislative accomplishment. He announced today that he would not seek re-election after twenty-four years' service as a member of the House. Most of that time he was a member of the Ways and Means Committee and its Chairman for the last four years.

Another member of the House occupying an important post, Representative Frank W. Mondell, Republican floor leader, will not be in the next House, since he seeks election to the Senate. Even if he should not be elected Senator he will lose the opportunity for re-election as a Representative. His action and the forthcoming retirement of Mr. Fordney have revived discussion as to whether their successors and committee chairmanships shall be chosen under the seniority succession rule.

The big issue upon the reorganization of the next House, judged by earnest discussion now in progress, will be the breaking down of the seniority rule, which places those of longest service in committees as chairmen. The operation of this rule during Democratic control gave nearly all the important chairmanships to Democrats south of the Mason and Dixon line, with the result that Republicans had a strong argument for change in the shibboleth "the South in the Saddle."

This rule was followed in the organization of the House by the Republicans despite a strong address to caucus delivered by Representative Longworth, Speaker Gillett and others. The evil of the plan soon became apparent. The House found itself without real leadership due to Chairmen selected on account of long service and without regard to ability, and the situation was so bad that in this session when the Budget Appropriations Committee was organized the rule was ignored and Representative Martin B. Madden of Illinois, who was not a member of the old Appropriations Committee, was elected Chairman.

Discussion of the advisability of changing the seniority succession rule was revived today by the announcement of Representative Fordney that he would not seek re-election. Immediately those Republicans who want to see the House manned by efficient Chairmen approached the recognized leaders and urged them to come out for some modification of the rule. Many of the Republicans who in the past have opposed any change said today that conditions have proved the necessity of a change in this respect.

SAGINAW, Mich., June 26.—Congressman Joseph W. Fordney, Chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee and author of the Fordney Tariff bill, announced, positively this morning in a telegram to the Saginaw News-Courier that he will not be a candidate for re-election. He plans to retire at the end of his present term after twenty-four years of continuous service in Congress.

Mr. Fordney, who throughout his Congressional service has represented the Eighth Michigan District, will be 69 years old on Nov. 5 next. He began life in the lumber woods, logging and appraising pine timber.

In a letter to a close personal friend here he said his decision to retire had been reached some time ago.

MASKED MAN RUNS OFF WITH $700 AND WIFE

Baldwin Storekeeper Says His Helpmeet Aided Stranger Hold Him Up in Bed.

BALDWIN, L. I., June 26.—Arthur Wider, a fruit dealer here, was awakened early today by a blow on the head with a blackjack and then robbed by a masked man who ran away with Wider's wife, he reported today to the Sheriff at Mineola.

"I felt a terrific blow on the head," Wider said, "and when I awoke I found myself face to face with a man wearing an army uniform and a handkerchief pulled over his face. He stuck a revolver in my face and told me not to move or he would knock my brains out.

"Covering me with the gun, he reached under my pillow and took $700 in cash and my watch and chain. My wife then entered the room, fully dressed, and they both went into the kitchen, where I heard them whispering there and in a few minutes they returned to my room.

"My wife tore my bed sheet into strips and tied my hands, at the man's order, and threw another sheet over me. Then she and the man left the house."

STRIKE ISOLATES AUSTRIA.

Railroad, Postal, Telephone and Telegraph Employes Out.

Copyright, 1922, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, June 26.—Austria continues isolated from the rest of the world owing to a strike of railway, postal, telegraph and telephone employes, involving 140,000. Though the dispute began nominally on the question of wages and the cost of living, it has developed into a serious political struggle.

The new conservative Government refuses further concessions or even to negotiate till work has been resumed, saying the question is whether the country is to be governed by Parliament or trade unions.

A large number of English visitors who intended returning have been greatly embarrassed, and 30,000 provincials, unable to leave the city, spent last night in the public parks. Fantastic prices are paid by travelers for motor cars to the frontier.

URGES MAINTAINING OUR TROOPS IN HAITI

REGRETS SOME OUTRAGES

But Finds Constructive Service, With Support of Majority of the People.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Indefinite continuance of American military occupation of Haiti, but with a reduction of the marine force, was recommended in an unanimous report presented today by the special Senate committee which for months has been investigating American administration in Haiti and Santo Domingo. The committee deferred announcement of its findings on Dominican affairs "in view of the negotiations happily begun between the State Department and the Dominican leaders looking to the termination of military government in Santo Domingo."

The declaration that early withdrawal of or drastic reduction in the American marine occupation force in Haiti would be followed certainly by brigandage and revolution was made in the report signed by Senator McCormick, Republican, of Illinois, Chairman, and Senators Oddie, Republican, of Nevada; Pomerene, Democrat, of Ohio, and Jones, Democrat, of New Mexico, who have held protracted hearings and recently toured Haiti and Santo Domingo.

The committee found that on the whole American administration in Haiti had been of great benefit to the Haitians and was so regarded, it said, by a vast majority. The American record, however, was described as one both of "failure and achievement," the report stated, adding that there had been some "blunders and a few instances of cruelty against natives by members of the military force.

"In brief, under the treaty between Haiti and the United States," the report said, "the peace of Haiti is reposed, the solvency of its Government and the security of its people have been established for the first time for many years."

In justification of American intervention, the report said that "the chronic anarchy into which Haiti had fallen, the exhaustion of its credit, the threatened intervention of the German Government and the actual landing of the French naval forces, all imperiled the Monroe Doctrine and lead the Government of the United States to take the successive steps set forth . . . to establish order in Haiti, to help institute a Government as nearly representative as might be, and to assure the collaboration of the Governments of the United States and Haiti for the future maintenance of peace and the development of the Haitian people."

American intervention, the report said, has, however, been marked by "constructive services to the Haitian people and the committee finds them must be co-operation" by literate Haitians with the American officials.

"There are certain elements in Haiti which can balk and perhaps delay the rehabilitation of the country," the report added. . . . "They cannot prevent it. The obvious duty of patriotic Haitians is to uphold their own Government in effective co-operation with men of the United States under the treaty and so hasten the day when Haiti may stand alone. The alternative is the immediate withdrawal of American support and the abandonment of the Haitian people to chronic revolution, anarchy, barbarism and ruin."

The report gives high praise to the Marine Corps for its work in Haiti. The charges of cruelty by Marines and local gendarmerie are given at length, only a few of which were declared proved, while many charges were declared false and others based on hearsay testimony by illiterate natives.

"The committee expresses its chagrin," the report said, "at the improper or criminal conduct of some few members of the Marine Corps and at the same time feels it to be its duty to condemn the process by which biased or interested individuals and committees and propagandists have seized on isolated instances, or have adopted as true any rumor however vile or baseless in an effort to bring into general disrepute the whole American naval force in Haiti."

Recommendations of the committee included flotation of the proposed new loan to refund foreign debts and provide funds for highways, schools and other public utilities and appointment of a legal adviser to the American High Commissioner.

"It would be an act of comity and statesmanship on the part of our Government," the report continued, "if it would send to Haiti a commission comprising a commercial adviser, an expert in tropical agriculture and an educator of the standing and special experience of Dr. Morton of Tuskegee Institute. There ought to be a survey of the need and opportunity for industrial and especially agricultural instruction and development."

WIFE FORGIVES RUNAWAYS.

Seeks Bail for Husband Held for Abducting Stenographer.

When Professor Albert Tondra, 45 and married, and Miss Rose Bessedes, 17, a stenographer, were brought to the Yonkers Police Station yesterday after the police allege the pair ran off together, the first person to go to their aid was Tondra's wife. She immediately tried to get bail for him.

Mrs. Tondra, who lives at 59 Van Cortlandt Park Avenue, Yonkers, forgave not only her husband, but also the girl, whom he is alleged to have taken with him as far as Albany, where the police on Sunday interrupted their journey to Niagara Falls.

Judge Rosenwasser fixed bail for Tondra, who is a music instructor and orchestra leader, at $5,000, on a charge of abduction. The girl was ordered held as a witness until Tondra's hearing tomorrow.

"We were only going on a vacation to the same place," said Miss Bessedes. "While we were both away from home Saturday night we were at separate places. I was at the home of a friend in Manhattan."

The girl maintained that her actions and those of Tondra were perfectly proper. Tondra told detectives that he and the stenographer were going to spend vacations at separate addresses in Niagara Falls.

"I talked to them both," said Mrs. Tondra. "I told them that I was willing to forgive them both. They are both penitent, and I am going to take my husband back. I told them I could not understand why they went away. My husband is anxious to return home."

CALLS DOTEY A GOSSIP.

Teacher Who Ignored Advisory Council Writes a Letter.

Henrietta Rodman, a teacher in Julia Richman High School, who recently refused to appear before State Commissioner of Education Graves's Advisory Council on Teachers' Qualifications, has written to President George J. Ryan of the Board of Education, stating that Aaron I. Dotey of De Witt Clinton High School has violated the "ethics of his profession" in attacking the Teachers' Union, of which she is a member. She says in the letter:

"The false and misleading statements he (Mr. Dotey) is attempting to intimidate and to discredit hundreds of his colleagues who, by their interest in educational and social programs, have roused his antagonism.

"I accuse him of violating the ethics of the teaching profession and lowering the morale in the public schools by conduct unbecoming a teacher; gossiping publicly and maliciously about his colleagues."

Penfield Will Provides for Scholarships In Diplomacy and International Affairs

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., June 26.—Bequests to the University of Pennsylvania, New York University and the Catholic University, Washington, D. C., for the establishment of scholarships for studies in diplomacy, international affairs and belles lettres are made in the will of Frederick Courtland Penfield, former United States Ambassador to Austria, which was probated today.

The bulk of the residue of the estate is left to the widow, Mrs. Anne Weightman Penfield, who is named as sole executrix and to whom letters testamentary were granted. Mr. Penfield, who was a resident of Philadelphia, died on June 19, while temporarily residing at 787 Fifth Avenue, New York.

The value of the estate is mentioned as "$200,000 and upward," but it is said that the actual value will amount to several millions of dollars.

The bequests in the will are: "To my niece, Georgiana Penfield, $100,000. To my nephew, Henry Rust Penfield of Manitou, Col., $50,000.

"In loving memory of my first wife, Katharene A. Penfield, I give and bequeath to my executrix the sum of $100,000 in trust to hold in principal thereof during the minority of McMurdo Silver, son of the late Prof. John A. Silver of Hobart College, Geneva, N. Y., and grandson of my first wife, and upon his majority to pay over the principal to him absolutely.

"I give and bequeath to Mary Quigley $35,000 as a fitting reward for years of devoted domestic service to my beloved wife and myself.

"I give and bequeath to the New York Yacht Club the oil painting in my collection by W. L. Wyllie, R. A., entitled 'Tide Race, Portsmouth Harbor.'

"I give and bequeath to New York University, New York City, the sum of $80,000 in trust, to invest the principal safely, and from the income to establish and maintain scholarships for studies in diplomacy, international affairs and belles lettres, to be known as 'Penfield Scholarships.'

"A like sum of $80,000 each is left to the University of Pennsylvania and the Catholic University for a similar purpose and under similar conditions."

CLOSURE ON TARIFF HAS LITTLE CHANCE

SHINGLES LEFT DUTY FREE

Effort to Put Them Under 50-Cent Rate Beaten by Vote of 49 to 15.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—With the tariff still lagging, and with nothing to indicate that consideration of the measure will be speeded up in the near future, Republican Senators continued today to talk of invoking the closure rule. Senator Curtis, the Republican whip, now has forty-five signatures to the closure petition, or nineteen less than a two-third majority of the Senate. Within the next few days a canvass will be made of the Democratic side in the hope of winning a few minority signatures. They may get three, the Democratic leaders say—Senators Broussard and Ransdell of Louisiana, and Senator Kendrick of Wyoming.

The Administration spokesmen admit that they have very little hope of obtaining the two-thirds majority necessary to put the rule into effect. At least eight Republicans, it is said today, will refuse to the end to sign the petition and, this being true, the adoption of a closure resolution would appear to be impossible.

"The majority is bluffing and when the time comes, if it ever comes, we will be ready to call their bluff," said Senator Harrison.

There will be no closure so far as this tariff bill is concerned," said Senator Robinson.

"If the Republicans are willing to admit the folly of many of the provisions in this bill, and will agree to remove these provisions and, in a really constructive measure, they can pass the bill in four weeks. On the other hand, if they insist that these absurd and excessive rates be maintained, why, then, no man can say how long this debate will last."

Urge Duty on Shingles.

Practically all the talking today was confined to the Republican side, where Senators Poindexter, McNary and other Senators from Northwestern States pleaded for a duty of 50 cents per thousand on Canadian and other foreign-made shingles.

Senator Kellogg of Minnesota directed the fight for free shingles, declaring the shingle industry in this country was running at full capacity and that an investigation by the Tariff Commission proved that it costs more to make shingles in British Columbia than it did in Oregon and Washington. He said it would be a shameful thing to put a duty on shingles at a time when the shortage of houses in America was the greatest in history.

"The Senate," said Mr. Poindexter, "has just heard a regulation free trade speech by the Senator from Minnesota. He says shingles should be kept off the protected list because the industry is prospering. On that theory, steel should also be on the free list, and a dozen other industries I might name would also be there, for all of them are prospering."

"I am surprised," interrupted Senator Borah, "to hear all this talk about the report of the Tariff Commission, when, as a matter of fact, we all know how utterly that report has been rejected by the makers of this bill."

The motion to place shingles on the protected list was defeated, 49 to 15.

Johnson Watching Nut Duties.

Senator Hiram Johnson, in a message to his constituents in California, the text of which was made public today, said he was unable to go to California at this time because a powerful movement was under way to reduce the duties on California nuts and other products.

"I am more than anxious," Senator Johnson wired, "to get to California, and I am coming at the earliest possible moment. I feel, however, that I cannot leave here until the hard battles we have won in getting into the Tariff bill fair rates of duties on California products are absolutely safe so far as the Senate is concerned."

Yesterday last, and again today, a prominent Eastern Senator, a member of the Finance Committee, endeavored to have the Finance Committee rescind the action giving as the rates in the bill on almonds and walnuts. We frustrated this attempt in both instances, but the pressure against our rates is continuous and powerful. When they are safe I am coming home to meet the same old antagonists before the people of California."

Senator Johnson did not disclose the name of the Eastern Senator who wants the duties on almonds and walnuts reduced.

HELD UP ON MERRICK ROAD.

New York Telephone Official in Hospital With a Fractured Skull.

Four robbers held up five men and a woman in a motor car on the Merrick Road, near Samuel Street, Jamaica, early on Sunday. As a result of the attack James Gibbons of 57 West 125th Street, chief of a division of the New York Telephone Company, is in St. Mary's Hospital with a fractured skull and Harry Martin, 30, of 144 East Forty-first Street, who was driving the car, was treated at the hospital for an injured eye. Frederick Lee, 32, of 525 Park Avenue, his wife and two other men were in the party.

The car was on the way to Manhattan from Long Beach. Near Samuel Street a Ford car drew up alongside the larger one and four men leaped out and boarded the other car. One of them turned off the switch, two began to beat Martin and Gibbons, who were in the front seats, and the others threatened Mrs. and Mrs. Lee and the two men in the rear.

After beating Martin and Gibbons unconscious, one of the robbers was going through Gibbons's pockets when a uniformed special watchman, who heard Mrs. Lee's screams, came running up. The robbers jumped into their car and speeded away. Gibbons had $180 in one of his pockets, but the robbers missed it.

BOY SHOT IN BATTLE AFTER A DRUG RAID

FOUR HELD AS VENDORS

Capture Is Sequel to Arrangement by Federal Agent to Purchase Herein.

In an exchange of shots between agents of the Federal Narcotic Squad and four men afterward arrested on a charge of having drugs, Toney Rey, 10 years old, of 300 East 109th Street, was struck in the chest by a glancing bullet in 109th Street between First and Pleasant Avenues last night. James Moog, one of the Federal agents, was arrested on a technical charge of felonious assault and taken to the East 104th Street Station house, where he was released in the custody of Assistant U. S. District Attorney Mallard. The boy was injured only slightly, as the bullet merely penetrated the skin. The scene of the chase and battle is in one of the most crowded sections of Harlem.

Two weeks ago Salvatore Pesetta, a Federal agent, got in touch with John Predanaro of 225 East 148th Street, the Bronx, he said last night, and made preliminary arrangements for the purchase of fifty ounces of heroin at $50 an ounce. According to Pesetta, he and another agent met Predanaro by arrangement at 148th Street and Morris Avenue early in the evening, being followed by Moog and three other agents in another automobile.

Predanaro, according to Pesetta, rode with them to 109th Street and Pleasant Avenue, where he left the automobile and joined three other men at the curb. Pesetta said he then gave Predanaro a roll of paper, around which had been wrapped $30 in small bills, and received a package believed to contain fifty pounds of heroin in exchange. The other agents, drew in, and, on their attempt to arrest the four men, one of the latter knocked Moog to the pavement. The four then ran in different directions, but were captured after several shots had been fired.

Moog insisted that he fired only once and in the air, and said he was not certain whether the other shots came from the men he was pursuing or from friends in the shelter of near-by buildings. At the station house the three men arrested with Predanaro gave their names as Louis Pace of 18 East 106th Street and Vincenzo Amergda and Joseph Harris, who said they lived at 116th Street and Lenox Avenue.

FACE ON BARROOM WALL WAS IZZY'S

But No One Recognized the Dangerous Einstein as He Stood Undisguised Beneath It.

A tour of Brooklyn by Federal prohibition agents, among them "Izzy" Einstein, resulted yesterday in the arraignment of twelve saloonkeepers and bartenders. Einstein, who started out without his usual set of disguises, laughed yesterday about his visit to the saloon of Martin Holtz of 80 Smith Street, Brooklyn.

"I mingled with the customers," said "Izzy," "but no one recognized me. At the side of the bar there was a large photograph of me, with a story about some of my raids. I stood right under it, but still no one recognized me. Finally I pulled out a search warrant and I had to laugh at the faces of the people in the saloon. I found some beer under the bar." John Luts of 185 Harrison Avenue and Henry Jones and Daniel Whalen of 699 Seneca Avenue also received summonses from Einstein.

Other agents served Harry E. Glasing, former champion distance runner, at 240 King's Highway; Harry Sellers and his bartender, John Kaiserkorn, at 5,601 Fourth Avenue and William Murray at 5,315 Second Avenue.

The crews of the sloops Stella and Peter Metzger and the launch C939, seized Sunday with cargoes of liquor valued at $200,000 by customs agents, were taken yesterday before two boats of Federal officials in an effort to learn the details of the little rum-running fleet's operations. Both proceedings—one before the customs service legal department and the other before United States Commissioner Hitchcock—failed to disclose any information as to the source of the liquor or the persons responsible for the operations of the three boats.

Commissioner Hitchcock held Anderson, "Commodore" of the fleet, in $5,000 bail, and the others in $2,000 bail each, which was furnished. The prisoners denied their guilt and were held for a hearing.

United States District Attorney Ralph C. Greene yesterday obtained a temporary injunction from Federal Judge Thomas I. Chatfield to restrain the Piel Brothers' brewery in Brooklyn from operating on the ground that it was a public nuisance. Later William Piel, President of the brewing company, and his counsel asked that the injunction be vacated, offering to put up a bond of $10,000 as security that there would be no violation of the law. Judge Chatfield agreed and the injunction was vacated.

COX HERE ON WAY ABROAD.

Expects to Run Again for Presidency and Will Study League.

Former Governor Cox of Ohio, Democratic nominee for President in 1920, was in this city yesterday on his way to Europe. He will sail tomorrow and expects to remain abroad until September. While in Europe he will study economic conditions and the effects of the League of Nations on reconstruction.

Mr. Cox expects to become a candidate for the Presidential nomination two years hence, and, if nominated, to run again on a platform endorsing the League of Nations. During his stay abroad he will spend considerable time in Geneva, the headquarters of the League. He will visit Belgium, Germany, England and Ireland.

VAST FRENCH PLAN AT GERMAN EXPENSE

TO COST 18 BILLION FRANCS

Germany to Bear Big Share in Labor and Material as Reparation Payment.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 26.—A plan for the employment of German labor and German material in the building of the Channel tunnel to England, in the construction of new railroads in France, in the spanning of the Rivers Rhine, Dordogne, Drac and half a dozen others, so as to create an immense electric service over all Central France, and in the reconstruction of the ports of France, is being studied by the Poincaré Cabinet—the whole work to be accounted against Germany's reparations bill.

As outlined by M. Le Trocquer, the Minister of Public Works, the proposal is the biggest thing ever planned for execution in one sovereign country by the people of another country, and when it is generally known there is likely to be a storm of protest from many quarters. Nevertheless, the Government appears to be counting on very strong backing; otherwise it would never have permitted an account of the proposal to be published in the form in which it has become known.

The first hint of it was given in a speech by M. Le Trocquer at Eu yesterday, when he announced that, before Germany could be allowed to spend the enormous sums she was planning to spend on her own developments, she must, "according to the strict obligations of the treaty of peace, construct on our territory the means of production which she is developing on her own.

Any such wide extension of the principle of restitution in material has not hitherto been imagined by the general public, and today M. Le Trocquer was interviewed as to his intentions. To the interviewer he replied that he had elaborated a plan, in full agreement with Premier Poincaré, under which Germany would be asked to pay her debt by participating in the construction in France of many great public works which were in the national interest.

M. Le Trocquer bases the right of France to call on Germany to repay in this way on Paragraph 19 of the Annex to the Treaty of Versailles, which provides for employment of German labor and material in the development of the industrial and economic life of any of the allied or associated nations. It is the Minister's argument that the most useful works to be undertaken would be those in which a loan could be raised which would be devoted to reconstruction in the devastated regions. Thus indirectly, but with the greatest economy and the least friction, he proposes Germany's payment would go where it was most needed, and at the same time the whole of France would benefit.

One objection to using German labor for direct reconstruction of the devastated districts was that the workmen would be scattered about, and to that the local population objected. Under M. Le Trocquer's scheme German workmen engaged on big public works would be housed together in big camps.

The Minister has already mapped out what works could best be undertaken and their value. The one to which he attaches the most importance is the construction of power stations on the rivers of France and the distribution of electric current throughout the whole central plateau. His estimate of the value of the work to be done runs to about 11,000,000,000 francs, giving a big immediate return.

For the construction of new railroads and the Channel tunnelto which the consent of England must be sought—his estimate is 1,800,000,000. The reconstruction of the ports for which plans already have been made would cost 5,000,000,000 and the total cost of the works to be accomplished would be 18,419,000,000 francs, of which a big share would be furnished by Germany in labor and material. The Reparations Commission has been informed of the plan, and a small committee of the Cabinet is now examining the details.

Government Discovers Error in Bookkeeping That Added That Sum to Defense Bonds.

PARIS, June 26.—It has just been discovered that France owes some 7,000,000,000 francs less than it was thought she did and inversely that French citizens hold some 7,000,000,000 francs less of defense bonds than was imagined. Such an error in national bookkeeping may seem strange to those who are unaware of the chaos into which the war threw French administrative departments, but the fact is reported for over the signatures of President Millerand and the Finance Ministers, Charles de Lasteyrie, in a statement concerning the budget for 1923, which has just been issued by the National Printing Office.

Some time ago it was discovered that there was something wrong somewhere in the calculation of the number of defense bonds which had been sold to the public since 1914. An inquiry was ordered and the report has been issued. It shows the astonishing fact above recorded. Instead of 45,430,000,000 francs worth of bonds issued as believed, the number reaches only 38,800,000,000.

The excuse is made in the report of the inquirers that it was due to hurry in impoverishing bond issues with reduced profits in wartime. It is an excuse which every one is likely to accept, for the discovery of the error brings the happy reflection of the French taxpayer that he will have to pay 376,000,000 francs of interest each year than he thought he had to pay.

CATCH PARK PURSE GRABBER

Woman's Cries Warn Keeper, Who Holds Man With Police Record.

As Mary Tunney, 21 years old, walked through Prospect Park to work yesterday morning, a man who gave his name as Gus Schuben, 25 years old, of 18 Eldert Place grabbed her purse containing $10 and ran.

Screaming for help, Miss Tunney chased the fugitive. John White, keeper of the miniature yacht club, heard her cries and caught Schuben. Miss Tunney, coming up, dealt the thief several blows. She got her purse back and the thief was arrested by Policeman Frank O'Rourke of the Prospect Park Station.

The police say the prisoner served six months in prison for failure to support his wife. He was held by Magistrate Geismar in the Flatbush Police Court on a charge of highway robbery.

Dr. Gilman took her to Harlem Hospital suffering from lacerations of the scalp, bruises and probably a broken leg.

Mrs. Cohen was visiting a neighbor on the same floor when the door of her apartment was blown shut, locking her out. The dumb-waiter shaft is between the Cohen apartment and that of the neighbor and Mrs. Cohen tried to cross the gap.

COURT FINDS MURPHY HAS 2 WIVES HERE

HIS SUIT IS DISMISSED

Justice Holds There Is No Ground to Support Action Against First Wife.

By a decision of Supreme Court Justice Wasservogel yesterday Edward Mallet-Prevost Murphy, brother of Colonel Grayson M-P. Murphy, banker, and Commissioner of the American Red Cross in France during the war, is declared to be the possessor of two wives in New York State, although the State of Nevada recognizes only one wife as do other States which give full credit to Nevada divorce decrees.

Justice Wasservogel dismissed the suit of Mr. Murphy against his first wife, Mrs. Gertrude Stickle Murphy, who was employed as secretary in the office of Grayson M-P. Murphy & Co. at $21 a week when she first met her future husband, who was then employed at $50 a week. Mr. Murphy married her in the Spring of 1914, and left her less than two years later for the reason, as now alleged, that she had refused to be a real wife to him.

Mr. Murphy sued in Nevada to annul the marriage, but ignored the requirement of the New York law that a citizen of New York in a matrimonial action in another State, must be served personally with the papers in that State to make any decree in the action binding in New York. The papers were not served personally and Mrs. Murphy did not answer the suit, but a decree was granted in April, 1920.

Without considering the status of the Nevada annulment in New York Mr. Murphy was married in Nevada in September, 1920, to Miss Eldora C. Price Johnston, the widow of an army officer. After coming to New York with his second wife Mr. Murphy was advised that to make his second marriage effective in New York he should get an annulment decree in the State. The first Mrs. Murphy defended this suit, and it was tried before the late Justice Hotchkiss just before his death. He did not decide it and the retrial before Justice Wasservogel was necessary.

The first Mrs. Murphy contended that her husband's real reason for wishing to set aside their marriage was because she had no social position, which caused her mother-in-law to quarrel with her and eventually led Mr. Murphy to spend the most of his time with his mother, until finally he left her entirely.

In dismissing the annulment complaint Judge Wasservogel said: "I do not think there was any preconceived plan on the part of Mrs. Murphy not to consummate her marriage with the plaintiff. In November, 1915, more than a year and a half after his marriage to the defendant, it is inconceivable that he could have lived as he did if his relations with her if they had been as he claimed."

In her answer to the annulment suit, Mrs. Gertrude Stickle Murphy counterclaimed for a separation on the ground of abandonment.

ZIONISTS LAY PLANS TO PROVIDE HARMONY

More Than $1,000,000 Pledged to Develope the Rutenberg Concession in Palestine.

PHILADELPHIA, June 26.—In an effort to bring about unity in Zionist circles, a resolution providing for the appointments of two committees, each composed of seven representatives from the Zionist organizations of America and the Palestine Development Council, was adopted today by the Zionist organization in annual convention. The committees are to be named by the chairman of the convention, and are to be known jointly as the council of conciliation. A time and place for the first meeting will be designated later.

Speakers at today's sessions of the convention emphasized the necessity of raising funds immediately for the development of the Rutenberg concession in Palestine, lest the concession be withdrawn by the British Government. The concession, which expires in December, 1925, provides for extensive utilization of the water of the River Jordan to produce electric power.

"Three main things are needed," said Pinhas Rutenberg, who received the concession last year, "these are money, men and peace. In order that the great work which we are undertaking in Palestine may go on we must have funds."

Peter Schweitzer, Treasurer of the Zionist organization, led a movement during the meeting to subscribe funds for the project, pledging $25,000 personally. Jacob Siegal pledged $10,000, and total subscriptions were announced as $1,020,000. Leaders said this sum would be materially increased before the convention closes tomorrow.

The convention adopted resolutions praising Senator Lodge for his services in aiding in establishing the Jewish National home, and the State of Massachusetts for its "manifestation of sympathy to the Palestine cause."

LONDON, June 26.—When asked in the House of Commons today by Captain Foxcroft whether Pinchus Rutenberg, who has received important concessions in Palestine, was known in Russia as "the most dangerous world revolutionary and suspected of having murdered a priest, Winston Churchill, the Colonial Secretary, replied that he could not give a biographical sketch of Rutenberg.

Mr. Churchill added, however, that it was a delusion to suppose that Rutenberg was a Bolshevik, for it was because of his anti-Bolshevist principles that he was driven out of Russia.

Free Mrs. Allison in Lamar Case.

Mrs. Estelle Allison of 125 East Fifty-sixth Street was freed yesterday of the charge of having had any part with David Lamarr, the "Wolf of Wall Street," in the alleged swindling of Mrs. Genevieve Brennan of 140 West Fifty-eighth Street out of $6,000. Mrs. Allison appeared in Yorkville Court in response to a summons and through Jonah J. Goldstein of 366 Broadway, her attorney, insisted that the case be heard and that she be either discharged or held. She said she had not been an assistant of Lamar's, but had lost money through her dealings with him.

WEEKS MAY BLOCK WARD BAIL MOVE

MILLS ASSAILS PROSECUTOR

WANTS EVIDENCE IN SHAPE

Weeks Says Ward's Counsel Have Spent Much Money Trying to Prove Prisoner's Story.

Justice Morschauser in the Supreme Court at White Plains yesterday granted an order to counsel for Walter S. Ward allowing them to inspect the Grand Jury minutes preparatory to moving for the dismissal of the indictment for first degree murder, but gave District Attorney Weeks five days to comply with the order.

Mr. Weeks is expected to apply to one of the Justices of the Appellate Division for a stay of execution. The Justices are now available for issuing stays, but not for hearing such cases. As a stay would be effective until a hearing was held, the Prosecutor's proposed move, if successful, would prevent the defense from getting the Grand Jury minutes until October.

From the argument of Isaac N. Mills, of counsel for Ward, before Justice Morschauser yesterday, it appeared that the defense hopes to have a manslaughter indictment substituted for the murder indictment. Manslaughter being a bailable offense, Ward could then gain his liberty while awaiting trial, which is expected to come before Justice Morschauser at White Plains in October.

Attacks District Attorney.

Yesterday's argument was marked by another bitter attack on District Attorney Weeks by ex-Justice Mills. Their twenty-five years' friendship has been broken by the "Ward case." Mr. Mills, who "cut" Mr. Weeks when they passed in the corridor outside the courtroom, departed from the argument on the motion to excoriate the prosecutor until Justice Morschauser called a halt. In his argument Mr. Mills, referring to his double motion for inspection of the minutes and an early trial, said:

"Of course, we realized and admitted that you could not grant the latter part of the motion without the consent of the learned District Attorney. He announced then in answer to my personal and only plea that he would try the case when he pleased. He has announced his decision already through his usual organ or medium for informing the defense of his moves—the public press.

"But in addition to this order I crave a parting boon. I therefore beg to have your Honor direct the clerk to bring in a bottle of indelible ink; to have the Sheriff bring before you the commitment on which Walter S. Ward is held in jail. I would beg your Honor to write at the bottom of that commitment in imperishable ink, 'Committed to be held at the pleasure of Frederick E. We

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Rise in Highly Speculative Stocks, Led by Mexican Petroleum—Exchange Stronger.

Taken as a whole, yesterday's stock market was one of the narrowest of the season. The day's total transactions of 730,000 shares were large enough, as such things go, but more than one-fourth of that total was contributed by sales of Mexican Petroleum stock, by dealings in shares of the company organized to hold Mexican Petroleum stock, and by trading in shares of two or three other oil companies. It will not have escaped notice that the broad general trading, which was reflected in the almost unbroken series of "million-share markets" from the beginning of April into June, came abruptly to an end on the day, a week-and-a-half ago, when the rapid marking-up of Mexican Petroleum stock began. Since that day, total transactions have only once reached a million shares; the daily decrease has been continuous. However much this subsiding of interest in the market may be an incident of the season, it will hardly be doubted that it is also instinctive expression of dislike at a market dominated by a virtually cornered stock.

Mexican Petroleum stock itself rose 23¾ points further yesterday, though it lost 9 points of this before the close. Its extreme advance during the nine past business days has been 71 points. A change of that sort in price, within so brief a time, can only result from one of four causes—an utterly unprecedented increase of business profits, such as sent up Bethlehem Steel from 55 in the Spring of 1915 to 600 in October; unbridled outside speculation for the rise, such as brought Studebaker from 64 in the Spring of 1919 to 151 in the Autumn; a contest for control regardless of prices, such as carried Northern Pacific from 83 in March of 1901 to 700 in May; or, last of all, the absolute cornering of a speculative "short account." Since there has been no unheard-of increase in this oil company's business, since the speculative mania of 1919 does not exist today, and since a contest for control of a stock, the majority of whose shares are owned by another company, is not conceivable, the actual character of the market for Mexican Petroleum is not likely to be disputed.

Movement of prices yesterday, outside the group referred to, was entirely unimportant, changes were mostly fractional and declines were about as numerous as advances. The firmness of railway shares, however, was again noticeable. In the day's market for investment bonds prices changed little, but mostly in an upward direction. The fourth Liberty 4¼s again sold at their high-record price. In the week before the mid-year interest payments of a year ago, bond market prices rather generally rose 1 to 2 points, and the rise continued during July. There had been no such earlier enhancement of prices in the bond market of that season as has occurred this year; nevertheless, the effect of the "reinvestment inquiry" will be interesting.

After falling to $4.37¾, the low price of the season and marking a decline of 13⅛ cents from the rate of almost exactly three weeks ago, sterling exchange recovered 2¾ cents, closing below the best. The market's further movement will largely depend on the extent to which the recent London selling covered future requirements for Europe's Autumn purchases in this country. The German mark recovered slightly from its low point of Saturday; apparently its price was not affected by the death of Dr. Rathenau. It is perhaps too early yet to say what the effect of that most unfortunate event will be on the whole reparations question. It has sometimes seemed as if Rathenau was the only German in a conspicuous public position who was willing to face the facts with courage and common sense.

MONEY.

MONDAY, JUNE 26, 1922.

While call loans on Stock Exchange started and renewed at 4 per cent, a drop of ½ per cent. from Friday's final, there soon set in a heavy calling of loans which put closing accommodations at 5½, via ½ per cent. advances from initial rate. Time money market was quiet, actual business being confined to 60-90 day loans at 4 per cent., longer maturities ruling 4 bid, offered at 4¼. Merchants' paper is now generally at 4@4¼, a fractional shading of previous rate. Acceptances ruled steady with discounts unchanged except for drop of ⅛ to 3 in offering for 120-day bills, in keeping with tendency among dealers to reduce offerings on long maturity, and maintain bids. Call loan rate advanced to 5½ from 5. Not many bills coming in, neither is demand great.

MEXICAN PETE. SOARS TO NEW HIGH, 204½

Squeeze of Shorts Continues, Following Stock Exchange Announcement of No Corner.

Mexican Petroleum soared to a new high mark for the year at 204½ shortly after the noon hour yesterday, an upswing from the opening price of 184, and comparing with Saturday's close of 181¾. The continuation of the squeeze of the shorts in Mexican Petroleum was credited in the financial district to the unofficial statement by authorities of the New York Stock Exchange that no corner existed in the stock, that a free and open market obtained, and that the Business Conduct Committee of the Exchange had no thought of denying a market place for the shares.

Bidding for the stock was particularly lively just before noon, when it advanced by one and two point jumps to the year's new high level. It was reported in Wall Street that a stop loss order of sizable proportions had been caught at the $203 mark. It was also reported, but not confirmed, that an effort had been made by the shorts to effect a private settlement and that it had been unsuccessful. One rumor was to the effect that an offer had been made by the shorts to settle out of the market at $250 per share.

There were no new developments in the case from any quarter yesterday excepting the excited trading in the stock on the Exchange. Sales amounted to 40,100 shares and the net gain was 13¾ points. It closed at 195, down approximately 9¼ points from the high mark of the morning. Stories afloat in the financial district that any single operator had been caught short of a large amount of Mexican Petroleum stock were generally discredited. It is believed that the short interest is composed of a large number of individuals outside of New York as well as in New York who have sold the stock for the decline, without any idea of a concentrated attack.

It is known that the Business Conduct Committee of the New York Stock Exchange holds the belief that owing to the small floating supply of stock a situation might arise where the technical corner that now obtains would become an actual one. The situation is being watched closely by the Committee, it is stated, and a careful check-up of purchases and sellers is being made daily, with a view of maintaining a free and open market.

WINCHESTER COMPANY MERGES WITH RIVAL

Will Be Operated Jointly Hereafter With the Associated Simmons Hardware Companies.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 26.—The greatest step yet taken by the Winchester Company toward utilization of its great war expanded plant in New Haven was brought to public notice today by the announcement that the Winchester and the associated Simmons Hardware Companies have combined and will hereafter be operated jointly.

Announcement of the merger, made at the second annual convention of Winchester dealers in Woolsey Hall, attended by 3,500 delegates, was greeted with cheers, for the combination means that the Winchester's chief competitor in this country has been annexed as an ally. The Simmons concern is perhaps the greatest institution of its kind in the United States.

The combined interests will be operated through a holding company to be known as the Winchester-Simmons Company, the stock of which will be owned by the present Winchester and Simmons interests, both of which will have representation on the Board of Directors.

The Simmons Companies operate warehouses at St. Louis, Wichita, Sioux City, Minneapolis, Toledo, Los Angeles, Boston and Philadelphia, and are understood to carry a force of nearly 500 salesmen.

The Winchester Company and its subsidiaries have warehouses at New Haven, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Kansas City, Atlanta and Chicago, and a corresponding field force.

URUGUAY SEIZES GOLD.

Officials Take Shipment From Munson Liner, Charging Smuggling.

MONTEVIDEO, June 26 (Associated Press).—Uruguayan Government authorities boarded the Munson liner Southern Cross last night just before she sailed for New York and seized gold coins to the amount of 47,000 gold pesos in American and English coinage. They charged that this money was being smuggled from Montevideo to the United States despite the prohibition upon the exportation of gold from Uruguay.

OPPORTUNITIES in Sound Bonds

It is possible, however, by careful discrimination and a study of values to still obtain sound bonds that are selling out of line.

FARM LOAN BONDS FEATURE OFFERINGS

Two Issues of $1,000,000 Each Marketed by Central Iowa and Kentucky Land Banks.

Railway and Light Co. Securities Selling to Yield 6 Per Cent.—Dry Docks 7 Per Cents at 99.

Farm loan bonds feature the offerings of new securities by investment bankers. The Central Iowa Joint Stock Land Bank of Des Moines, Iowa, has sold $1,000,000 of 5 per cent. farm loan bonds to a syndicate composed of Stevenson Bros. & Perry, Inc. of Chicago; the First Trust & Savings Bank of Chicago and Stacy & Braun of New York. The bonds will be offered today at 102 and interest, to yield about 4.55 per cent. to 1927, when they are callable at par and interest, to 5 per cent. at maturity.

An offering of $1,000,000 Kentucky Joint Stock Land Bank 5-per cent. bonds is made by a syndicate headed by Halsey, Stuart & Co., and including Harris, Forbes & Co. and William R. Compton Company. The bonds mature May 1, 1952, and are redeemable after May 1, 1932, at 103, their offering price. The bonds yield more than 4.60 per cent. to their optional maturity and 5 per cent. thereafter. The Kentucky Joint Stock Bank lends on farm land in Kentucky and Ohio, its loans to date being confined to the famous blue-grass section of Kentucky.

Estabrook & Co. are offering a new issue of $1,000,000 Danville, Champaign and Decatur Railway and Light Company 5 per cent. bonds, due March, 1938, at 90 and interest, yielding 6 per cent. The issue is redeemable as a whole only, or in part, for the sinking fund at 104 and interest. These bonds are guaranteed by the Illinois Traction Company.

The Canal-Commercial Trust and Savings Bank and the Hibernia Securities Company of New Orleans and Hemphill, Noyes & Co. head a syndicate which is offering a new issue of $1,500,000 first mortgage 7 per cent. serial gold bonds of Jahncke Dry Docks, Inc., at 99 and interest. The bonds are dated July 1, 1922, and are due serially, Jan. 1, 1924 to 1938. They were issued by the company to refund original mortgages to the United States Shipping Board and the original owners of Dock No. 2, aggregating $3,016,133, which obligations have now been liquidated. The bonds are secured by a closed first mortgage on all the company's property, the replacement value of which is estimated at $3,651,191. Net earnings for 1920 were $587 739 and for 1921 $425,317.

Hemphill, Noyes & Co. and Stroud & Co. are offering a new issue of $600,000 Orange County Hydro-Electric Corporation first mortgage 7 per cent. sinking fund gold bonds, series A, dated May 1, 1922, and due May 1, 1942, at par and accrued interest. They are guaranteed by endorsement of the Orange County Public Service Corporation. The corporation supplies power to the Orange County Public Service Corporation under contract for fifty years.

A syndicate headed by Fenton, Davis & Boyle and A. C. Allyn & Co. will offer soon $1,000,000 first mortgage 7½ per cent. sinking fund twenty-year gold bonds on the Lincoln Mills, Ltd., at par and interest. The Lincoln company, or its predecessor, the Lincoln Paper Mills Company, Ltd., has been in successful operation since 1878, with plants in Merrittown, Ontario, Canada. The bonds are secured by a first closed mortgage covering all fixed assets of the company valued at $3,810,403. A sinking fund is provided to retire the entire issue by maturity. For the six years ending with 1921 net earnings of the company averaged $312,835 a year, or more than four times the annual interest charge on this issue.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

French and Belgian Weak, While London and Continentals Go Higher.

Except for weakness in the French and Belgian remittances, rates on most of the Continental centres yesterday rallied to points beyond Saturday's finals. Paris checks dropped to 8.29 cents from 8.44, while Antwerp sagged to 7.90 cents from 8.03 on Saturday.

Sterling moved up more than 3 cents, to $4.41½, Italian, Holland and Spanish being in demand and on the side of advances. Scandinavians were irregular, with South Americans and Easterns firm.

In the subjoined table the quotation on sterling represents dollars and decimals of a dollar; all others represent cents and decimals of a cent. Quotations preceded by the decimal mark indicate a price measured in fractions of a cent.

TEXAS & PACIFIC NETS $2,740,723

DEFERRED LIABILITIES CUT

Total Is Reported as $16,489,118, as Against $17,857,837 in 1920—Cash Item Is $2,360,271.

The Texas & Pacific Railway Company, in its annual report for the year ended Dec. 31, 1921, shows net income of $2,740,723 after charges and taxes. After allowing for 5 per cent. interest requirements on the second mortgage income bonds, this is equivalent to $3.89 a share earned on the $38,755,110 capital stock. In 1920 the company reported a net corporate income of $2,941,914, or $4.43 a share on the stock.

Details of the income account for 1921, as contrasted with a consolidation of Federal operations for the first two months of 1920, then the receivers' operations for the remaining ten months, are given in the following table:

DENY FOUR-ROAD MERGER.

Bankers and Directors Ignorant of Iselin-Rockefeller Plan.

William T. Noonan, President of the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh Railway, yesterday issued a statement correcting recent dispatches to the effect that negotiations were in progress for the consolidation of his company with the Western Maryland, Wheeling & Lake Erie, and the Toledo, St. Louis & Western.

"Instead of confirming the reported consolidation of four different properties, including the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh, we have replied to newspaper inquiries that, speaking for this property alone, we have no knowledge of the plan which was reported under consideration," said Mr. Noonan.

Banking interests, as well as local Directors of the roads mentioned as principals in the proposed merger, also said yesterday that they "knew nothing about it." According to the report, the Iselin and Rockefeller interests were carrying out the merger.

Tobacco Merger to Be Ratified.

Stockholders of the Tobacco Products Corporation and of the United Retail Stores Corporation will meet tomorrow to ratify proposals made by the Directors of the two corporations for a merger through the exchange of stock. Sufficient proxies have been received by the managements of the corporations to insure the success of the plan.

MAY RAIL EARNINGS CUT BY COAL STRIKE

OTHERS INCREASE INCOMES

New York Central's Net Operating Revenue Drops $700,000 Compared With Last Year.

The monthly railway reports for May, 1922, which are now being issued, reflect, as much as any other outstanding evidence, the effect of the coal strike on earnings. The coal roads in non-union territory, of course, are reporting gains in income, while the carriers in union territory have suffered.

The first report of the New York Central differed but little from the preliminary figures issued a week ago. Net railway operating income for May stood at $3,833,913 as compared with $4,534,063 in May, 1921, while total operating revenues amounted to $26,526,625, a decrease of only $96,379 as compared with a year ago. The relatively larger loss in net is understood to be attributed to an increasing expenditure for maintenance in May, operating expenses for the month amounting to $21,349,137 as compared with $20,505,564 in May, 1921.

For the first five months of the year operating revenues were $129,095,375 as against $129,711,329 for the corresponding period of 1921. Net railway operating income was $20,190,383 for the five months as compared with $11,779,742 a year ago.

The Norfolk & Western, one of the roads that has shown an increase in its coal loadings during May, reported gross business of $8,994,145 as compared with $6,613,063 in May, 1921. Net operating income was $3,412,741 as compared with $871,307 last year. The report of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western showed gross for May of $5,516,145 as against $7,394,702 the previous year, and net of $422,532 as compared with $1,040,008 for May, 1921.

The Lackawanna depends on its traffic from the anthracite mines for a large part of its revenue and has felt the effects of the coal strike adversely. For the first five months of the year the Lackawanna showed net of $4,814,335 as compared with $3,267,323 for the same period of 1921.

A total gross of $4,000,012 was reported by the Wabash for May, 1922, as compared with gross of $4,854,265 for May, 1921. Net operating income stood at $432,659 as against $274,280 for a year ago. For the five months the Wabash showed net operating income of $1,620,491 as against $886,189 for the preceding year.

$2,000,000 Stock Issue Is Sold.

The syndicate composed of Stone & Webster, Parkinson & Burr and Estabrook & Co., which offered $2,000,000 7 per cent. cumulative preferred stock, series A, of the Columbus Electric and Power Company, announced yesterday that the books had closed at 3 P. M., the entire issue having been sold.

DENIES BIG RAIL MERGER.

Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh Not in Reported Combine.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., June 26.—President Noonan of the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh Railroad today in an interview denied emphatically that his road would be included in a merger of the Western Maryland, Wheeling & Lake Erie, and Toledo, St. Louis & Western. The story of the contemplated merger, which if put into effect would create a system with more mileage than the Pennsylvania, was received here today, but almost immediately scouted by the B., R. & P. head.

President Noonan said that as far as his road was concerned, there were absolutely no plans in which it figured in a combine with the others mentioned.

"Of course," he added, "we have all sorts of plans on file, but that is all. They are simply regarded as tentative and to be used in case they should be required on any special occasion."

The report of the merger was attributed by President Noonan to the report of Professor William Ripley of Harvard to the Interstate Commerce Commission in which were a number of suggestions to increase railroad efficiency.

DROP IN CANADA EXPORTS.

Those of This Year to United States Barely Half Year's Before.

OTTAWA, Ontario, June 26.—Canadian foreign trade fell off sharply during the year ended May 31, but the United States was shown still to be her best customer, in a report issued by the Government today.

Exports to the United States in the year ended May 31 were valued at $286,152,041, as compared with $525,196,321 the year previous. Imports from the United States were $503,776,863, against $812,331,823 the year before.

The United Kingdom, Canada's second best customer, bought $301,043,838 worth of export goods and sent in goods valued at $114,079,587.

Redeemable on any interest date upon 30 days' notice at 107½ and accrued interest, up to and including November 1, 1932, in 1933 at 107 and accrued interest, in 1934 at 106½ and accrued interest, and so on in succeeding years, the premium being reduced by ½ of 1% in each succeeding year. Free from normal Federal Income Tax up to 2%. Massachusetts Income Tax and Pennsylvania Personal Property Tax refunded. The issuance of these bonds has been approved by the Public Service Commission of the State of New York.

BUSINESS—The Corporation owns water and storage rights to develop hydro-electric power on the Mongaup and Neversink Rivers in Orange and Sullivan Counties, New York, with an estimated ultimate capacity of 30,000 H. P. The Company is constructing at Mongaup Falls a modern hydro-electric power station with an installed generating capacity of 4,935 H.P., estimated to be capable of producing an average of 14,000,000 K.W.H. annually.

SECURITY—These bonds, in the opinion of counsel, will be secured by a direct first mortgage on all the property of the company now owned or to be hereafter acquired.

POWER CONTRACT—The Orange County Public Service Corporation, which owns and operates modern steam and hydro-electric and gas plants, furnishing electricity and gas to the Cities of Middletown and Port Jervis and electricity to the surrounding territory in New York State, has entered into a contract extending for fifty years from November 1, 1922, to purchase power from the Orange County Hydro-Electric Corporation at a price at least sufficient to produce net earnings after all operating expenses, maintenance charges, taxes and depreciation equal to twice the annual bond interest and sinking fund requirements. This contract will be pledged with the Trustee under this mortgage as additional security for these bonds.

EARNINGS—For the year ended March 31, 1922, gross earnings of the Orange County Public Service Corporation amounted to $543,891, net earnings to $195,901 and the balance, after interest on its $1,175,000 6% Bonds due 1939, amounted to $125,401. By virtue of the Power Contract, the payment of interest and sinking fund on these bonds in effect will be an operating expense of the Orange County Public Service Corporation.

SAYS DEAL COST HIM STOCK AND PROFITS

McCORY ADMITS BUCKETING

Broker Was Working as a Carpenter When Arrested—Will Testify Against Partners.

Three partners of the former stock brokerage firm of Walter J. Schmidt & Co., 30 Broad Street, which has been in a receiver's hands since March, with liabilities of $500,000, were served with summonses yesterday in an action in the Supreme Court, charging conversion of sixty shares of Pan-American Petroleum and Transport stock. The plaintiff is Edward Everiss, an employe of a publishing house at 354 Fourth Avenue. His attorney, James S. McDonogh, of 32 Broadway, said:

"Everiss purchased sixty shares of the stock about two weeks before the failure of the firm, and his account was charged with the cost of the shares, according to a monthly statement from the brokers. He did not get the stock. An examination I made today of the books of the firm discloses that sixty Pan-American shares were entered therein, but whether they were bucketed or bought is not recorded. Nor is there any entry to show what became of the stock."

The purchase price of the shares was $55. According to McDonogh the stock advanced to $65 a share, which profit his client was unable to realize because of the non-delivery of the stock. Everiss, he said, asks damages in the amount of the cost of the stock and the lost profit. McDonogh said his questioning of Walter J. Schmidt in the bankruptcy hearing yesterday before Referee Peter B. Olney, brought denial of any knowledge of dealings in Pan American. Schmidt said the books and accounts were in charge of a "Mr. Lyon."

Says Schmidt Got $400,000.

"When Walter J. Schmidt retired from the old firm of Schmidt & Deery, whom he succeeded, he received $400,000 for his interest," said McDonogh. "We haven't been able to learn what became of the money. Schmidt admitted he had given a farm and $100,000 to a brother-in-law in New Jersey, Martin J. Sheridan."

The partners have offered creditors a settlement, which has not been accepted, to consist of 25 per cent. in cash and notes for the remainder, to run for twelve to twenty-four months, so that they might resume business here.

One broker pleaded guilty to bucketing the order of a customer and three others were held in $5,000 bail each on a similar indictment when they were arraigned yesterday in General Sessions. Herbert R. McCory, 33 years old, of 10,752 112th Street, Richmond Hill, Queens, was remanded to the Tombs when he was arraigned before Judge Nott on an indictment charging him and his brother-in-law, William C. Brower, with the theft of $5,000, from August Heinen, a leather manufacturer of 152 Prospect Park West, Brooklyn, a customer.

McCrory was arrested on June 5, last, while he was working as a carpenter in Jamaica, Queens. He was indicted five months before with Brower, who was his partner in the firm of Herbert R. McCrory & Co., brokers, at 11 Broadway. He pleaded guilty to one of four indictments against them. Assistant District Attorney Albert Blogg Unger, in requesting that McCory be remanded to the Tombs, explained that he would be called as the principal witness against Brower, who will be tried next month.

Brokers Accused of Theft.

Otto G. Spaeth of 2,588 Bedford Avenue, Charles L. MacKnight of 8,921 Ridge Boulevard and Irving Tanz of 2,131 Dean Street, all of Brooklyn; who comprised the brokerage firm of Spaeth, MacKnight & Co. at 45 Beaver Street, were arraigned before Judge Johnstone on indictments charging grand larceny in the first degree in misappropriating $1,800 worth of stock pledged with their firm as collateral on April 15. Edward v. Lent of 185 Seventy-eighth Street, Brooklyn, charged that he deposited with the firm 100 shares of Middle States Oil for the purpose of opening an account with the firm and that four days later the firm sold the stock before there were any transactions in the account. He also told Assistant District Attorney Harold W. Hastings, who presented the case to the Grand Jury several days ago, that he subsequently turned over to the brokerage firm 100 shares of General Motors, 20 shares of Hupp Motors and 150 shares of Middle States Oil. The partners will be arraigned for pleading in a few days.

Harold H. Lowy, head of H. H. Lowy & Co., a former brokerage firm, will be arraigned for trial before Justice Edcomb in the Special Criminal Term of the Supreme Court this morning on an indictment charging him and his partner, Martin Schlesinger, with the theft of $1,900 from a customer, Mrs. Jennie E. Broiles of 833 Washington Avenue, the Bronx, in November and December last. Mrs. Broiles told Assistant District Attorney Neilson Olcott, who will prosecute the case, that she gave checks to Lowy's firm for the purchase of stocks which she never received.

PLEDGE TO QUIT SIBERIA PLEASES WASHINGTON

State Department Gets Official Confirmation of the Report of Japan's Action.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Official notification has been given the American Government by the Government of Japan of the latter's decision to withdraw its armed forces from the Maritime Province of Siberia by the end of October, 1922. The State Department today received a cablegram to this effect from Ambassador Warren.

Official confirmation of the report of the Japanese Privy Council's action in recommending ratification of the Four-Power treaty was likewise received by the State Department today. The Japanese Prince Regent has indicated his intention of signing the ratification at an early date, whereupon the ratification will be forwarded to Washington for exchange with the other powers, as provided for in the treaty itself.

Administration officials received with evident gratification Ambassador Warren's confirmation of previous unofficial reports of Japan's fixing of a definite limit for the retention of troops in Siberia. More than almost any other single act, the withdrawal of Japanese forces from Siberia is expected to be conducive to establishing the belief among Americans that Japan has definitely abandoned aggressive policies and is sincerely anxious to improve her relations with the other nations of the world.

Some skepticism has been voiced here and there in Washington regarding Japan's announcement, where it is pointed out that October is some months away and much may happen before then. Attention is also directed to the phraseology of the Japanese notification, which states that troops are to be withdrawn from "the Maritime Province of Siberia," nothing being said about the removal of troops from the northern half of the island of Sakhalien. The American Government also expects Japan to withdraw her forces from that region.

Such skepticism, however, was the exception rather than the rule. There was a tendency in general to accept the Japanese Government's announcement in good faith as an indication of the new policy being put in force by Admiral Baron Kato, the newly installed Premier, who is believed to be sincerely convinced of the necessity of establishing the best possible relations between Japan and the United States, and who is well aware of the expectation of the United States Government that Japan will make good at an early date its prior pledges to evacuate Siberia.

TOKIO, June 26 (Associated Press).—The Chancellor of the Foreign Office has gone to Vladivostok, where the Japanese Consuls in Siberia will join him soon to discuss details of Japan's military evacuation of Siberia. Among the matters to be taken up is the disposal of arms captured by the Japanese and now claimed by the Far Eastern Republic.

The newspaper Nichi Nichi says the question of indemnity for the massacre of Japanese at Nikolaievsk and the recognition of Japan's vested interests in the northern part of Sakhallen Island will be discussed with the Soviet Government of Russia.

The vernacular press, with the exception of extreme militarists, is pleased with the decision of the Government to withdraw its troops from Siberia.

JAPANESE PRINCE IS ILL.

Admiral Fushimi is Reported to Be Suffering From Cancer.

HAYAMA, Japan, June 26.—Prince Higashi Fushimi is ill as the result of complications following an attack of influenza. Physicians of the Imperial Fushimi family say that his condition, while serious is not critical.

TOKIO, June 26 (Associated Press).—Baron Makino, Minister of the Imperial Household announced today that the physicians attending Prince Fushimi, believed that their patient was suffering from cancer.

Prince Yorihito Higashi Fushimi is a scion of one of the oldest of the princely families of Japan, the house of Fushimi, founded in the fourteenth century. Prince Yorihito is 55 years old, was a student in England and France and has been an officer in the Japanese Navy for thirty years, attaining prominence first in the Russo-Japanese War. He rose to the rank of full Admiral in 1917.

CHECK ON INCOME TAX A YEAR LATE

WILL HELP REVENUE CLERKS

Mass of Data Hinders Task of Matching Employers' Reports With Individual Returns.

Questionnaires on incomes for 1920 for Federal tax purposes have been sent to many persons in the three collection districts included within New York State as a result of a check on returns by the investigating agencies of the Bureau of Internal Revenue. The questionnaires are based on data gathered by Federal officials from various sources, particularly from employers and other persons making payments during the year who are required to report such payments to the Government.

Many persons who filed their returns on time and made payments on their tax were puzzled to receive the questionnaire, which requires answer to questions already answered in the returns. Federal officials said yesterday that sending the questionnaire to persons who had filed returns resulted from failure to find the returns in the various collection offices in the State. This did not mean that the returns were not there, it was said, but merely that the clerks who were checking up the "information at source" data could not find certain returns among the hundreds of thousands on file. A slight transposition in the alphabetical files might bring about such a situation, officials explained.

The questionnaires were sent out from the office of Supervising Internal Revenue Agent Wilmer in the Custom House. Mr. Wilmer's office is responsible for investigating returns in the three collection districts in New York State—one covering Manhattan, another covering Brooklyn and Long Island and the third covering the remainder of the State.

"The forms are the same as those sent out in previous years," said Mr. Wilmer. "When the check-up from the information at source is made, clerks turn to the returns to see whether a person reported as receiving so much income from a certain source has made his return. In the mass of returns, individual returns sometimes are misplaced and persons who have complied with the revenue law get questionnaires. In such cases all the taxpayer has to do is to answer the questions on the form, one of which asks to what district the return was sent. The purpose of the questions is not to have a taxpayer answer the same questions twice with the idea of finding discrepancies in the two sets of answers."

The following information was asked for in the questionnaires:

"1. Did you file a United States Income Tax for 1920?

"2. If so, to what collection district was it sent?

"3. Were you married and living with husband (or wife) on Dec. 31, 1920?

"4. How many dependent children under 18 years of age had you?

"5. Give amount of United States income tax you paid.

"6. If you did not file a return, give reasons why.

"7. If you did not pay any income tax, give reasons why."

The fact that the questionnaires relate to 1920 incomes discloses that the Federal officials are a year behind in their check-up on tax returns. The "information at source" required for 1921 incomes was due by March 15, the time limit for returns and first payments.

PURITAN'S MEN RESCUED.

Picked Up at Sea After Drifting a Day in Fog—One Sailor Drowned.

LA HAVE, N. S., June 26.—The schooner Coral Spray arrived today with fifteen of the sixteen missing men of the Gloucester schooner Puritan, which was wrecked off Sable Island June 23. Only one of the crew, Christopher Johanson, was drowned.

The survivors told the following story of shipwreck and rescue:

The Puritan, under easy sail, was making along at about nine knots Friday, and her crew was just preparing to take soundings when suddenly she crashed upon the bar off Sable Island. Efforts to float her proved fruitless, and the constant pounding soon smashed in her bottom. Then she filled rapidly. Combers broke upon her decks and carried away one nest of dories.

Grasping around in the heavy fog, the crew got away in eight dories. Upholding the tradition of the sea, Captain Thomas was the last to slip a leg over the side.

Johnson was drowned when the dory in which he was leaving the wreck with Daniel Meuse of Yarmouth, N. S., and Dennis Doucette of Gloucester was overturned by a wave.

I. R. T. REJECTS PLAN AT BOARD'S FIGURES

Declares $174,221,056 Valuation Fixed by Commission Is Confiscatory.

EXPECTS TO EARN 8.76%

Contends That Cost of Reproduction Was Ignored and Many Items Were Omitted.

In a brief filed with the Transit Commission, the Interborough Rapid Transit Company refused yesterday to be a party to the commission's proposed plan for a unified transit system and to sell its properties for anything like the $174,221,056 recommended as the value by the commission's Valuation Bureau. This valuation, said to be more than $40,000,000 less than the company's actual investment, was attacked as confiscatory.

The brief claimed a total valuation of $399,873,697, of which $331,747,697 was the estimate of the value of the physical property, based on the cost to reproduce, and $68,126,000 was claimed as the value of the company's subway leases. The brief attacked the commission's method of valuation as faulty in principle and with having failed to take account of many important items. In stating the specific reason why the company could not accept the commission's plan at its tentative valuation, the brief read:

"The commission's plan of September, 1921, offers only a 5 per cent. return (and 1 per cent. sinking fund) on the value which it may finally determine for the company's property; whereas, under contract No. 3, the company is allowed a preferential income of $11,135,000 after all operating expenses and taxes, or 8.76 per cent. on its total investment in both the old and new subways.

"Under these circumstances the company, in justice to its security holders, cannot accept an unjustifiable reduction in its original investment along with the low rate of return proposed by the commission, especially in view of the fact that the evidence indicates the company's preferential will be earned during the entire period of the contract."

Attacks Board's Methods.

The brief, which was signed by James L. Quackenbush as attorney for the Interborough and J. C. Edwards, of counsel, criticised the methods used to obtain the commission's tentative valuation of $174,221,056. "The Valuation Bureau of the Transit Commission," it read, "made no estimate of what it would cost to reproduce the company's property, but merely reported a partial tabulation of original cost as shown by the company's books, and omitted such important items as promotion, preliminary legal expense, financing, debt discount, working capital and many smaller items, all of which the best legal and engineering authorities hold are as much entitled to be included as cost of tunnels, equipment or other physical property.

"In this way the bureau—after further using the pruning knife by marking off $11,000,000 of alleged depreciation of which it had no evidence—determined and recommended the sum of $174,221,056 as the value of the company's property, which is $40,000,000 less than the original expenditures made under the supervision of the commission's predecessors.

"Even the total original cost, as a basis of exchange, would not make the company whole, because the purchasing power of that many dollars now is so much less than when the original expenditures were made."

The brief contended that the United States Supreme Court, the State courts and public utility commissions had uniformly held that original cost was no proof of present value, that present value could not be ascertained in any rational manner other than by ascertaining what it would cost to reproduce the identical existing property, that the value must be fixed as of the time of the inquiry at the prices then prevailing, that appreciation as well as depreciation must be considered and that the law under which the commission's plan was developed permitted consideration of "cost to reproduce."

"The bureau, having failed to establish a value pursuant to the foregoing principles in the face of the well-known fact that the company's property can not be reproduced for anything like its original cost," the brief continued, "its report is tantamount to a recommendation that the company's property be confiscated, which looks like an attempt to take advantage of the company's unfortunate temporary financial situation, for which the management is in no way responsible but which is due wholly to conditions brought about by the World War."

The brief attacked the "straight line" method of estimating depreciation used by the commission's engineers, and declared that the weight of legal authority was that only actual existing depreciation should be considered. It contended that the commission's engineers had discriminated against the company and in favor of the city in allowances for overhead, and had been wrong in excluding debt discount as an item. The commission's engineers were also criticised for having excluded a promotion payment of $1,500,000 to Interborough Rapid Transit stock to August Belmont, although the courts of the State had held that it was proper.

In upholding the company's claim for the value of its subway leases, which were excluded entirely by the commission's Valuation Bureau, the brief said:

"The consideration of this important element of value was opposed by the Transit Commission on the ground that it was a form of going value which item was excluded by statute. The company contends, however, that the value of the lease depends entirely upon future earning power which the Legislature, in the same statute expressly provides the commission should consider in arriving at value.

Expects to Earn Preferential.

"The value of the lease, as submitted by the company, is simply the amount which, if paid at the time of inquiry, would on a 5 per cent. basis yield the earnings to which the company is entitled under the provisions of contract No. 3. The company's estimate of the value of the lease, which involved a termination of all leases, was fixed at $68,126,000. The evidence with respect to prospective earning capacity upon which the value depends indicates that the company's preferential will be earned by a safe margin during the life of the lease."

The cost to reproduce the company's property at prices prevailing in March, 1922, was summarized as follows:

Contracts 1 and 2, $21,392,471; contract No. 3 and additions, including Belmont Tunnel, $180,009,171; Manhattan Elevated improvements and extensions, $56,612,867; working capital, $3,782,818; total present value of company's physical property, $331,747,697; add value of leases, $68,126,000; total present value of property for exchange purposes, $399,873,697.

| (1) | Interborough Rapid Transit Co. first and refunding mortgage 5% bonds | $162,106,000 |
| (2) | Interborough Rapid Transit Co. three-year convertible 7% gold notes dated Sept. 1, 1916: Extend. to Sept. 1, '23, at 6% | $7,563,000 |
| | Not ext. (as of June 22, '22) | 560,000 |
| (3) | Interborough Rapid Transit Co. capital stock ($100 par value), not deposited | 1,087,200 |
| (4) | Interborough - Metropolitan 4½% collateral trust bonds | 63,808,000 |
| (5) | Interborough Consolidated Corporation pf. stock ($100 par value) | 65,746,500 |
| (6) | Interborough Consolidated Corporation common stock, 982,650.62 shares of no par value. | ..... |

"Comparing the total outstanding securities of both companies with proof of present value of the Interborough Company's property," the brief concluded, "it will be found sufficient to pay off all of the above securities, from 1 to 6, and leave approximately $96 per share for the Interborough Consolidated common stock."

CURB TRADERS CELEBRATE.

N. Y. RAILWAYS SHOW $500,000 NET GAIN

Operating Revenue Is $139,533 in Ten Months, Against $394,151 Deficit.

ATTRIBUTED TO ECONOMIES

Board Hears Plan for Buses in Broadway—Many Open Cars in Brooklyn 24 Years Old.

Improvement in the financial condition of the New York Railways Company, under Job E. Hedges as receiver, was reported by Harry S. Fischer, statistician of the Transit Commission, at a hearing yesterday. Mr. Fischer testified that the net operating revenue of the company for the last ten months had been $130,533, as against a deficit of $394,151 for a similar period last year, a difference of more than $500,000.

He added that, had the receiver paid all fixed charges and obligations of the company which existed before the receivership, there would have been a deficit of $1,703,281 for the last ten months. According to the witness, this would have been $506,843 smaller than the deficit for a similar period the year preceding.

Mr. Fischer said that the gain had been brought about by economies, as operating revenue had fallen to $7,795,567 for the last ten months from $7,954,082 for the corresponding ten months a year earlier. Operating expenses, however, were reduced from $7,358,720 to $4,576,716, a cut of $652,010.

F. T. Wood, general manager of the New York Railways, said the company, despite Mr. Fischer's testimony, was not operating at a profit. "The receiver is paying interest on underlying bonds and bonds of certain leased companies by direction of the court in order to prevent a further disruption of the property," he said. "These payments now aggregate $54,000 a month."

Asks for Motor Buses.

J. C. R. Foster, managing director of the Broadway Association, submitted an additional memorandum on the association's suggestion that surface cars on Boardway be replaced with motor buses. Mr. Foster suggested certain re-routings of surface cars to relieve Times Square, including a plan to take Third Avenue surface cars up to Fifty-ninth Street and into Broadway at Columbus Circle, instead of at Forty-second Street.

Out of the 1,171 open cars in operation on Brooklyn surface lines 950 were bought in 1898 or earlier, according to testimony of Edward A. Roberts, Chief of the Commission's Transit Bureau. William E. Freeman, an Inspector, said there were two and three-quarters times as many accidents on open cars as on closed cars, but that the open cars were much more popular.

A proposal to remove the present kiosks, escalator and elevated stairways at Sixth Avenue and Thirty-third Street and to put the entrances into the Gimbel and Saks buildings was considered by the Commission upon an application of the Borough President of Manhattan on the ground that they blocked the sidewalks.

Arnas Selmaker, the Borough President's consulting engineer, said it was proposed to move the escalator to the triangle in Greeley Square.

The Transit Commission opened bids for tracking the subway part of the Fourteenth Street-Eastern subway. The tunnel has long been completed. The bids were:

Slattery Engineering and Construction Company, $183,820; T. H. Reynolds Contracting Company, $232,850; Thomas Crimmins Contracting Company, $271,915; Mason and Hanger company, $325,575.

Residents of Washington Heights asked for a new subway station at 181st Street and Broadway at a hearing held to consider the matter. Arthur G. Peacock, counsel for the Interborough, opposed a new station. He said 21,778,000 persons rode past the 187th Street station in the course of a year and that a new station at 181st Street would delay all of them.

A Will and a Going Business

THE maker of a will under which we recently served was head of a "close" corporation.

As executor we were confronted with the problem of liquidating his stock holdings in his company to the best possible advantage.

The stock was not listed. We had first to determine its book value and then appraise the company's "good will." After the value was thus arrived at, it was necessary for us to find a market for the stock and to realize upon it.

In the meantime the business of the corporation had to be carried on. We gave it actual and active attention, finally effecting an advantageous sale of the stock.

When we act as your Executor or as Co-executor, our service enables you to make certain that unfair claims against your estate will be contested and that your assets will be conserved with the utmost care.

We shall be pleased to confer with you and with your lawyer about the business problems your will should cover.

Our booklets, "Why You Should Make a Will" and "Safeguarding Your Family's Future," will be sent on request.

COTTON PRICES OFF ON CROP ESTIMATE

High Condition Figure of 74.9 Causes Break—Liverpool Market Weak.

Another break of $3 to $4 a bale took place in cotton yesterday, making a decline of $11 a bale from high records of the season. A condition estimate of 74.9 from one of the most reliable sources, representing a gain of 5.6 per cent. for the month, caused additional liquidation. This figure represented an unusual improvement for June, one of the most extensive on record, except the 8.8 point gain in 1920. Texas gained 14 points to 73, according to this estimate. Rumors of very large deliveries on July today helped weaken the market. Weather continued all that could be desired. During the afternoon better support developed with a recovery of 36 points, but final prices were 29 to 42 points lower than Saturday.

An unusual degree of interest was attached to action of Liverpool, following the sharp decline here late Friday and Saturday. Trade buying of contracts for future delivery as well as purchases of actual cotton had been on such an extensive scale last week that the attitude of foreign interests on crop improvement became important. But instead of resisting the downward movement, foreign quotations came lower than due.

With perfect weather over Sunday and temperatures high enough to be a factor in restricting boll-weevil, liquidation was resumed at the opening. After starting at a decline of 10 to 20 points, contracts increased to an extent that a running break developed before midday. A very high estimate by a prominent Philadelphia house on condition as of June 20, unsettled sentiment to a degree not previously witnessed during the entire advance. A stream of stop-loss orders, as October approached 21 cents, soon brought a crash through the even figures, that month touching 20¾ cents. This represented a net decline of 220 points from high levels, but owing to persistent July liquidation support was not as active as would normally have occurred after so extensive a break.

During the morning decline of half a cent some of the heaviest selling came from houses most active on the buying side during the past few weeks. Allowance had evidently not been made for crop improvement, always possible in June, and termination of an extensive long interest in July prior to notice day. The yield of cotton can by no means be determined so early in the season, and while a much larger outturn can be made than anything promised in June, as occurred in 1920, August is generally regarded as the critical month.

In 1911 a heavy August rains made the largest crop on record, whereas last season an August drought destroyed a considerable percentage of the Southwestern crop. A great deal of cotton had been bought on the working estimate of the statistical position, but this factor proved insufficient to offset improving prospects for the new crop. Market weakness dislodged many lines of long cotton both on Saturday and yesterday. Scale orders entered from below 21 cents for October and finally started a recovery. Prominent spot interests became liberal buyers of July on differences.

The chief demand for all July offered at a discount of 14 to 15 points under October exerted a steadying influence on afternoon trading. From a basis of 20¾ cents, October recovered over 21.10, with December up 53 points from low quotations of the day. The disposition to support the market after a 2 cent decline was greater than selling pressure, after houses had liquidated long cotton earlier in the day. Opinions varied as to the immediate course of prices, owing to uncertainty whether a recovery, usually following deliveries, would be counteracted by steady improvement in crop conditions.

An estimate of 10¾ per cent. increase in acreage by the Financial Chronicle brought the total area planted to 35,025,000 acres as against 31,678,000 last year and 37,043,000 in 1920. The features of the present situation, as pointed out in this report, are the abundant moisture in central Philadelphia derived from inundation where cotton could be planted and increased by use of fertilizers. While the crop is late and boll-weevils are present in large numbers, weather during July and August is usually favorable, and this season owing to abnormal conditions under which planting has been carried on.

NEW YORK PORT BILL ADOPTED IN SENATE

Measure Granting Authority to States to Develop Harbor Now Goes to President.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The Senate today passed without a roll-call the Port of New York bill which gives to the States of New York and New Jersey the necessary Federal authority to put into effect a comprehensive plan for the development of New York Harbor in accordance with an agreement already entered into between the two States. The House already has passed the bill which now goes to the President.

Mayor Hylan is said to be opposed to the legislation and has asked the President to grant him a hearing before he signs the measure. There is no question, however, but that the President will sign the bill and that he will do so before the House recesses, which probably will be within the next few days.

The bill, which was introduced in the House by Representative Ansorge and in the Senate by Senator Edge, is supplemental to the joint resolution passed last year, which gave the sanction of Congress to the creation of the Port of New York Authority as provided for in the agreement entered into between the State Governments of New York and New Jersey.

Under the provisions of the bill passed by the Senate today, authority is granted for the building of tunnels, bridges, belt line railways, which when completed will bring the transcontinental railways into New York City and by so doing simplify the transportation problem of the metropolis by lessening congestion, accelerating the distribution of foodstuffs, &c. The plans also provide for the appointment of terminal facilities, the prevention of duplication, the laying-out of highways for motor truck traffic, for prompt distribution of building materials and other commodities.

"The creation of a single port authority," said Representative Ansorge, "with the adoption and ratification of this comprehensive plan marks the greatest step ever taken toward the intelligent development of the Port of New York. It is estimated that it now costs three times as much to move foodstuffs from the meadows of New Jersey to upper Manhattan as it does to bring them all the way from the Middle West to the meadows of New Jersey. The proposed bridges and tunnels and the automatic electric system for serving Manhattan Island will bring all the transcontinental railroads and their cargoes of foodstuffs and other commodities right into New York City. Heretofore lack of co-operation between the two States of New York and New Jersey has been chiefly responsible for the terrible conditions of congestion which now characterize the distribution of foodstuffs in the City of New York and adjoining territory. The Port of New York should be efficiently and constructively organized and furnished modern methods of pier, rail, water and freight facilities and adequately protected in time of war. The treaty between the two States and the comprehensive plans adopted by the Legislatures of New York and New Jersey, to which the consent of Congress is now given, mark the culmination of the most forward step ever taken for the intelligent and comprehensive development of the greatest natural port in the world."

RAIL STRIKE VOTES COUNTED IN SECRET

WESTERN MEN FOR STRIKE

Railway Labor Board Opens More Hearings on Letting of Outside Contract Work.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 26.—Secrecy, more or less insured by the presence of a husky guard swinging a forbidding club, attended the counting of railway shopmen's strike ballots here today.

Official, if rather vague, announcement coming late in the afternoon was that the vote was piling up strongly for a walkout, presumably next week. The striking army, if reinforced by the maintenance of way employes, would total nearly 1,000,000.

From Detroit, national headquarters of the maintenance men, came word that early returns indicate an "overwhelming majority" in favor of a strike as a protest against the $600,000,000 wage cut effective July 1 ordered by the United States Railway Labor Board.

B. M. Jewell, head of the shop crafts, declined to comment on the returns being checked here, but John Scott, Secretary of the same organization, said the votes thus far tabulated were for a strike.

Reports from San Francisco were that 96 per cent. of the shopmen of the Southern Pacific system on the Coast and in the Gulf States had voted for a walkout, and shopmen of the Union Pacific and the Santa Fe had registered 95 per cent. for a strike.

The Executive Council of the Railway Employes' Department of the American Federation of Labor, comprising the shop crafts and the maintenance of way men, was in secret session today. There were reports that the heads of sixteen major rail unions, including the Big Four Brotherhood chiefs, would meet in joint council here within a day or two. These reports, however, were scouted by some usually well informed union leaders, who pointed out that the brotherhood men, for instance, have avoided "entangling alliances," as they are not affected by the wage reductions that constitute the chief grievances of the unions which have taken a strike vote.

D. W. Helt, President of the Brotherhood of Railway Signalmen, arrived in Chicago today and announced that his men are taking a strike vote on about one-third of the railroads of the country.

The United States Railway Labor Board opened today hearings on about thirty additional cases involving alleged violations of the Transportation act by certain roads in letting out work to contractors not within the jurisdiction of the board.

SEES TRANSPORT ACT EVADED.

Hooper Refuses to Dismiss Crafts' Case Against N. Y. C.

CHICAGO, June 26.—Jacob Aronson, General Counsel for the New York Central Railroad, appearing today before the United States Railroad Labor Board, moved to dismiss the shop crafts' case against his road on the ground that the board was without jurisdiction.

The case grew out of the contracting of car repair work in the East Buffalo shops by the New York Central to William J. Conners, Buffalo business man.

Aronson contended that there was no relationship between the contractor's employes and the railroad, and that under the Transportation act the board held jurisdiction only over disputes between a road and its own employes.

Chairman Ben W. Hooper, however, promptly overruled the motion, ordering the case to proceed and in subsequent remarks indicated plainly that the board would follow the principles laid down in seven previous decisions on contracts, each holding the carrier guilty of violating the law and the board's rulings.

The contract called for hourly rates of pay at 60 cents for mechanics, 45 cents for helpers and 30 cents for common labor. These rates are about 20 per cent. lower than the rates set up by the labor board for railway shopmen.

After R. E. Shearer, general car inspector, had testified that the company exercised no supervision over the contractor's employes and did not have any relations with them, Chairman Hooper assumed the role of cross-examiner and directed a fire of questions at Attorney Aronson and the witness.

"Doesn't the effect of this contract work take the shop employes out from under the jurisdiction of this board?" asked the Chairman.

"I can't see that it takes them out from under the board's jurisdiction, because most of them were never under it—only a small percentage were formerly employes of the road," the attorney answered.

"But these employes are doing work which, if not employed by this contractor, would be done by company employes," the Chairman insisted.

A heated argument ensued, the Chairman insisting that the road's contract sought to evade the Transportation act and the ruling of the board, and succeeded in bringing the admission from the New York Central attorney that if the work paid by the contractor were not less than the wages fixed by the board the carrier probably would not have let the contract.

"You have paid less wages than the board fixed," Chairman Hooper declared. "You have evaded the Transportation act. You have done exactly what these shop employes threaten to do in another manner."

ASKS COAL INQUIRY BY U. S.

Public Committee Appeals to Harding to Help End Strike.

A complete investigation of the coal industry by a body invested with authority by the Federal Government is recommended in a letter to President Harding from the Public Committee on the Coal Strike, which has been holding hearings with a view to determining the causes of the present situation in the coal industry. The letter says the committee, after two public hearings, is convinced of the necessity of a complete investigation of the whole coal industry by a Federal fact-finding body.

EXPLOSIONS IN R. I. STRIKE.

Soldier Injured While on Duty in Pawtuxet Valley.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., June 26.—Adjutant-General Charles W. Abbot today ordered Major Samuel A. Hall, in charge of the State troops on strike duty in the Pawtuxet Valley, to conduct a rigid investigation into the two explosions at the Velvet and Corduroy Mill of the Crompton Company about 2:30 o'clock this morning, when Trooper Charles A. Browne of this city had a narrow escape from serious injury.

The explosions, believed to have been caused by bombs thrown into the mill yard, did considerable damage to the paint shop and garage of the plant. The blast occurred a short distance from the Crompton library, where one corner was blown away less than a week ago in a similar explosion.

Trooper Browne was on horseback duty, guard duty near the garage and, following the first explosion, rode nearer to investigate the damage caused. As he urged his horse forward a second explosion drove him away as shattered glass fell around him.

HALT MARCHING MINERS.

Union Official and Police Stop Two West Virginia Groups.

FAIRMONT, W. Va., June 26.—A march of striking miners and their sympathizers from Monongah, a mining village near here, to Fairmont was prevented today by Frank Keeney, District President of the United Mine Workers of America, according to reports to city and county authorities.

Early in the day reports spread that the miners and their supporters were gathering at Monongah with the announced purpose of marching to Fairmont and releasing from the county jail ninety-one men who were arrested last Friday in connection with a demonstration by strikers. All city police and county Deputy Sheriffs were summoned to duty to prevent any untoward incident should the marchers come in.

Mr. Keeney, who came here on Saturday to investigate a strike disorder near Clarksburg, was advised of the reported march and he left immediately for Monongah, where he persuaded the men to go home. Keeney later returned to Fairmont and told Prosecuting Attorney Frank Amos that he was confident there would be no further disorder.

WHEELING, W. Va., June 26.—City policemen and Deputy Sheriffs, mobilized at the city limits today, stopped a march of striking miners. After a brief parley the men agreed to return home. The authorities were advised that the marchers were on their way from the region about Triadelphia to working mines near Edgewood and Richland. Leaders of the men said they intended to walk peaceably to certain mines and ask the men working to join the strike. Sheriff H. T. Clouse said he expected no further demonstrations.

DENIES LABOR WANTS BEER AND LIGHT WINE

Wheeler Declares Test Has Shown Voters of the Country Stand by Prohibition.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 26.—The assertion that labor demands beer and light wines was declared to be "unfounded" by Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel and legislative superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of America, in an address before the convention of the International Sunday School Association here today.

"On May 16," said Mr. Wheeler, "a test was made in the Thirty-third District of Pennsylvania, now the greatest industrial district in the United States, with its steel mills, factories and mines. Seventy-five thousand dollars was expended by the beer and wine champions to defeat Congressman Kelly, who is an outstanding advocate of prohibition. He was renominated for Congress on the Republican ticket by a majority of 11,000, by a vote of 3 to 1 on the Democratic ticket, and unanimously on the Prohibition Party ticket.

"Seventy-eight United States Senators and a majority of Congressmen come from States where the State itself has prohibition of even 1 per cent. beer. A Senator or Congressman who voted against the standard maintained by his own State for law enforcement will not receive the support of law-abiding citizens. Senators, like the senior Senator from Missouri, who have fought law enforcement measures and spent their time in abusing and misrepresenting those measures enacted for the public good, have forfeited all claim to good citizens.

"Thus far we have established two facts: Prohibition enforced is a success, and even when only partially enforced is far better than the license system. The following results prove it: Drunkenness has decreased more than one-half. Those opposed to prohibition admitted, after a survey made recently, that consumption of beverage liquor has fallen off 70 per cent. and that the number of drinkers is reduced over 17,000,000. Crimes related to liquor have fallen off materially, and all existing crime induced by drink proves our contention that alcohol provokes crime and should be eliminated. Nineteen hundred and twenty-one was the healthiest year in the United States. Liquor as a contributing factor in poverty is now negligible. Over $2,000,000,000 wasted for drink has been turned into useful channels. Bank deposits and savings have increased, and the net increased wealth of the country last year was $8,000,000,000.

"The Eighteenth Amendment was adopted by twenty-three-fourths of the States, a greater proportion than ever voted for the ratification of any other amendment. It is therefore entitled to proportionately greater respect."

Saturday ..... 4 6/8@5 for the best names.
The quotations are for six months' paper.

Selling Assorted Brushes.

One of the largest brush importers in this city, whose business is fairly active in view of the pending tariff regulations, is cleaning out odds and ends of tooth brushes by offering large assortments in gross lots. The brushes sell ordinarily for between $18 to $24 a gross. Buyers wanted particular grades and styles, with the result that others remained on the shelves. Now, however, by paying $22 a gross, they purchase a dozen each of twelve different style brushes. This idea, said a representative of the firm, has proved a big stimulus to buying.

Gray Goods Are Dull.

Accompanying the break in raw cotton, which was not unexpected by the trade, the gray goods market turned dull yesterday. The most activity was in printcloths. Prices were firmly held for both contract and spot delivery. Some sales of 39-inch 64-72s were reported at 9¾ cents and 38½-inch 64-60s at 9¾ cents. Sheetings were also well maintained as to price, but there was practically no trading. Drills also were quiet. The trade is evidently waiting to see how far the present recession in cotton will go.

Uncertainty About Yeilings.

Considerable uncertainty attends the nearness of the buying season in the veiling industry. Wholesalers believe the Fall season will be a good one, but are unable to predict what will be wanted. All seem to be of the opinion that conservative meshes and colors will predominate, but, as they point out, some novelty may sweep the trade. An out-of-town buyer, in one of the large veiling houses yesterday placed a good sized order in fancy tuxedo meshes, which may or may not indicate their Fall popularity. It is also believed some French dots will be in vogue. The colors are black, navy, brown, taupe and a sprinkling of purple.

Says That Slogans Help.

Slogans in advertisements and on letter heads, according to a well-known pajama and night gown manufacturer, have a remarkable psychological effect upon the purchasing public. Seeing the slogan so frequently the public is unable to dissociate the slogan from the name of the firm. As a result, the manufacturer pointed out, buyers look up the firm's address as soon as they reach the city. In fact, he said, the firm has just spent several hundred dollars for forty-five short rhymes setting forth why their sleeping garments should be worn. The ultimate results, he feels, will be well worth the outlay.

Broad Silks Improving.

Broad silk manufacturers are inclined to take a more optimistic view than formerly of both the Fall and current season. In connection with the former, it is said the demand has somewhat broadened, although it is still early for orders from the garment manufacturers. Canton crêpes continue first in demand, according to manufacturers' orders, with Canton satins and crêpe de chines following. A better seasonal business seems developing, in that portions of orders which were for July and August delivery are being called for now. There is also reported a lessening of the merchandise in jobbers' hands to be offered at a price, which has been a hampering market factor.

Burlap Trading Quiet.

The week opened quietly in the burlap market, with little actual trading taking place. There were some sales of 10¼ ounce, 40-inch goods at 9.75 cents for spot. For 8-ounce, 40-inch goods buyers asked 8.25 cents, but no transactions were reported at that figure. There was a tendency on the part of the buyers to await definite news regarding the Calcutta dock strike which, according to rumors, is now been settled. Very little material is afloat, owing to the strike, and it was said yesterday that only three ships managed to get out during May and June. With the strike settled sailings are expected shortly. But even in spite of this, it is said, there may be considerable shortage of goods in the spot market in the course of the immediate future.

Will Play Up Laces.

The fact that gowns trimmed with metallic lace are being shown in Paris for the Fall is accepted by lace merchants in New York as an important factor in determining what to "play up" when buyers finally reach the city. In view of the expense of this lace, however, the case going at it somewhat tively. Spanish effects will also be popular, they expect. A good seller at present is heavy Russian filet for decorative purposes on panels, bedspreads, curtains, scarfs, cloth backs, &c. The latest all-overs are also finding favor with buyers, as are edgings of Russian colors. As an indication that the lace and embroidery business is good, one of the big wholesalers reported that a salesman sold $30,000 worth of merchandise in Canada in three days last week.

Color Card Index Issued.

An index to the color names and numbers of the standard and seasonal textile color cards has just been issued by the Textile Color Card Association. The purpose of the index is to simplify the locating of color names and numbers, without having to hunt through the various cards which have been issued. The names are given in alphabetical order, the numbers in sequence and the cable numbers in consecutive arrangement. A separate arrangement has been given each set, and a system of cross reference established in order to make the index comprehensive and practical as possible. It is stated that it is always advisable for users of the cards to specify the one from which the color is selected by season, in case of the seasonal cards, and by edition in the case of the standard issue.

A Novelty in Garters.

Novelties in garters being rare, department stores and specialty shops are said to have taken a keen interest, which they are giving voice to in big orders, in a round garter just patented and placed on the local market. With the women wearing skirts near enough their knees to show a pretty round garter, this manufacturer decided to join all the advantages of one garter to the advantages of two, and to this add comfort and beauty. The result is two round elastic bands, an inch wide joined in the back by a thin silk strap. The plain elastic band rests above the knee, and the other, covered with shirred ribbons in all colors to match the dress, below the knee. They are said to keep the stockings in place and do away with runners and unsightly wrinkles. They are especially good for bathing and gymnastics, and will retail for 50 cents a pair and up.

Wool Machinery Activity.

Census Bureau returns received from 348 manufacturers operating 1,140 woolen mills for May of the current year show a slight decrease in idle hours for all classes of machinery reported. On spindles the percentage of idle hours to the total reported was 11.6 per cent., compared with 18.3 per cent. on May 1 and 12.3 per cent. on June 1, 1921. In the case of worsteds, the percentage moved from 37.9 on May 1 to 24.7 per cent. on June 1. Idle spindle hours for woolens dropped from 74,006,840 on May 1 to 57,280,040 on June 1, and for worsteds from 108,204,960 to 101,444,160. Active woolen spindles during May were 7,970,584, with 334,185 spindles idle, or 4.2 per cent. The active spindles totaled 1,442,136, with the number of idle spindles 59,152. Wide looms idle on June 1 were 1,624,584 and narrow ones 1,308,864, the former being 200,000 less than the month before and the latter 30,000 more. Nearly 100,000 more carpet looms were active on June 1 than on May 1.

Loans Obtained on Various Improved Properties in Manhattan Aggregate $2,197,000.

Loans aggregating $2,197,000 were placed on various improved properties in Manhattan yesterday. A loan of $400,000 was placed with the Emigrant Industrial Savings Bank on the Navarre Hotel, at the southwest corner of Seventh Avenue and Thirty-eighth Street. It was obtained through Owen Tucker, Inc. as broker, for the Garment Centre Realty Company, and is for five years at 6 per cent.

The Emigrant Industrial Savings Bank loaned through the same broker to the Flinn Realty Company $400,000 for five years at 6 per cent. on the twelve-story apartment building at 375 West End Avenue.

Lawrence, Blake & Jewell placed a permanent loan of $500,000 at 6 per cent. for five years on 200 to 212 West Forty-eighth Street, corner of Broadway, a five-story store and loft building, on a plot 203 by 81.

L. J. Phillips & Co. have placed for the St. Nicholas-Seventh Avenue Theatre Company (Arthur W. Little, President) a first mortgage loan of $400,000 on the property known as the Regent Theatre, now operated by the B. F. Keith interests, located at the southwest corner of 116th Street and Seventh Avenue. This mortgage was taken by the Prudence Company.

The Scandinavian-American Line Building obtained from the Seamen's Bank for Savings a loan of $180,000 on the five-story building, with stores, 32.8 by 57.10, at 16 and 18 Bridge Street, southeast corner of Whitehall Street.

Leroy Coventry secured a loan of $117,000 from the Dry Dock Savings Bank, for a term of years, on the premises 25 West Ninety-sixth Street.

The three five-story apartments with stores at 508, 510 and 512 Manhattan Avenue, northeast corner of 121st Street, were sold by Leopold Weiss, operator, to Sophie L. Nagin.

The buildings occupy a plot 100 by 100 feet, and yield an annual rental of $82,000 net. They were held at $180,000. Spoets & Starr were the brokers in the deal.

An investing client of George C. Blackwell bought 840 St. Nicholas Avenue, northeast corner of 152d Street, a six-story walk-up apartment, and the two-story taxpayer at 41 St. Nicholas Place, northwest corner of 152d Street, from the Fair Return Holding Company, John P. Flannery, President. The property was held at $110,000, and has a rent roll of $15,000.

David Lion sold the four and a half story triple flat at 156 East 112th Street, near Lexington Avenue, on lot 25 by 100, to Joseph Spallina, who has purchased same for investment. The brokers in the transaction were G. Tuoti Co.

I. Ginsberg sold to an investor the six-story elevator apartment house covering a plot 87.6 by 94.11 feet at 528 West 187th Street; also the five-story apartment house on plot 75 by 100 feet at 560 West 187th Street; also the five-story apartment house on plot 41.8 by 100.11 at 246 and 246 East 110th Street.

The Hudson F. Rose Company purchased from Wadleigh Realty Corp. the house at 245 West 122d Street. David E. Gerstenfeld was the broker. The same company resold 434 West Twenty-fifth Street to Lowenfeld & Prager. Steinman & Polak were the brokers.

Brooklyn Home Buyers.

The two-story brick building with store on lot 20 by 55 feet at 573 Wythe Avenue was sold by Herman Roth to a client of George Gansle for improvement.

The three-story double apartment dwelling at 20 Floyd Street was sold by the same broker for a client to Pietro Pardini.

Meister Builders, Inc., purchased from Maria Picctocchi the three-story brick building on a lot 20 by 100, accommodating three families, located at 187 Eighth Street.

Henry L. Nielsen Offices sold the three-story brownstone, one-family dwelling at 446 Fifth Street for Jerome Property Corp. to a client.

The one-family detached cottage known as 1145 Eighty-fourth Street, on plot 80 by 100, was sold for T. S. Wolf to a client of Frank A. Seaver & Co. for occupancy.

Realty Notes.

Edythe J. Jenks is the purchaser of 110 West Eighty-seventh Street, a 3½-story dwelling, on a plot 17.6 by 100.8, recently sold through James P. Walden.

D. H. Scully & Co., who for over thirty years were located at 57 East 125th Street, have removed to new offices at 295 Lenox Avenue, southwest corner 125th Street, in the newly altered building formerly occupied by the Columbia Trust Company.

The E. J. Maas Realty Co., Inc., now located at 200 West 102nd Street, have opened new offices at 2,410 Broadway on the northeast corner of 188th Street.

Dorothy Rowland is the purchaser of the five-story building 601 Lexington Avenue, adjoining the northeast corner of Fifty-second Street, recently sold by Maurice Wertheim as broker. As soon as possession is obtained, same will be altered into stores and apartments.

Builders Bought Lynbrook Lots.

Homesite seekers acquired most of the lots auctioned by Joseph P. Day at Lynbrook, L. I., and WEmont Park, Scarsdale, Westchester County, Saturday afternoon.

Martha Nelson paid $340 for a plot on Locust Avenue, between Lyons and Bradley Streets. Mrs. J. S. White took a plot on Locust Avenue, between Gentles and Johnson Streets, for $340. M. L. DeRubba bought on Lyons Street an inside plot for $340, while J. J. Cunningham paid $520 for some Anderson Street frontage.

Albert Hart was the biggest single purchaser at Lynbrook, taking sixty lots on Nassau Boulevard and Hempstead Avenue. John J. Noonan, G. Delaney, George F. Cody, E. J. Mullane and Eleanor M. Timmins were buyers of four lots apiece. Hempstead Avenue frontage were eagerly sought, and Albert Hart was the successful bidder for most of these lots. He paid $400 apiece for them.

THE MACE ESTATE SALE.

Average of $1,170 Per Lot Obtained for 538 Bronx Lots.

One of the largest sales of Bronx lots in the last two years was held last Saturday by Bryan L. Kennelly, Inc., when they auctioned 538 lots previously known as the Mace Estate.

Long before the sale commenced homeseekers, operators, builders and investors began to reach the property and fill the mammoth tent under which the sale was held. By the time the sale actually started there were between two and three thousand people present.

The bidding opened in brisk manner and continued in the same manner to the close, the entire 538 lots being sold in four hours. The total price paid was about $630,000, and the average price per lot $1,170.

The first parcel offered was a plot of four lots at the southeast corner of White Plains Road and Allerton Avenue. This brought forth many bids and was finally sold to J. Billig for $19,000. Other lots along White Plains Road brought on an average of $2,200 to $2,400 each. The triangular plot at the junction of Boston Post Road, Allerton and Barnes Avenues, which consisted of about six lots, was sold to D. Perlman for $20,000. There was much competition for this plot. Other lots on Boston Post Road averaged $1,500 to $2,700. There was a big demand for Allerton Avenue lots, and the corners—four lots together—averaged about $6,000.

Other large purchasers were E. J. Sennett, Logan Billingsley, William Keogh, C. E. Simmonds, DD. Angelo, Contracting Co., A. F. Schwartzler, Robert Moran, Delta Construction & Engineering Co., Frank Naughton.

$2,000,000 Annex Planned.

Plans were filed yesterday with the Building Department for the twenty-story structure to be erected by Robert Catts on the block front on the east side of Park Avenue, between Forty-sixth and Forty-seventh Streets, at the rear of the Grand Central Palace, which he also controls. The land is owned by the New York Central Railroad, and was leased by Mr. Catts for a long term a year ago. The new structure, which will occupy the site, 200.10 by 120 by irregular, will cost $2,000,000, according to the estimate of Warren & Wetmore, architects. It will be known as the Park Avenue Annex, and will contain a restaurant and shops on the first floor and offices on the other up to the twentieth, where there will be an apartment.

THE BRONX MARKET.

Trading Indicates Strong Demand for Apartment Houses.

The northwest corner of Vyse Avenue and Home Street, improved with a five-story apartment house having three stores and accommodating six families on a floor, was sold by Louis Reutar, as broker, for M. Levin. The building occupies a plot 84 by 100 feet and was held at $210,000.

The Leo H. Arends Company sold for a client 1,991 and 1,993 Washington Avenue, a five-story building situated on a plot 54 by 145 feet, containing twenty-seven apartments with a rental of $15,500. The property was held at $250,000.

Albert D. Phelps and H. J. Rogers sold to Murray Maran for Mrs. Bingham the southeast corner of 190th Street and Washington Avenue, a three-story business building having six stores and apartments on the upper floors, being on plot 101 by 35. The property has been owned by the former owner for twenty years and was held at $55,000.

The Wehat Realty Company sold to Stebbins Avenue Construction Company a plot 170 by 200 feet on the west side of University Avenue, 144 feet south of Tremont Avenue, which was held at $75,000. The purchaser will immediately erect a two-story building with sixteen stores. The William F. Kurz Company was the broker.

The three-family house at 1,964 Bathgate Avenue was sold by Edwin Wood through the Patrick Holland Agency to Rocco Larone.

G. F. Kunz Enlarges Estate.

M. & L. Hess, Inc., sold the property of Mrs. Jennie Beach Gasper, consisting of twenty-six acres on Lake Mohegan in Westchester County, with 1,000 ft. of lake frontage, to George F. Kunz of Tiffany & Company, jewelers.

Mr. Kunz's purchase enlarges his already extensive holdings on Lake Mohegan to 150 acres. The property is all high land with an extensive view over the lake.

A City Underbuilt Makes Many Vanderbilts

GREAT fortunes in real estate are founded early in the game. The trouble with most real estate investors is that they don't start spading till the boom is fading. They put their scaffolds up just in time to hang themselves! They dig graves instead of foundations—raise monoliths instead of monuments—and frequently find that what they intended as a home for others is a Final Resting Place for Themselves!

The only man who consistently makes money in real estate is the man who pioneers in cities or in sections that are underbuilt, as the Town of Long Beach was underbuilt a year ago and as the City of Long Beach is still underbuilt today.

He is the man who saw the significance of lifting the Restrictions at Long Beach and who timed his operations with that phenomenal public buying movement which last year absorbed $2,000,000 worth of property under the hammer in two days!

And he is the man who today beholds in a thousand new homes erected in Long Beach in a single year, the benefits of bidding, buying, and building when a boom begins!

Salesmen.

SALESMAN.

A conservative, dignified, long-established manufacturing concern requires a salesman to undertake some special negotiations in connection with a publicity system, which has been used by thousands of satisfied clients for many years. An exceptionally large income, well in the five-figure class, can be earned by the right man. The ordinary type of traveling salesman is not desired, but we will entertain applications from those who have had three years or more of traveling sales experience in the United States, who were born in this country, and who have earned not less than $5,000 annually for the last several years. We want a man of good education and appearance, between 30 and 45, who can make trips of from sixty to ninety days, and who appreciates the financial advantage of receiving the same liberal commission on renewals as on new business. Give particulars in full, including phone number, to insure an interview. W 179 Times.

BANKER'S GRANDSON GETS PRISON TERM

TWO BROTHERS IN TROUBLE

Edwin Sent to Elmira Reformatory and Alfred to Psychopathic Ward in Bellevue.

When Arthur Jarmulowsky, 29 years old, of 603 West 138th Street, was sentenced yesterday by Judge Talley to three years in the penitentiary for theft, it became known that he was the grandson of Meyer Jarmulowsky, pioneer east side banker, whose firm failed with liabilities of $1,800,000 in 1914, and that within the last week two of six brothers of the young man had been arraigned in criminal courts on charges of larceny.

Arthur Jarmulowsky pleaded guilty to stealing $1,625 from Bernard Wexler, manager of the Lavelle Jewelry Shop, Inc., 1,487 Broadway. Wexler testified that Jarmulowsky obtained jewelry from him, pawned it instead of selling it, and gave him two worthless checks in return.

"If you had not pleaded guilty," said Judge Talley to the prisoner, "I would have sent you to State prison. The name you bear used to mean a lot, especially in one section of the city. You don't seem to realize the difference between what is other people's property and what is your own. Twenty-five years ago the name Jarmulowsky stood for honesty as far as private banks were concerned on the east side."

Edwin Jarmulowsky, a brother, was sent to Elmira Reformatory last Friday when he pleaded guilty before Judge Nott in General Sessions to defrauding customers of money which they had given him to buy foreign exchange. A few days previously, Alfred Jarmulowsky, another brother, was sent to the psychopatic ward at Bellevue Hospital for observation, after he had been arraigned in Special Sessions on a charge of passing a worthless check.

The grandfather of the three men was the head of M. & L. Jarmulowsky, private bankers, at 105 East Broadway and received a suspended sentence in 1915 on an indictment charging him with receiving deposits from customers of his bank in 1914 when he knew it was insolvent. The firm had failed a few days before his indictment.

Negro Slayer's Wife Acquitted.

Cora Brown Boddy, wife of Luther Boddy, negro slayer of Detective Sergeants Francis J. M. Buckley and William A. Miller of the West 135th Street station, was acquitted yesterday on a grand larceny charge. She had been accused of stealing $500 worth of clothing from the home of Dr. Orestes Castna of 234 East Nineteenth Street.

Hot-Water Service Perfect and Unfailing

Think of the joy of having steaming hot water for shaving or for a shower the instant you get up—of getting plenty of it any time of the day or night you want it.

That is the sort of service Ruud Automatic Hot Water gives. No matter how much you use, no matter how large or how small your house is, Ruud Hot-Water Service is perfect and unfailing. And it is given with no effort or trouble on your part.

Of course, you want to know more about Ruud Automatic Hot Water. Go to any good dealer in Greater New York. He can explain more easily and more satisfactorily to you with the apparatus in front of you how the Ruud Automatic Heater works than we can tell you in ten of these advertisements.

The ease with which it can be put in any house where there are gas and water pipes, and the simplicity of operation once the gas is lit, will be evident to you immediately. There is nothing to light, nothing to turn off.

Above all, you realize then as never before the saving in time, trouble and expense by having Ruud Automatic Hot Water. Ask your dealer about it now.

See any good dealer in Greater New York and vicinity, or write or telephone Ruud New York headquarters for any information you may wish

Instantaneous Type

Baring the Scandals Long Hidden by Vests

ALL winter long many a man's vest has been charitably hiding a scandal—charitably concealing an ancient and tired-out or faded and frazzled belt. Or maybe one that's joltingly discordant in color—a brown belt with blue trousers or some similar sin against belt etiquette.

Time for shucking the shielding vest is here. All such disreputable or erring belts will now be bared to public view—unless their owners take thought. And take time to buy a new one.

Pays to pick a Marathon—the big step ahead in belts.

Made of Flexyde. Outlooks and outlasts calfhide or cowhide or anything else ever used in belts.

Doesn't scuff or fray. Doesn't lose its color—the color is impregnated through and through. Doesn't scar up from buckling. And it's washable—the first and only fine belt that can be kept clean.

A splendid belt-strap plus a splendid belt-buckle—Solid Nickel Silver. The handiest, quickest, surest buckle ever invented. Instantly adjusted just right—instantly fitted to every variation in your breakfast-to-bedtime circumference. And holds with a grip that never slips.

GOOD Taste has laid down some simple but rigid rules regarding belt etiquette: a Black Belt with a Dark Suit; a Cordovan Belt with a Brown Suit; a Gray Belt with a Light Suit; and a White Belt with a White Suit or White Trousers.
